

The Red Rose Flavor and Strength

NO Ceylon tea nor Indian tea alone can have the "rich fruity flavor" of Red Rose Tea, because neither variety in itself possesses all the qualities of strength, richness, delicacy, and fragrance. Each has its own peculiar qualities, but each has its weaknesses.

By combining the two in the Red Rose proportions, I produce a tea with the "rich fruity flavor" and strength of Red Rose Tea, a flavor and strength found in no brand of Ceylon alone.

The latest statistics show that the evangelical missionary societies throughout the world are at present responsible for 701 men physicians, 238 women physicians, 394 hospitals, 710 dispensaries, 57 asylums for opium victims, and 78 leper asylums.

The medical missionaries, who are mainly British and American, treat about two and a half million patients during the year.

When we are severely criticized it is better to try and profit by the criticism than to attempt to take vengeance on our critic. Criticism, as a rule, especially if it be just, will do us more good than flattery. The former is likely to stir us up to correct our faults, the latter serves to make us satisfied with ourselves and our attainments. Extreme sensitiveness to adverse criticism is an indication that we think of ourselves more highly than we ought to think. He who is blind to his own faults is not likely to amend them.

Glad To See Minister.—Strathcona, Sept. 6.—A young child, son of Stewart Weese, met with a painful accident at Canada's hotel. He was caught in some part of the electric rope and was badly lacerated and bruised. Fortunately no bones were broken; he is now improving.

The Misses Dunlop have returned from a visit with friends in New York state. John Madden was taken suddenly ill and for a time was in a dangerous condition; at present he is a little better. Mrs. T. Pybus is very ill. Mrs. M. is visiting her son in Rochester, N.Y. George Laycock met the misfortune to lose one of his horses. Another horse kicked it, and broke its leg. Robert Rook is visiting friends in Flinton and Smithfield.

Rev. J. Mease was making pastoral calls among his people here. The guests are always glad to see his kindly face. Mrs. Neely, a former resident of this place, now of Shannonville, was the guest of Mrs. Lott. She called on many of her old friends. Mrs. W. Wilson and Miss Scouter were the guests of Mrs. W. Scouter on Friday last. W. Cooper is doing the fair at Toronto and will visit relatives in the western part of the province before he returns.

Mr. Watson has moved his family to Marlbank. The children of St. Jude's Sunday school enjoyed the picnic at the parsonage very much. Great credit is due Frank Granger for the pleasant time the children had. Mrs. Edna Martin is at Toronto. Mrs. Avoy and S. Weese shipped their horse from Camden East, yesterday. Andrew Ramsay is now preparing to finish the kitchen of the fine residence he erected some time ago. When bricked it will add greatly to the appearance of the house. E. Lasher delivered a load of corn to the new cannery factory in Napane. The farmers are looking for good results from this industry.

All It Needed.—There is more real oxygen in a purified form in the "Solution of Ozon" (the coupon kind) than in any other preparation of a similar nature. As a prompt cure in the killing of all inside germs of throat, lungs, stomach or bowels it has no equal when coupled with "Celery King" the famous laxative. That the stringent Ozon needed a tonic of this nature to produce the best results was so apparent that the Public Drug company of Bridgeburg, Ont., after thorough work, druggist a free package of "Celery King" with every fifty-cent or one-dollar bottle of "Solution of Ozon" (the coupon kind).

Durham, Eng., possesses four dogs to every pig, while in Lincolnshire there are more pigs than in any other county; the number reaching nearly 120,000.

If a woman wants to "break" her husband of smoking all she has to do is to break him—and keep him broke.

GOD'S OWN COUNTRY.

Has your dinner lost its savour?
Has your greeting lost its cheer?
Is your daily stunt a burden?
Is your laughter half a sneer?
There's a medicine to cure you,
There's a way to lift your load,
With a horse and saddle and a
Mile of open road.

Is your eyeball growing bilious?
Is your temper getting short?
Is this life a blind delusion
Or a grim, unlovely sport?
There's a world of health and beauty,
There's a melody that cannot fail,
In a day behind the burros
On a dusty mountain trail.

Come out, old man, we're going
To a land that's free and large,
Where the rainless skies are resting
On a snowy mountain marge.
When we camp in God's own country,
You will find yourself again,
With a fire and blanket and the
Stars upon the plain!

PRESERVING BUTTERFLIES.

How to Mount Butterflies and Moths—The Poison Bottle.

The process of preserving and mounting butterflies and moths is rather complicated, if really fine specimens are to be made, and requires some apparatus. The method may be fully explained in most text books of entomology. One of the easiest and handiest for beginners is Comstock's "Insect Life." Briefly, the process is as follows: Having killed your specimen by smothering it in a tight covered box, containing a sponge or bit of cotton saturated with ether, or benzine, or some similar agent, it is next lifted out by means of tweezers grasping the body, for if the wings are touched they are likely to suffer harm. The moth should then be laid on a strip of soft pine board, with a groove cut in its surface deep enough to allow the body of the insect to sink into it, so that the wings lie flat upon the board when spread. A strip of stiff paper (writing paper) should then be laid gently across the wings (lengthwise), and pinned firmly to the board at each end, holding the wings firmly down and smoothly until they have dried, which will occur in two or three days, according to the weather, etc. The spreading of the wings into proper shape may be made after the papers have been pinned, by aid of some slender instrument, like a knitting-needle. When thoroughly dried, the papers may be lifted and the insect transferred to the box or drawer in which it is to be kept, where it is held in its place by a pin thrust through the fore part of the body (thorax) into the sheet of cork on the bottom of the cabinet drawer.

A poisoning-bottle should be one with a wide mouth and a firm, close stopper. It should hold 4 to 6 ounces. Put into this bottle a piece of cyanide of potassium as big as a large hickory-nut, and water enough to cover it; and then immediately, before there is time for the cyanide to dissolve, put in enough plaster of Paris to entirely soak up the water. In this way the cyanide will be firmly cemented in place in the bottom of the bottle, which should be left open to dry to oblige the cyanide for an hour or two, and then securely corked and labelled Poison. If not opened unnecessarily, such a bottle will retain its strength for several months.

Canada's Exhibit at Liege.

Mr. William Hutchinson, Canadian commissioner at the Liege Exposition, reports that the attendance at the Canadian Pavilion still continues very large, it being not unusual to receive the visits of 40,000 or 50,000 daily. The exhibition authorities have a tramway on the grounds running in front and close to the Canadian Pavilion. They had first located their station at a distance of one hundred and fifty feet from it; however, the inquiries about the pavilion were so numerous and continuous that the station was moved to the step to the front of the Canadian Pavilion.

Among the recent visitors of distinction Lord Lytton, Sir John Macdonald and a number of aldermen and county councillors from England, known as the municipal committee. Sir Howland Jones expressed his particular appreciation of the exhibit in the following language: "I am surprised at this fine exhibit taken as a whole, but the mineral exhibit is something new to me. I never expected to see anything like it. The exhibit should be taken to London where it would give the people of England some idea of your country's greatness."

The mineral exhibit has attracted a number of professors of geology from the surrounding cities. One from Berlin, when signing the register, wrote the following remark: "The most interesting and most instructive exhibit is the mineral exhibit of Canada."

The Law of the Revolver.

A singular point in the law as to carrying revolvers was brought to light in a case at Police Court recently, says The Toronto Globe. Adolphus Mele pleaded guilty to drunkenness and also to a charge of carrying a revolver. Col Denison said he would fine the man $1 and cost of 10 days for the drunkenness and $5 and costs for the other offence. "I think under the statute it is $20 and costs for carrying the revolver," interrupted Crown Attorney Curry.

"Well, I will make it $20 and costs or 10 days, anyway," said His Worship. Having looked up the law on the point, Mr. Curry said: "Five dollars and costs is where a constable suspects a man is where a constable suspects a man is and finds it on him. I don't know what would happen if the officer did not find the revolver on him." It appeared that a man is arrested on another charge and a revolver is found in his possession, the minimum fine is $20.

Dandies' Dream.

At the recent 50-year celebration at the American "Shoo" Hotel, Dana Dana, Speaker of the Senate of Canada, said: "We know what you have done for the betterment of navigation on the lakes and how helpful you have been to our mariners. We hope to be able before another half century is completed to reciprocate in kind by offering you a direct outlet to the sea, through a twenty-foot waterway via the Ottawa and St. Lawrence River, thus saving you the annoyance of twice breaking bulk before reaching a European port."

SEA BIRDS GETTING SCARCE.

Many Species Extinct and Others Are Threatened.

New York Mail.

No one knows better than the sailor or the shore hunter how the sea birds may be exterminated, and no one better than the Indian or trapper of the deep woods how sometimes the wildest and most abundant land species may disappear. The wonderful great auk or garofal, has, within the memory of men now living, been hunted from the face of the earth so that its skins and eggs are now worth their weight in gold. Practically the beautiful wild pigeon, which once darkened the skies with its vast and cloudlike flight, has met the same fate, though small colonies of it in remote spots are undoubtedly still exist. The eastern pinnated grouse is also practically extinct. In the Chatham Islands alone, in the Pacific, seventeen species of birds have become extinct.

On all the islands of the sea and all the shore spots to which sea birds resort the work of slaughter is being carried on quite relentlessly. Largely for purely humane reasons and incidentally in the interest of science the National Association of Audubon societies is engaged in the work of trying to save the sea birds from extermination. Several species are being systematically destroyed for their feathers. Fashion, of course, does not exterminate or not. The sea birds become up to the point of their actual disappearance the greater are the prices realized for the feathers and the deeper the joy taken by the wearer of the ornament. And when at last they are all gone—why there will be another of God's creatures to put through the same process.

This association has forty wardens guarding some of the key colonies of these sea birds. This may guarantee them from total destruction at present, but does not insure the maintenance of the birds of the species in question in such numbers as to render their preservation sure. Instead of forty wardens the society ought to have—300.
