"WILD AND WOOLLY"

S MISNOMER WHEN APPLIED TO VANCOUVER.

Churches Filled, and Giving Generous—Many Should Go to Dominion Fair—Heavy Rains After Dry Summer.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 19.—(To the Editor): From Spence's Bridge, a few miles out from this city, on the line of the C.P.R. comes the news that a man, named Olsen, shot and killed one aged, Hopcroft, about six o'clock last night. The men had been fighting, and had parted. Olsen had gone to his tent, and the other man followed him, threatening to kill him. Olsen went into the tent and came out with a double-barrelled shotgun, and shot Hopcroft in the face, killing him instantly. The murderer was arrested and an inquest is being held.

Nanaimo, simultaneously with this, furnishes us with almost an exact counterpart. During the early hours of last night Isaac Dykes, a well-known and generally respected citizen, of Nanaimo, and a companion, named Malone, were drinking together, after which they dropped into a restaurant for lunch. While sitting at the table, the two began quarrelling, whereupon the proprietor stepped outside to call in a friend of Dyke's to stop the fight. Upon his return Dykes was lying flat on the floor, and Malone was lifting his head, and dropping it again repeatedly. Dykes was found to be unconscious, suffering from concussion of the brain, and was placed in the hospital, where he died seventeen hours after, without having regained consciousness. Malone was arrested, and will be held, pending the coroner's inquest. It is the same old story in both cases—rims!

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the generally accepted term, "Wild and woolly west," is a misnomer. There may have been a day when it did apply, and there may be parts of the west where it does apply to-day, but in the broad sense in which many who are not familiar with it, the west is likely to accept it, it is a misnomer, for there are just as good people to be found in the west as there are in any other part of the universe, and I am happy to say that the ruling element belongs to this class. Were it not that one of the eastern cities claims the proud distinction, Vancouver might well be called the city of churches. We have thirty-five places of religious worship, or about one to every 1,200 persons, besides preaching on the street corners by the Salvation Army, and several other societies. Go to any one of those thirty-five churches during service, and you will find them well attended, and go to any of the groups on the street corners, and you will find such crowds that the speaker's voice can hardly be heard by those in the outer circle. Then the way in which people respond to the call for money for church purposes, out here, shows that the people of the west are not as bad as we sometimes brand them. I attended two services, in the same church, on the same day recently, and, by-the-way, it was not one of the largest either. The minister made an appeal at the morning service, for $1,200, with which he paid off a debt on a branch church, which had just been built. At the close of the evening service he announced that $1,450 had been subscribed. I have been in places in the east where this spirit might be commended very appropriately, and so I ask of you, do not take us too seriously when we speak of this beautiful and enchanting western domain in that misapplied term—"Wild and woolly west."

After a very dry summer, we have just had a very heavy rain. The weather observer, of this city, furnishes us with the following reports: (I have not stopped to figure them out but presume they are correct.) Wednesday was 94 inches; Thursday, 2.72 inches, and for Friday 1.20 inches. The total rainfall 3.94 inches during those three days, means the precipitation of a weight of 400 tons of water to the acre, or fifty tons on the ordinary residential lot.

As the Dominion fair opens, at New Westminster in this month, we expect to see many of the good people from the east avail themselves of one of the finest opportunities that is ever likely to present itself to learn of British Columbia and her wonderful and incomprehensible products. Come out and learn something of this glorious west. Buy your tickets to Vancouver there is a ten minute electric service between here and New Westminster during fair time.—E. H. NEWTON, 1179 Keefer street.

For Evening Wear. Lemon color is coming. There are to be Empire cloaks. Princess modes will flourish. Fine dresses are made of needlework.

There will be lovely soft silk weaves. Dresses may be draped over the hips. A lace bolero completes one princess skirt.

Black velvet has made its reappearance. Gloves are sufficiently long to turn the elbow. Lace coats will be smart for receptions.

The Egyptian scarfs will continue in favor. Opalescent spangles will shimmer on many dresses. Gold tissue slippers will be superb with dresses to match.

Paste buckles will scintillate on black satin slippers. Serpentine tucks and lace metal-fringe adorn one empire chine dress. Sleeves may be mere frills or puffs, or they may turn the elbow.

Lace opera cloaks are made over-pleated chiffon and silk. Then comes the wool wadding, and then the lining proper.

Nyals Corn Stix. The convenient remedy removes corns, warts and bunions. No grease, easily applied. McLeod's drug store.

TOO MUCH MONEY.

Montreal Collected Not Wisely, But Too Well.

The report recently sent from England by Mr. Bristol, one of Canada's commercial agents, relative to the finding of Canadian filled cheese in the English market occupied some attention at the meeting of the Brookville cheese board, M. K. Everts, a leading salesman, launched the discussion and advocated the compulsory branding of all Canadian cheese where the frauds could be easily traced to the parties guilty of perpetrating such frauds.

D. Derbyshire, M.P., pointed out that several years ago a similar fraud was detected in Montreal, and learned that such cases would crop up periodically by the foolish act of some dishonest cheesemaker. Mr. Derbyshire held that the matter was of small concern, and had been given a little too much prominence by the press. In view of this the trade was likely to suffer serious results, which he deplored.

During the meeting a letter was read from the manager of the Montreal clearing house, stating that at a meeting held on the 7th inst., it was proposed that all guarantees of credits for purchases at cheese boards or dairy associations should be cancelled from the 15th inst.

Mr. Derbyshire took this as showing the way the financial wind blows with regard to the cheese trade. It indicated that prices have been altogether too high, and that the accumulation of 200,000 boxes of cheese at Montreal had made the bankers conclude that too much money is being tied up in the trade.

OCEAN VOYAGERS HEALTHY. Death Rate is Very Low on Atlantic. During the three years ended June 30th, last, 1,932,934 steerage passengers embarked from European ports for New York.

Of these 423 died on the voyage, making a death rate of about 22 per 100,000 passengers. Allowing twelve days for the average voyage, the rate is equivalent to annual death-rate of 6.56 per 1,000.

The highest mortality was in January, the month of smallest travel, and the lowest was in May, one of the months of heaviest travel to New York. From Northern Europe there were 242 deaths out of 1,351,221, steerage passengers, and from Southern Europe 181 deaths out of 581,713.

Of the steerage passengers 31,873 were babies under one year and 110 were born on the voyage. There were 126,993 children over one and under eight years, and 1,774,068 passengers were over eight years. Under eight years 211 died, and above that age 212. In the steerage 113 died out of every 1,000 children under eight years.

Only one steerage passenger out of nearly two millions died on ship-board from accident, and only one from yellow fever. Twenty-three committed suicide, and seven disappeared during the voyage.

BRIDE AGED EIGHTY

RESCUES HUSBAND FROM AN ASYLUM.

By Ruse, She Gets Permission to Visit Sweetheart, Then Places Him in Cab and Escapes.

London, Sept. 19.—A romantic story of a Scottish bride, over whose head seventy-two winters have passed, from the cruel custodians of his declining years, has just come to light. In places it is almost as thrilling as Charles Reade's "Hard Cash."

A wealthy and well known Newcastle manufacturer, a widower with a grown-up family, met a well known Scottish lady, who had twice before embarked on the turbulent sea of matrimony. Mutual liking blossomed into patriarchal love, and the aged pair, unknown to their relatives were quietly married. The bride, after the ceremony, took her "laddie" across the border to her home, where the honeymoon was spent.

The young lady of their father's marriage, and travelling to Scotland, succeeded in inducing him to return with them to the banks of the Tyne. They then placed him in a private asylum, where they imagined he would be safe, accompanied by a woman retainer.

She said she was an old friend of the man and asked for an interview, which was granted. The asylum authorities, never suspecting that the quiet old lady needed watching, allowed her to walk alone in the grounds with her "friend."

The aged sweethearts strolled about the grounds, edging ever closer to the gate. They learned of their father's escape around showed they were not followed. In a trice the cab bearing the reunited couple and the faithful servant was speeding toward the railway station.

Macdonnell The Younger. Toronto Globe. Rev. Logie Macdonnell, M.A., of Hamilton, preached in St. Andrew's church on Sunday. This was his first appearance in the pulpit which his father made conspicuous throughout a quarter-century, and some members of the congregation recalled the first sermon of the late Rev. B. J. Macdonnell in the old church, on Adelaide street, thirty-five years ago.

THE NEW CONSUL

He Comes to Kingston With An Excellent Record.

Howard D. Van Sant, who has been appointed United States consul at Kingston, has only been in the consular service since January last, at that time President Roosevelt appointed him to Guelph, Ont. Prior to that time Mr. Van Sant was mayor of Island Heights, N.J., for four terms. He has been in public life more or less since boyhood. He was born in Camden, N.J., in his fortieth year, and is unmarried. Owing to scarlet fever, from which he suffered in youth, he was left quite lame and walks with the aid of a cane. Mr. Van Sant will come to Kingston towards the end of October.

The Guelph Mercury says of the appointment: The promotion carries with it a substantial increase in salary, and Mr. Van Sant is to be congratulated that the faithful and courteous attention which he has given to the duties of his office since his appointment as U. S. consul at Guelph have won him this well-merited promotion at the hands of his government. Mr. Van Sant has been in Kingston in his efforts to make his office of mutual advantage to this city and district, and to the states, and his reports have been extensively published and quoted. He followed at Guelph a popular man in ex-acting duty, but he has "made good," and there will be universal regret among the business men and among all the citizens who have come into touch with Mr. Van Sant that in a month or so he will no longer be a resident among us. The retiring consul has been a courteous, capable, and thoroughly democratic representative of United States interests and a gentleman with whom it was always a pleasure to meet.

MARRIED AT VICTORIA, B.C.

The Young Lady Formerly Lived Here. A social event of more than usual interest took place on Saturday, at Victoria, B.C., when R. Marpole, superintendent of the western division of the C. P. R., was united in marriage to Miss Anna Isabel Holmes, daughter of Colonel Holmes, D.O.C., of Military District No. 11. The event took place at the residence of the bride's parents at night, Rev. W. Leslie Clay, officiating. The bride was given away by her father and supported by Miss Brignall, Vancouver, and her sisters, Eva and Naomi. Mr. Marpole was supported by E. R. Bicketts, Vancouver. The ceremony was followed by a wedding supper, after which the party went on board Mr. Dunsmuir's yacht, which was placed at Mr. Marpole's disposal by Mr. Dunsmuir, and in which they will make a tour of the Sound.
