NO GREASE OR DANGEROUS DRUGS.

In "Herpicide," the New Scientific and Successful Dandruff Treatment.

Have you dandruff? Then you have a contagious parasitic disease, unpleasant, unhealthy and one that will eventually lead to baldness. To cure it you must destroy the parasite that eats at the root of the hair. The only preparation for destroying these germs is Newb's Herpicide. Charles Klein, of Laramie, Wyo., says: "Herpicide allayed the itching, cured the dandruff and stopped my hair falling out, and it is bringing a new crop of hair." Herpicide is free from grease or dangerous drugs, and makes hair glossy and soft as silk. One bottle will cover the scalp of its head. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. G. W. Mahood, special agent.

FELL SIXTY-EIGHT FEET.

Miraculous Escape of Girl Who Falls Into Well.

Vancouver, Sept. 22.—Miraculous was the escape from death of eight-year-old Ivy Taylor of Grand Forks. She was drawing a bucket of water from a well, when she lost her balance and fell down sixty-eight feet. Fortunately, she alighted on her feet in two feet of water, below which was six inches of soft sand. Her mother hearing her cries, rushed to get a ladder. By herself she carried one, which, under ordinary circumstances it takes two men to lift. This she placed down the well and rescued the child, who suffered only from a few bruises.

Green Goods Men Nabbed.

New York, Sept. 22.—Posting as the man whom it was their intention to swindle, a central office detective arrested at the point of a pistol, John H. Wilson, alias John Kane, and William Parker, alias Frank Morris, said by the police to be notorious "green-goods" men, and all-young criminals. Up to the last moment, Wilson and Parker believed they were dealing with R. H. Jarrett, postmaster in Hillsboro, N.C.

"Opiter per Ortem Dicor."

Will Deceive No One.

Some one has made a discovery. It is that towards the end of 1904, it was suggested to the late Dr. Fee that he resign so that the council might appoint a successor.

But Dr. Fee did not act upon the proposal. He did not entertain it. On the contrary he intimated that as long as his health permitted he would hold the office. Not for all the money there was in it, but because he desired to remain in active service while he could. He then accepted of the assistance of Dr. Sands, who agreed without remuneration to discharge such of the duties of health department as the medical health officer assigned to him.

The life of Dr. Fee thereupon passed peacefully, until some one set his eyes upon his job and undertook, through his political allies, to vacate the office by dismissing the occupant of it. That was the act which gave Dr. Fee some of the greatest worry in his later illness. He had before him all the while the knowledge that he was being crowded and criticized, and in conversation with his friends he referred to it as a most exasperating experience.

The object of the conservative press in making up these incidents now cannot be imagined. The office is vacant, and it will be for the council to appoint to it whoever can secure the support of its majority. Who that one may be is not yet quite certain. One medical man is said to have it at his command, the party being willing to reward him for his labours by this appointment. Yet there are others, and a "dark horse" may appear with the possibility of winning where the vote cannot be concentrated upon the stronger man.

The fact is that the salary is not worth the seeking by the older medical men with a large and profitable practice. A younger man would appreciate the position and make much of it, because he would have the time to attend to its requirements. The choice can be made, however, without reviving the memory of recent events.

Dr. Fee died without the sympathy and regard of the men who have so much to say about him, and his friends, who knew his feelings, are not likely to be mollified by praises of his tormentors.

Why Arbitration Failed.

Goldwin Smith, in an address before the Trades' Congress in Toronto, referred to the labour movement in New Zealand and said arbitration by law had failed because employer and employee could not be forced into a settlement of their differences. "You cannot," said Mr. Smith, "force an employer to pay more than he can afford. You cannot force a labourer to take wages less than he can get elsewhere."

From Mr. Smith's remarks one does not get an accurate conception of the progress or condition of events in New Zealand. A correspondent of the New York Post has been studying the situation on the spot, and he declares that the law with regard to arbitration has failed because it has been perverted from its original purpose, "we are informed, of being a method of conciliation in industrial crises, and converted into an instrument for the minute and detailed regulation of all the industries in the colony or state." The act was only to be applied when capital and labour could not amicably adjust their cases, and when strikes were probable. Instead it led to "an avalanche of litigation." The community was in constant turmoil. A court, meant for only occasional service, and kept constantly in service, not in disposing of disputes, merely, but in writing regulations concerning wages, time, apprentices, conditions of labour and modes of work.

The inevitable result followed. They court became cluttered with suits. It could not dispose of its business. Its arrears were banked up, and the discontent and disgust of people and litigants increased until the one judge who had acted resigned and no other took up and carry in his work. Eventually there may be a repeal of the act or an amendment of it. Let the affected parties, writes the correspondent of the New York Post, "not adjudicate in any industrial dispute save such as would inevitably lead to a lock-out or a strike and their business will be reduced to manageable dimensions, while masters and men will agree to settle all differences between themselves." Perhaps this is what Goldwin Smith means when he says, "We must fall back upon natural laws, upon the recognition of the rights of labour and capital."

Editorial Notes.

The veterans are not getting much consideration from the Whitney government. What they have they had better hold.

Hon. A. G. Blair has intimated that he may return to political life. When he had a good thing he did not know how to keep it.

The western railway companies have removed the bar to the employment of the older men. The stand-byes after all. You had better believe it.

The imperial government says the cattle embargo will not go. Well, what about the preference? Mr. Bickerdike said it was in peril.

Bellevue is anxious for advice on the water pipe business. It can get none better than experts in this city can give. Consult the Donnellys.

A man left a grip and $40,000 in a car in Ottawa, and rewarded the conductor with $2 for saving them for him. Honesty may have its own reward. It had in this case anyway.

Mr. Marter, of Toronto, has it that in thirty years the Canadian fire insurance companies have not met their losses and expenses out of their premiums. It is wonderful that they continue in business.

The National Association of Life underwriters' in convention assembled at Hartford, has condemned the irregularities of the New York companies. Not case of sour grapes is it?

What good is life insurance inspection when it does not reveal anything? But for the quarrel of the Equitable fellows how much would America have heard about the scandals of the day?

Canadians should be interested in the insurance exposures. Since 1875 they have paid over eighty-five millions to the life companies of the United States. They would not be sorry if they had some of the money back.

Civic Extravagance.

This is not a year in which the city can indulge in extravagance, and still our civic committees talk of work which is not necessary, for which there is no demand, and which will cost thousands of dollars.

Take the proposed changes in the city buildings. They are not called for. To have the school officials there is a mere sentiment. The board of education did not ask for the accommodation. By a vote of seven to six the members decided to change their place of doing business only if they were provided with the rooms they needed.

To let the secretary and inspector into the city building, the mayor, the city assessor and the city auditor must be displaced. The auditor and the assessor can go where they please—the civic committee has no concern for them—and the mayor will be hidden in a recess in the above.

The tendency in all cities is to increase the accommodation of the city officials and to provide for their growing wants. The civic officials are cramped for space now. To crowd them still more will be a serious mistake.

Besides, why accommodate one set for men—for no advantage and no gain—at the expense of another set? The cows and the horses must be removed from one side of the shambles to the other side. The school officials cannot stand their place and presence, but the bank officials, the city officials and the police officials can put up with anything!

This scheme has been properly called a wild-cat one. It will cost five thousand dollars. The architecture of the city buildings will be spoiled. The public debt will receive another substantial addition: Is all this wise? Will the people approve?

THE YUKON MAILS.

When Navigation Closes Matter Carried Will Be Limited.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—The post office department has issued a circular reminding the public that with the close of navigation on the Yukon river, it will be necessary to limit the quantity of mail matter to Dawson City and other points beyond White Horse to letters, postcards, singly wrapped newspapers, and periodicals from the office of publication, transient newspapers, and third-class matter of all kinds, except books, trade catalogues, circulars and patterns, and samples of merchandise. The last classes of matter leave Vancouver October 1st.

The secretary of state is in receipt of a letter asking for a vote in Prince county, Prince Edward Island, upon the repeal of the Canada Temperance act (Scott act), which has been in force in that district ever since its enactment twenty-seven years ago. The temperance people of Prince county say they would rather replace the Scott act by the prohibition law recently passed by the island legislature. Two thousand people, therefore, friends of the temperance movement, have signed the request for a vote to repeal the Scott act, so that the provincial statute may be brought into force.

HOSPITALS CROWD

MAJORITY OF PATIENTS WOMEN

Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Began From This Sad and Costly Experience

It is a sad fact every day brings a new case of nervous exhaustion, pain in the back, nervousness, depression, loss of appetite, and other symptoms upon women. Our hospitals are crowded with patients lying on those white beds and women and girls are awaiting or recovering from operations made necessary by neglect.

Every one of these patients plenty of warning in that bearing of feeling, pain at the left or right of the womb, nervous exhaustion, pain in the back, nervousness, depression, loss of appetite, and other symptoms are indications of a healthy condition of the ovaries, but as it is neglected, the trouble will make headway until the patient has to be paid by a dangerous operation, and a lifetime of impaired usefulness of body, while in many cases results are fatal.

The following letter should be hope to suffering women. Mrs. R. Glenn, of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known, that I need my recommendation, but I am glad to add to the many which you have favor. I suffered untold agonies from troubles for nearly three years, and the doctor told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do that, your Vegetable Compound and I am so pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain and operation and the immense expense of the same. Pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes.

Just as surely as Mrs. Glenn cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound every woman in the land who suffers from such troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability and nervous prostration.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women who are ill to write her for advice. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Railway Accidents in England

Special to the Whig.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 22.—Statistics just published by the Bureau of trade, explode the theory that there are more accidents on American than on British railways. It appears from the figures that American way travel is safer in proportion to railway travel in the British Isles. According to the report for 1904 passengers, 448 railroad employees and 573 other persons, a total of 1,021 persons, were killed and 18,800 injured in railway accidents in Great Britain. During the same time passengers, 5,632 employees and 973 other persons were killed and 84,155 injured by railroad accidents in the United States. The total mileage of the British railways is 22,000 miles, while that of the American ways is 213,904 miles. The American mileage is nine and one-half times that of Great Britain, while the total American railway fatalities is more than nine times the English total, total of injured on American rail is less than four and one-half times the English total. In addition to it must be considered that the danger and freight mileage on American railways is far greater than on British railways and that amount of business done in this country and the speed of the trains is so far greater than the business speed in Great Britain.

Far Reaching Result Of War

Special to the Whig.

Fresno, Cal., Sept. 22.—The war between Russia and Japan has had an unforeseen effect upon the raisin industry of California and the owners' interests in this part of the state have great difficulty in overcoming complications arising from the Japanese grape pickers. Japanese almost exclusively used for picking and sorting the grapes used in raisin raising. In former years there was always an abundance of Japanese that work, but when the war broke out so many of the men returned to Japan to serve in the army and the Russians, that Japanese he every kind, became extremely scarce on the coast. Now, that the pick season is on, the growers experience great difficulty in securing the red help for bringing in the harvest. The Southern Pacific and the Y. & N. V. railroads have been appealed to allow reductions in fare of 50 per cent on the coast who are willing come here to work in the vineyard. The result, so far, has not been satisfactory.
