TWO MASKED WOMEN

PERSONATE MEN FOR MANY YEARS.

Preferred Garb and Experience of Men to That of Women—They Were Game, and Good Partners.

The death of Kate Maher, at Sheridan, Mont., who for more than a quarter of a century masqueraded as a freighter, cowboy, gold seeker, and stage driver, and the arrest of Miss Jocie Williams, of Denver, by a posse in search of horse thieves near Vernal, Utah, have brought to light the struggle stories of two women who preferred the garb and the experience of men to the feminine attire and pursuit of their own sex.

Kate Maher was a woman in the fifties, and it was only due to an accident that her sex was discovered, and then her checkered career came to light. Miss Williams was exculpated of the crime of horse stealing, but was found in company of a well known horse thief. She has since gone to a small town in Colorado to live. Both women had characteristics in the way of accomplishments with a rifle or revolver which many men might have envied and in other ways easily counterfeited the masculine character which they assumed.

Kate Maher for thirty years lived, worked, ate, drank, and gambled with the men with whom she associated. By the death of her father she was left an orphan when yet in her teens. Women had a hard time in the west. Men did not. Kate said this to herself after several years' experience as servant, waiter in hotels, and school teacher in Nebraska and Colorado, and she must have asked herself this question: Why should I suffer hardships and privations when by simply putting on a man's clothing, shingling my hair, and assuming a man's name I might easily get profitable employment and put an end to the miserable way I have been living.

The question was no sooner asked than it was answered. Kate Maher disappeared, and a few days later Edward Donovan, a young man with slender, well knit figure, close cropped hair, slightly freckled, comely face, laughing gray eyes, and a frank, pleasing manner, took her place in the world. Nor did Kate Maher come to light again as such until the passing of the years had transformed the pretty young girl into a homely middle aged woman. In a lonely little mining camp in the west one day last fall a miner whose hands were soiled and work worn, and whose face bore the marks of dissipation, fell ill, and in the course of the illness the secret which Kate Maher had kept locked in her heart so many years came out. The sick miner was the same Kate Maher who had been left an orphan on the western border in the early days. When the woman regained her health she disappeared. Now she is dead.

In the guise of a man Kate Maher took up the work in which her father had lost his life—that of a freighter. She made numerous trips by waggon train across the plains and met with not a few thrilling adventures with the hostile Indians and the wild beasts that roamed the great unsettled and uncivilized spaces of the west between the Missouri river and the Rocky Mountains. She quickly learned to use her six-shooter with skill, and there was not in the border country a surer shot.

She did not long remain a freighter. The spirit of adventure took possession of her, and she suffered it to lead her whithersoever it would. Her life for the next few years was crowded with incident and experience. Indians were giving settlers on the border much trouble, and Kate Maher, under one of the numerous aliases she assumed, turned scout. From scouting she turned to stage driving, from stage driving to prospecting, from prospecting to cow punching, and from prospecting to working in the mines as a wage earner. She led a fast, exciting life during these years, and it was inevitable that she should lose the womanly sweetness and graces that once were hers. Her associates for the most part were rough, uncouth, dissipated men, and she naturally enough fell into their ways and became addicted to their habits. She took to smoking first. Drinking, swearing and gambling, followed in quick succession. And with her womanly sweetness she lost her comeliness. In the middle aged woman who died a few days ago there was little even suggestive of the pretty, slender girl of thirty-odd years ago, save perhaps her pluck, honesty, quick wit, and good nature.

Her life was marked by strange vicissitudes, and she changed her aliases many times, but she never denied her name to cover up a dark deed or to escape the payment of an honest debt. Under one name or another and under one masculine guise or another she drifted through the west for half a natural lifetime, but neither one place nor one set of friends ever knew her for long.

Once in a brush with Indians, when she was freighting, she was shot, and soon after recovery from her wound she was taken prisoner by a band of Indians and was given up for lost by the other members of the freighting outfit to which she belonged. One night, she contrived to elude the vigilance of the savages, and, mounting their fleetest pony, made her escape and rejoined her companions.

On another occasion, up in the Black Hills, she was singled out and challenged to mortal combat by a young chieftain eager to win his spurs. He recognized the young "paleface" as a crack shot of great nerve, and he argued that if he could get the scalp of so worthy a foe his name would be secure forever. The young woman in male attire promptly accepted the challenge. The Indian took the first shot and missed and she killed him.

Once she saved from the vengeance of a mob a man unjustly accused of murder. The man had shot and killed a miner in self-defense over a game of cards in a notorious gambling-house. Fearing trouble, he left the resort and disappeared from town. In the confusion of the moment most of those who saw the shooting got the impression that it was a cold-blooded murder.

Kate Maher, who was in the game of cards which gave rise to the trouble, knew that the man had killed the miner in self-defense, and she said so. The impression was popular, nevertheless, that she was mistaken, and when the man who did the shooting was caught a posse was formed to lynch him.

Despite his protestations of innocence, he was taken out to be executed. A rope was put around the man's neck and the leader of the posse asked him if he had anything to say before his death.

"I have something to say, gentlemen," said Kate Maher, stepping forward, with six shooter in hand, and deliberately removing the rope from the accused man's neck. "This man is not guilty. I saw the shooting with my own eyes. The first man who lays a hand on him will have to answer to me for it." Her gray eyes were blazing, and the posse knew she meant just what she said.

"By God! I reckon you're right," said one of them, "and I'll stand by you." Others came forward and expressed their belief that the accused was innocent, and the lynching did not take place.

Kate Maher's life on the range was not less picturesque and exciting than it was elsewhere. She was a superb horsewoman, and she soon became one of the best known cow punchers in the west. She learned to bust broncoes, to ride putlaws, to rope, tie, and cut out steers, to round up the herd, and to do all the other difficult things that cow punchers are wont to do.

Miss Williams was arrested at Vernal, Utah, with John Jones, a well-known horse thief. Three horses were in the possession of Jones, one of which she was riding astride, dressed in a man's costume and heavily armed.

Miss Williams has had a checkered career. She is twenty-two years old and was born in Denver, where she lived the greater part of her life. She is rather comely when clothed in the dress of her sex, and is fairly well educated. She is a typical western woman, however, and can ride and shoot like an expert. To stand in front of her pistol at 200 yards means certain death, it is said by those who are acquainted with her marksmanship. She formerly attended the Fruita high school.

Miss Williams, who is said to have also travelled under the aliases of McCarthy and Wilson, says she met Jones while on the way to Vernal, to which place she started with George Beamer and his wife. The meeting with Jones took place at the K ranch. It was a case of love at first sight, and no marriage license being easily obtainable or an officiating clergyman or justice of the peace at hand, they decided to dispense with legal formalities and start for the Uintah reservation together. They were on the road nearly two weeks before being discovered by the pursuing party. Miss Williams insists she did not know the horses Jones had in his possession were stolen property, but the authorities simply wink when this phase of the question is mentioned. Jones was very anxious about the young woman, and when told that she would not be prosecuted on the horse stealing charge gave a deep sigh of relief. "The girl is game," he said, "and she had nothing to do with this job, but she makes a dandy partner."

Suicided In Bombay.

London, Sept. 25.—A Bombay newspaper of September 8th, says John A. Booth, a Canadian, sensationally ended his life in Calcutta police station by taking a dose of poison he had secreted on his person. Booth had been arrested for collecting subscriptions purporting to be for the Japanese Red Cross Society. Letters written by Booth addressed to the commissioner of police contained a confession of a murder in Manila.

"IS DR. CHASE YOUR DOCTOR?"

Have You Learned to Cure Biliousness, Indigestion and Constipation With

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS?

A medicine, like a physician, is selected because of the actual results it is known to bring about. Most people are slow in choosing either physician or medicine until they know of cases in which they have proven successful.

In calling your attention to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills it is only necessary to point to their success in the past, for they are known in nearly every home.

By means of their direct and specific action on the liver—causing a healthful flow of bile—they regulate and enliven the action of the bowels and ensure good digestion in the intestines. At the same time they stimulate the kidneys in their work of filtering poisons from the blood.

This cleansing process set in action by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills means a thorough cure of biliousness, intestinal indigestion, torpid liver, kidney derangements and constipation.

It means a restoration of health, strength and comfort where there has been pain, weakness and suffering. It means a removal of the conditions which lead to backache, rheumatism, lumbago, Bright's disease, appendicitis and diabetes.

Samuel Calver, foreman G.T. R. freight sheds, Brockville, Ont., states: "I have used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills with the greatest success and can say for a certainty that they cured me of kidney trouble. I was all used up, had a bad back and was not able to work for some time. I began to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and they soon made me well again. I believe that if it had not been for this treatment I would not be at work to-day."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto. The portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

DID THE MURDER

DEMAND LED TO DISCOVERY OF ASSASSINS.

Had Agents Through Great Britain, France, Belgium and Holland—Letter of One of the Murderers Fell Into Hands of Police.

London, Sept. 28.—The Express publishes the following from Antwerp: The police believe they have got on the track of one of the most daring and dangerous gangs of criminals in Europe.

The discovery dates from the wrongly delivered letter reported a few days ago. A merchant of Antwerp inserted a business advertisement in one of the local papers, asking that replies should be addressed to a number at the newspaper office. By mistake the newspaper clerk gave him a letter addressed to a number very similar to his own.

To his amazement the merchant found that the letter concerned a murder committed in Paris. The writer complained that, although the murder had been duly performed, the proceeds were not at all such as he had been led to expect. He added instructions as to further robberies with violence designed for the near future.

The merchant gave the letter to the police, and they, working quietly, arrested at the same moment the man who wrote the letter and the man to whom it was addressed—one in Paris, the other in Antwerp.

Further investigations have shown that the men were members of a formidable gang of professional thieves, who never hesitated to murder their victims when such a course seemed desirable.

This gang of assassins has agents throughout France, Belgium and Holland, and, it is believed, also in Great Britain. Full particulars have been sent to the British police, and the police forces of the four countries concerned are working together on the case.

GANANOQUE NOTES.

The Funeral of the Late Miss Heaslip.

Gananoque, Sept. 27.—The funeral of the late Miss Ethel M. Heaslip, aged twenty-three years, took place from the family residence, Victoria avenue, to Willow Bank cemetery this afternoon. There was a service in St. Andrew's church, conducted by Rev. H. Gracey. The pallbearers were Messrs. Fred Watt, David Byers, Frank Corrigan, William Colton, Thomas Hawke and Lorne Yule. Miss Heaslip was a trained nurse in Watertown and a favorite with all who knew her. John Munden, who has for a number of years conducted a baker's business on King street, on account of his health, has been compelled to give up baking and has accepted a position as book-keeper with the Canada Cabinet company.

Miss Bertha Pugh, Kingston, is spending a few days in Gananoque.

Clifford Sine, the well-known proprietor of the corner drug store, accompanied by his wife, are spending a few days at his old home in Cobden. A great many of our local sports are getting ready for the world's fair at Lansdowne on Thursday and Friday. C. A. Watt, representing the Skinner Manufacturing company, Limited, is out on a business trip westward. At the King's Daughters' meeting last week, Miss Grace Darling, was chosen as delegate to attend the convention at Ottawa.

There are two or three cases of diphtheria in town; some of the patients are reported to be in a very critical condition. It is said, on good authority, that there is not a net on the river between Kingston and Brockville. We are not just prepared to swear to it, however, at present.

Celebrating Silver Anniversary.

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 28.—To celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of the Women's Auxiliary in the Episcopal diocese of western New York several hundred Episcopal women from that district met this morning at St. Luke's church. At the same time the regular annual meeting of the auxiliary will be held. Mrs. Philip Nichols, of Geneva, the president of the organization, occupied the chair at the opening session this morning, and delivered her annual address. Several other addresses were delivered by Mrs. Thomas B. Berry, Mrs. Charles Potter, Mrs. Van der Beek, Mrs. Allan Holloway and others. Bishop Walker was present and will remain here several days to deliver an address before the meeting. To-morrow evening there will be a reception and banquet.

Eloped With Boarder.

Huntingdon, Que., Sept. 28—On Friday night, when a well-known resident of Huntingdon returned to his home he found that his wife was missing. Later he found a note from her saying she had gone away with a young man who was boarding with them. Taking advantage of the husband's absence the pair got away to St. Stanislaus, a small station on the N. Y.C., and have not been heard of since. The woman is thirty-two years of age, while her paramour is scarcely twenty-one. Both the husband and missing wife come of good families and the elopment has created a big sensation.

George Ham To Rest.

Montreal, Sept. 28.—George H. Ham, of the C.P.R., has left for England. He will be abroad about two months. Mr. Ham is slowly recovering from his lengthy illness, but he has been ordered by his physician to cross the ocean in the hope that the trip may restore his health, a change of scene and the invigorating breezes of the sea being required. He will visit Scotland before returning and spend as much time as possible yachting and cruising along the Scottish coast.

Ordered or ready-made corsets of every description. Perfect fit guaranteed. New York Dress Reform.

BASEBALL MATCH.

The Contest Was Won By Kingston.

Kingston defeated the combined Watertown-Cape Vincent team, at Wolfe Island fair, Wednesday afternoon. The score was seven to six, and the game very close and exciting.

Sporting Notes.

Byers led the Eastern League in batting.

Granites won the Hargraft trophy match from the Victorias.

Although displeased at the schedule, the Tigers will remain in the O.R.F.U.

The interscholastic meet will be held on the 'Varsity field on October 6th.

DuMoulin and McKeand are expected to turn out with the Tigers this week.

Chicago in the American League, is now only seven points behind the Philadelphia club.

Baltimore papers allege that Rochester did not try very hard to beat Providence in the last series.

Gilbert Rice has been appointed captain of the senior London team, and "Billy" Rowlands of the junior.

It is likely that a junior O.R.F.U. district will be formed in the east. Three teams have already entered. The season will begin on October 4th.

Malcolm Cochran, who will act as quarter-back on the senior Toronto Argonaut team, was elected captain to succeed P. B. McArthur, the latter having resigned.

Catcher Bill Marshall, who will return to the Giants next year, has been very effective this season with the stick for the Minneapolis team of the American Association.

While Joe McGinnity has not made as good a record this season as he did last, he cannot be accused of soldiering. He has pitched more games than any National League twirler.

In a practice game at Ottawa on Saturday between Ottawa College and the St. Patrick's team, the former won by thirty-six points to nothing. The St. Patrick's team is composed of mostly all the old college players.

That is a fine collection of youngsters Coach Clancy has under his wing. When it is considered a good part of the college team is composed of raw material all the more credit is due the redoubtable "King."—Ottawa Free Press.

Thrift Burnside, the old 'Varsity captain, who practically originated the new game, assisted in putting the Toronto Argonaut players through their paces yesterday. Great attention was paid to tackling and running with the ball.

Foster Rockwell, for three years Yale's quarter-back, but kept from playing with Yale again because he played a minute in the Yale-Trinity game four years ago, returned to college yesterday, donned his uniform, and joined the coaches.

The Victorias will have one of the strongest wing lines in the O.R.F.U. this season, with such men to pick from as Brown, snap back; Bardgett, Mack, Yorke, Whale, Forbes, Brockbank, McWhirter, Yeamans, besides several speedy outside wings.

Callaghan, the former star of the Ottawa College half-back line, made his first appearance in McGill uniform yesterday afternoon, and put up a rattling game at centre half with Capt. Zimmerman and Billy Richards on either side.

A. MacG. Young, one of the most promising of McGill's football squad, was put out of the game yesterday afternoon by a nasty accident. Zimmerman was also forced to retire to the side lines from a kick in the head, but will probably be out at the next practice.

Joe Tinker and Johnny Evers recently had a bloody rough-and-tumble fight on the field during a game the Chicago clubs were playing at Bedford, Ind., the home of Bob Wicker. They rolled over the ground slugging and clawing each other until they were pried apart by Wicker.

THE CHICKEN THIEF

At Myers' Cave Proved to Be a Large Owl.

Myers' Cave, Sept. 26.—Sedore Bros. have been in the neighborhood with their threshing machine and have done a rushing business, grain having turned out better than was at first anticipated. Potato digging is the order of the day and quite a number of farmers complain of the rot. Corn is an abundant crop, and the young people are looking forward to some good times, husking the same. T. D. Perry, who has been visiting friends in Montreal, for the past two weeks, arrived home last week, accompanied by Mrs. Perry's nephew, Fabien Gauthier, Charles McGregor and daughter, Mollie, are at present visiting friends in Perth and Balderson.

D. Gray, having had quite a number of his young fowls taken for several nights in succession, set a trap near his barn to catch the intruder if possible. He was surprised on going out one morning to find a large horned owl fast in the trap. Mr. Gray intends sending the bird to a taxidermist. A. Dellyea has gone to blacksmith in the Big Dipper mine. Miss Edna Mitchell, who has been visiting friends in and around Napanee, returned home on Sunday last. A baby girl has come to brighten the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Curtis. Mrs. D. Gray and children are at present the guests of her mother, Mrs. J. C. Mitchell. Master Willie Lloyd, of Richmond township, is at present visiting friends in and around the cave. Several young men have gone to Partridge Creek and Bancroft to work for the Rathbun company, of Deseronto. Mrs. J. Dellyea, who has been on the sick list, is getting better. Masters James and Oscar Perry, who have been very ill, are slowly convalescing. T. Dellyea has gone to work for J. Critchley at his mill, at Myers' Cave. There is quite a lot of sickness in the neighborhood, severe colds being very prevalent.

Handsome Hats

Kingston ladies by the score viewed with pleasure and satisfaction one of the prettiest exhibits of smart and up-to-date FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC MILLINERY ever shown by us or any other firm in Central Canada. If pleased expressions and flattering remarks mean orders when desired, our artistic milliners, under the management of Mrs. Adams, so well and favorably known in our city, will certainly be kept busy for many weeks to come.

CRUMLEY BROS.

Collins Bay Notes.

Collins Bay, Sept. 28.—A number from this vicinity attended the fair at Napanee on Wednesday last. Miss Jessie Halliday, trained nurse of Albany, N.Y., is visiting her friend, Miss Florence Marsh. Miss Ella Kiel, Napanee, is spending a few days under the parental roof. A. Clement spent Sunday at his brother's, D. Clement, Hawley. Mrs. B. Kiel and family have moved into D. Wright's house. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley, Gananoque, were guests at H. Rankin's a few days last week. Dr. Rankin and son, Reid, of Brooklyn, N.Y., have returned home after a short visit with relatives here.

All the new fall styles in Slater boots for men are here. See them at the Lockett Shoe Store.
