Reproaching Dr. Ross.

Dr. Ross is made to say he would not accept the office of medical health officer except on the nomination of his party, and not then at $100 a year. The fact is that Dr. Ross did not say this to Mr. Carson. All along he has been resisting the peculiar tactics of the machine. He went to one party meeting, only to find that the object was to discuss how the late Dr. Fee might be removed from office and another physician be appointed to his place. Dr. Ross at once intimated that he would not lend himself to the scheme and left the meeting. The caucus then made its choice. Again, and subsequently it confirmed its former decision, though under no obligation to do so.

Meanwhile Dr. Ross' name was mentioned in connection with the vacancy in the health department, and he did not forbid anyone putting him in nomination. On the contrary he was given to understand that while another had secured the machine's nomination, he would be given the support of several aldermen, and before the meeting of the council intimated that he would accept $100 for the service the office called for under the circumstances.

Dr. Ross had better, therefore, be left alone. He has been badly used by some of his political friends, and they will probably hear from him if they invite it. The deputations which called upon him after the council meeting on Monday evening, to reproach him for alleged "alliance" with the liberals, heard something to their advantage. They will not be so bumptious again.

Saving Money A Joke.

At the meeting of the city council Monday evening, an alderman, an aspirant for the mayoralty, said the proposition to appoint a medical health officer at $100 a year was simply a joke. He had to say something, and his language by no means expressed his chagrin.

The members of the council who favoured a larger salary did not anticipate the amendment and their depressed attitude clearly indicated their surprise and dismay. Some of them wanted to pose as economists, but the budget was under discussion they talked as if they would like to save the people's money. With them the salary question was the important one. And yet, when the occasion presented itself for a genuine saving-for-two doctors were willing to accept the office at a nominal salary-they whispered out the little "you" or "may" which committed them to extravagance.

The revelation of one evening is enough to make the ratepayers wonder what their representatives in the council really meant. The board of works, which has been limping along all year and giving the most remarkable evidence of its incapacity, wanted to build an asphalt walk on Ontario street, from Barrack street to the Cataract bridge. The government was asked to contribute to the cost of a permanent walk, abutting its property, and declined on the ground that new barracks were soon to be built, and that the walk would not be necessary.

The traffic from the end of the walk on Ontario street, west side, to the bridge will remain in any case, and the government should not be exempt from liability for its share of the expense. But the asphalt walk from Barrack street to the barrack yard gate is not a necessity, and should not be built at the city's expense. So the larger number of the aldermen felt, and still members of the works' department exhibited considerable irritation because their judgment should be questioned.

The spending of public money, in some way, and wastefully if in no other way, seems to be a bad with the party which is now in power, which is opposed to the machine in municipal affairs and persistently uses it with a special delight. Why should the council not build walks where they are not wanted, leaving places where they are wanted unvisited? Why should the City Hall not be torn to pieces in order that a committee may be gratified with reconstructing it according to its ideas? Why should not work be done on the job lots plan, even in violation of the city-by-laws, when the operation gives a peculiar pleasure to the chairman of committees?

Anything to make the money fly! Suppose it does belong to the people, and suppose some of them find it hard to contribute their proportion to the city's taxes, what matter! The gentlemen in power must be diverted. They must feel the thrill of money-spending. The indulgence in their favorite pastime makes the council of

A TROLLEY TRAGEDY

FATAL CURVE AT QUEEN AND MC CAUL STREETS.

Rockwood Terribly Broken to Pieces—Car Ploughed Along After Accident—Was Running Too Fast at the Time.

Toronto, Oct. 10.—Later developments in the accident, causing the death of Cyrus O. Rockwood, a stereotyper on the Telegram, have shown no evidence of negligence either of motorman or the deceased. Shortly before eight o'clock, in the morning, Mr. Rockwood left his home, Henry street, on a bicycle, en route to his work. When coming down McCaul street, he crossed Queen street, and followed his closely till he reached Queen street. The curve of the tracks from McCaul to Queen is a sharp one, and as happened a year ago, here, the car jumped the track, and crashed into the store on the corner.

Rockwood crossed ahead of the car, thinking that he could make the turn before it. At this moment the car jumped the track. The motorman clapped his bell for him to get out of the road, but he still kept ahead, and apparently paid little attention to the warning. The motorman realizing danger, attempted to stop the car, but the brakes would not hold and the car went on. At this time the car became rattled, and the left track, catching Rockwood and dragging him to the curb. Again it started its name, "The Fatal Curve." The car was in charge of Motorman John Dean and Conductor Herbert L. Chesman. When the car was jacked up and the body of the unfortunate taken from under the massive truck, two doctors were on the scene, but they pronounced death was certain. The deceased was thirty-seven years of age, and is survived by a wife and two children, aged seven and ten. He was president of the Local Stereotypers' Union and was senior warden of Stevenson lodge, A. F. & A. M.

The passengers on the car were uninjured. After it left the track it ploughed along and across Queen street for thirty-five yards. The speed of the car is said to have been fifteen miles per hour. Frequent comments have been made on the speed of cars on main thoroughfares. Rumors were current that the car was not up to equipment, but there was no difficulty in running the car to the barns after it was placed on the track. The rails had no flanges on the curve and this, with the speed of the car, was the cause of its leaving the track.—A. E. P.

Editorial Notes.

Lawson is after the big three insurance companies, and is going to control them. How he is going to accomplish this is, however, not at all apparent.

The provincial secretary does not know of any means whereby the municipalities can be compelled to build refuse for their poor. Cannot legislation be passed to that effect?

Rev. Mr. Simpson, the alliance leader, must be a hypnotist. There is no other way of accounting for the enormous sums he collects for mission purposes. On Sunday, in New York, at two services, he gathered up $80,000.

The agitation now is that the life insurance companies be limited in the extent of their business. This is the practice of the English companies which will not receive business when they have reached a certain stage of growth.

The civic machine has become offensive when it seeks to suppress any man's ambitions and prevent him seeking office without its permission. "Smash the machine," was the favourite expression a year ago. It should be revived.

The Ottawa Journal suggests that the footballer who is guilty of brutal acts should be at once and permanently ruled off the field. The game, says the Journal, is in the hands of its friends. They alone can save or kill it.

The salary paid to the medical health officer and authorized by the council, does not cover horse hire. For many years the board of health, has been making grants for horse hire, and it is presumed that it will continue to do this.

A year ago the conservatives in the council nominated a liberal for the office of city auditor as against Mr. Miller, the present occupant of the office. The return of the compliment in the case of the medical health officer is the occasion of a protest from the triumvirate in whose keeping is the honor of the council.

Curious Tract of Land.

The French have in their possession a bit of land that is probably the smallest and most unique in situation any foreign territory. The tourist arriving at Calcutta is early advised to pay it a visit, as it lies but six or seven miles away and is rightfully considered an attraction. Chandernagor, which is the name of the tiny province, is an unusual circumstance of finding a tract of land, containing but three and a half square miles, situated within British India, under French government, and because of its antiquity, it has been called to them as far back as the seventeenth century. One of the quaintest and oddest features is an old Dutch cemetery, proof that this nation supplied the first settlers.

Where Advertising Fails.

Philadelphia Record.
There are some conditions under which advertising is bound to prove a failure. When addressed to intelligent people it cannot successfully be used to perpetuate a fraud. Publicity cannot win the confidence of those who know by previous experience that the advertiser is a liar and a cheat. Sell a man a gold brick and no amount of printed persuasion will induce him to buy another. Spending money for honest advertising is like casting bread upon the waters, sending money for dishonest advertising is like pouring it down a rat-hole.

GRAVE DISEASES, DUE TO STANDING

Facts About Miss Merkle's Dangerous Illness and Complete Cure

Have you ever thought why so many women or girls rather walk an hour than stand still for ten minutes?

Miss Margaret Merkle

It is because most women suffer from some derangement of their delicate organism, the discomfort of which is less trying when they are in motion than when standing.

In some states laws compel employers to provide resting places for their female employees.

But no amount of law can remedy the hard tasks of these women. They must get the strength which this medicine demands on the risk of serious diseases and the surgeon's knife.

Read about the experience of Margaret Merkle, 275 8d Street, Watke, Wis.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham—

"Gradual loss of strength, nervous bearing-down pains and extreme irritability compelled me to seek medical advice. My doctor said I had ovarian trouble and advised me to get an operation. I refused and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I soon found all the good things said about this medicine were true. The ulcers healed, backache, headache and nervousness disappeared, and in a short time I was strong, vigorous and perfectly well. I am now working girl who suffers with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a vegetable tonic which creates and strengthens the entire female organism, and will produce the same beneficial results in the case of any sick woman as with Miss Merkle.

LIFE PRISONER REBELS
Shots at Jail; Wounds Fatal.
Doctor.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 11.—John H. Brand, under life sentence for participation in the robbery of Mattway's saloon nearly a year ago, which killed Matthew Murray, a passenger on the Great Northern, was killed, but attempted to kill Sheriff Smith. Physician Corson, jumped in front of the jailer, was over the right eye.

Sheriff Smith ran to the jailer's aid and fired twice at Hildebrand. The prisoner dropped his gun and overpowered. Jailor Wise, who unarm, in the meantime fled before the range of Hildebrand's gun. Hildebrand's attack on jailer began as soon as they entered jail office, was for the purpose of wresting the keys from the jailer. He was carrying the keys in his pocket, and Hildebrand made a desperate effort to reach them. When he was thrown aside by the jailer, Hildebrand drew the gun from his right pocket and opened fire.
