ROSE VALLEY.

over people associate upon simple human conditions not gauged by their incomes. They come to feel an interest in and a responsibility for every detail of the common life. One of the master workmen of Rose Valley made for pure love of it two carved gateposts for the entrance to the shops. He took two massive logs and carved the end of each into a bear and set them where the lanes lead off the main road. They were one of the joys and prides of the village. But one morning the people awoke to find the bears gone; sawed off the logs by vandals. The whole community was stirred to indignation by this ruthless theft. A vigorous search was instigated and the bears were finally located. Swarthmore College is just over the hill from Rose Valley. Some ruffians of the Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity had stolen the bears and had them in their clubrooms, where they were found by the constable. The bears came back, but not to their posts; they are now in the Guild Hall as mementoes to the refining influence of college fraternities.

But the negative phase of the Rose Valley spirit, which was expressed in protest at this vulgar outrage finds its contrast and verification in the enthusiasm over the Guild Hall, which is as monumental to the rustic as the converted by architectural magic and concentrated labor into a most beautiful common home. Here the villagers meet one another without the restraint incident to assemblies at private homes; here the monthly "folk-mote," or town meeting for discussions of the business of common local interest, is held; here are given lectures, plays, concerts and dancing parties, and here are celebrated the annual festivals in which the whole village, men, women and children, partake, to the present number of nearly 100. The Guild Hall, a communal possession, it was remodelled, finished, decorated and furnished wholly by love labor. Almost every man in Rose Valley did some actual work upon it just for the joy of it. The communal Christmas tree of last Yule-tide, the first at the hall was finished, was like a holiday frolic and a dedication of the beautiful common house.

But the great social event at Rose Valley is the New Year's festival. On the 31st of December, the Guild Hall was the scene of this annual community celebration. All the village and a dozen villagers were present. At about 4.30, when the company had assembled, the Christmas tree candles were lighted. The illuminated tree, with the blazing lights in the big fireplace, helped the holiday cheer. The children of the local kindergarten sang songs about the tree. Every family had sent presents to the hall for the children which were distributed to the happy youngsters by Alice Bamber Stephens. At seven o'clock the company sat down to the community supper, after which the tables were cleared, the chairs rearranged and a concert given upon the stage, followed by a one-act play enacted by Rose Valley actors. The old year was watched out by those who stopped to conclude the festivities with a dance.

Although talented visitors to Rose Valley never fail to make their contribution to Guild Hall fundings, yet there is so much talent—musical, dramatic and literary—of exceptional quality among the residents themselves that they seldom can import anything better than that they already have. The children of the valley are growing up to appreciate the very best things in art, music and literature, for they see and hear nothing else.

When one contemplates the life at Rose Valley he finds himself wondering why all people do not live this way—at any rate, all who can. It brings a sense of infinite relief to get away from the dyspeptic conditions of town houses, crowded with indigestible goods, into a place where every decoration is made with a conscious purpose and not designed merely to hide something or fill a gap. There is no difference in essence between art and life; one is simply the expression of the other. All the confusions and misunderstandings about art arise from cutting art off from life, and regarding

Matters That Interest Everybody.—Notes From All Over—Little Of Everything Easily Read

The Perth Curling club is making arrangements to commence building the new addition to its rink. The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James Rodger, Middleville, occurs on October 23rd. C. C. Forsyth, organist and choir-master of Knox church, Perth, has been engaged by a Peterboro congregation.

Allen Jeroy, Gananoque, while trolling up the north channel, had the good luck of catching a twenty-six pound muskellunge. Willard Bond, for the past two years junior clerk in the Bank of Ottawa, Lanark, has been transferred to the Parry Sound branch. Two Madoc lads appeared in court and were fined for destroying property at the model school, and writing in profane language on pupils' books.

Dr. Tuttle, Tweed, narrowly escaped death last week. His horse, frightened at a train, ran down an embankment into the river. Both master and animal swam ashore, though with great difficulty.

Miss B. Mac See, Gananoque, who has recently undergone an operation for appendicitis at the Presbyterian hospital, New York City, has fully recovered and is again able to resume her duties. Miss Alice Pepper has resigned her position as head nurse in the Lady Stanley Institute operating room, Ottawa, and is taking a vacation at her home in Lanark, prior to leaving for New York to take a post-graduate course.

HORRIBLE END.

She Was Burnt to Death in Her Home. Chicago, Oct. 13.—A blind woman was burned to death in her kitchen last night, while her dead old mother sat placidly rocking and mending in an adjoining room, hearing nothing of the dying daughter's cries of agony. The blind woman was Mrs. Frances Harvey, a widow, forty-one years of age. The mother is Mrs. W. Vierer, eighty-one years of age. With them lived Mrs. Harvey's eighteen-year-old daughter Emma, who works in a downtown store, and has supported the family of three. The daughter reached home just as Mrs. Harvey was lying.

Mrs. Harvey has been blind from childhood, but she knew the house by heart and had been accustomed to doing the cooking. Her daughter placed her hand on her mother's head and was at hand every evening and night to attend to any details that had escaped the mother's care. The blind woman had placed the kettle on the gas stove last night, when she turned on the gas, coming in contact with the hot stove, became ignited. She cried out in pain as the fire spread over her clothing and fought the flames desperately. Through it all Mrs. Vierer in her chair wept and rocked and hummed a tune faintly. The cries of her daughter were without avail. When her daughter returned from her day's work Mrs. Harvey lay dying on the floor.

The Fiftieth Year. Ameliasburg, Oct. 10.—Our fair was a decided success. It was its fiftieth year. The day was fine, and three thousand people were inside the grounds. The display of flowers, fruit and vegetables was the best in years, while the show of stock and swine was up to the standard. It would be too bad if in the attempt to centralize the fairs, the municipal grant was taken away from our township. Several meetings have been held for the purpose of sending a local opinion to the council to request a local vote here next January. Special services are being held by Rev. Mr. Pope at Redversville. Cement stones have been placed at each door of the town hall, the roof has been shingled, and a metallic ceiling placed in the whole inside freshly painted. A tea meeting was given by the ladies of Victoria church last evening. The programme was good, and it was a decided success. Apple packing in this district is well under way, over half the apples being packed. It will be very hard owing to the scarcity of help to pack them all.

Headache and Sore Eyes. Nine times in ten have their root in frontal catarrh. A simple thing to cure if you use "Catarrhorm"—you breathe the medicated air—Catarrhorm does the rest. Failure never known.

New York, Oct. 14.—The coming visit of the British squadron, under the command of Prince Battenberg, will be the occasion of an unusual display of goodwill and friendly sentiments. Extensive preparations for the reception and entertainment of the visitors are being made, and if the program is carried out, the British visitors will have no reason

WHEN buying a range the oven construction should be your first consideration: Its baking and roasting qualities are of the utmost importance to you. A poor oven means ruined food, waste of coal, late meals and many heartaches. The Imperial Oxford Range is the result of years of experience and scientific study. It has taken years to evolve it, and years of use have proven it without a peer. There are a number of exclusive features in the construction of the that give it advantages found in no other. Of these exclusive features the most important is the heat-diffusing oven flue. This flue draws the cold air in from outside the range, superheats it and distributes it through perforations in the top of the oven. This insures fresh, heated air evenly distributed throughout the oven, the moist vapors of the oven being drawn off by openings provided for the purpose.

The Imperial Oxford Range, by this construction, gives a dry, even heat, which roasts or bakes an article thoroughly and evenly, the heat in all parts of the oven is equal, the fire side being no hotter than the other side.

If your dealer doesn't handle the Imperial Oxford Range, write to us and we will send you our catalogue and tell you where you can see the range.
