DIED AS HE WISHED

MISS TERRY GLAD HE FINISHED NIGHT'S WORK.

Suggests Municipal Theatre as Monument—Last Lines Were "Into Thy Hands, Oh God."

SIR HENRY IRVING.
London, Oct. 16.—Seldom has the death of a public man in England called out such a universal expression of sorrow as has followed the tragically sudden death of Sir Henry Irving, at Bradford, on Friday night. Appreciations, histories of his career, and stories of his many-sided activities fill the newspapers.

His last words on the stage as the curtain was rung down on the death of Becket, "Into thy hands, oh God, into thy hands!" were practically the last he uttered, as he never spoke after his collapse in the hall of the hotel, where he died.

Members of the company now recall that Sir Henry showed signs of exhaustion and overstrain during the past week, which did not attract particular attention at the time.

During the performance of "The Belle" at Bradford, Thursday, the veteran actor delivered many passages seated, instead of his customary freedom of movement on the stage. Once or twice last night, toward the close of the performance, Sir Henry sought to support himself on the audience, but in response to recalls of the stage he appeared before the curtain and acknowledged the cordiality of his reception.

Flags are half-masted over the town hall and other public buildings at Bradford to-day, and telegrams are pouring in from all parts of the country.

Ellen Terry was greatly distressed at the news. She said:

"I know all this has happened as he wished. He worked to the very last in full possession of his faculties. It rejoices me that he finished his evening's work. His last words on the stage were: "Through night to light, into thy hands, oh God, into thy hands."

"His last expressed wish, the wish of his life, was for a municipal theatre, where everything would be of the first order, where the standard of true drama, as distinguished from miscellaneous entertainment, would be successfully upheld. A realization of this wish would be a fitting monument to him."

FALL PRUNING

Of Vines and Bush Fruits, By H. L. Hutt, B.S.A.

As soon as the leaves are off in the autumn much of the pruning of vines and bush fruits may be done to better advantage than by leaving it till next spring. Much, of course, depends upon the locality. In southern sections where no winter protection of vines and bushes is needed, the pruning may be left till some convenient time during the early spring, but in northern sections, where grape vines and berry bushes have to be laid down in the fall and covered with earth or other covering before winter sets in, it is advisable to do the pruning before such covering is necessary.

Current and gooseberry bushes are so hardy that they need no winter protection, even in the north, and they may be pruned in the spring that it is well to have them pruned in the fall. It is best to grow them in the bush form, allowing about six canes to the bush. And as the best fruit is borne on wood not more than three years old, it is well to adopt a renewal system of pruning whereby one-third of the bush is renewed each year. This can be done by cutting out two of the oldest canes each year, and allowing two of the new canes to take their place. In this way the whole bush is renewed in three years. The ends of the new growth should be shortened enough to keep the bush symmetrical.

Raspberries and blackberries have perennial root systems, but the canes that is, the roots live through a number of years, but the canes die after fruiting at the end of the second season. Some kinds have more or less of an annual fruiting habit; that is, they bear fruit and die in one season. With such bushes, then, the annual pruning consists in cutting out all the canes which have borne fruit. The new canes should be thinned out so as to leave only six or eight of the best canes to each bush, or if the bushes are grown in the hedge row instead of the hill system, the thinning should leave the canes six or eight inches apart in the row.

As to whether the tops of raspberry or blackberry bushes should be headed back in the fall depends largely upon the locality. In sections where the canes do not kill back in the winter, they may be headed back in the fall; but where the canes have to be laid down and covered, or where they kill back more or less during the winter, it is best to leave the heading back till spring, when they can be cut back to some wood. The height to which some canes should be cut back varies from three to five feet, depending upon the vigor of the bush.

There are almost as many systems of training the grape vine as there are kinds of grapes, but for northern sections one of the low arm renewal systems is best, as this facilitates the laying down and covering of the vines where that is necessary. In northern sections the Kniffin or one of the other arm systems is more convenient. Whatever method of training may be adopted, the main object of the annual pruning is to remove all superfluous wood, leaving only just what is sufficient to bear full crop of fruit. Thirty or forty buds is usually all that is necessary, and these should be evenly distributed over the vine.

A Strange Freak.
It appears that Carmarthen jail just now holds a prisoner who puzzles the authorities. He is declared to be really a living statue. He is a butcher named Schreiner, awaiting trial on a charge of attempting to murder a lady and gentleman with whom he had been in service at Tynmawr. It is said that Schreiner will remain motionless for a couple of days, and then move a limb by a warden. His stolidity is remarkable. No subterfuge, no attempt at a sudden flight has succeeded in making him flinch or move an eyelid when in his moods. Opinions differ as to his mental state. The man says "The Western Mail" absolutely correct, all kinds of food left in his cell, and the doctor has to forcibly feed him by means of a tube. He will lie on his stomach for a whole day without moving a muscle; sometimes he is stretched out on his back; at other times he erect in a corner of his cell. At all times he takes not the slightest notice of anything that occurs in his vicinity. There are many ways known to prison officials whereby men acting on the part of a prisoner, however clever and collected, can be detected, but all these devices have failed in the present case. He will not utter a word or sound, never varies his vacant stare into space, and has to be dressed and undressed as if he were a bronze statue.

Will Consider National Purity.
La Crosse, Wis., Oct. 17.—Delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada are assembled here to take part in the National Purity conference, which opened here to-day. The attendance is very large and nearly all prominent societies and organizations which are active in promoting and furthering public purity of morals are represented by delegates. Great interest in the conference is manifested and it is believed that it will prove the most important of its kind ever held in this country. The purpose of the conference is to consider and discuss the present situation in the country as pertains to the cause of purity. Resolute work, preventive methods, the traffic in girls, law enforcement, divorce, race suicide, state toleration of the social evil, additional laws now needed, will each and all receive attention, while methods of agitation and education for promoting a higher standard of purity in family and individual life will be recommended.

Will Isolate Prisoners.
Vladivostok, Oct. 17.—Barracks are being constructed at Egershed, a suburb, and arrangements are being made to receive prisoners there. It is desired to keep prisoners entirely isolated from the population. Special baths are being built and winter clothing for 60,000 men is to be brought here.

Members of a Georgian Bay survey party will winter about six miles from Arnprior, Ont., near Sand Point. A perfect fitting pair of glasses, satisfaction guaranteed, at Dr. Chown's drug store.

Fairly Good Crops.
Venchar, Oct. 14.—The much needed rain on the 11th, did much good in the way of stopping drier fires, which would have done much damage had they continued dry again. The week has been for two weeks past. Geo. Jackson, who cut his foot a few weeks ago, is able to be around again. The three-year-old child of Alexander Jackson, scalded badly by the upsetting of a teapot, is improving slowly. The scalding will be nearly all done in this vicinity to-day. Three machines have been at it this week. All report a good yield of oats, but poor peas and wheat. There was very little of the latter sown. Farmers report good crops of potatoes, but about one-third affected with blight. The sound ones keep good after they are dug. Miss Eleanor Ball has returned from visiting friends at Verona and also her brother, Simon, who was in Kingston General Hospital, and had a successful operation on the 8th inst. for appendicitis. Miss Mary Kittner arrived from Bancroft, Monday, to spend the winter months at her home here. Dr. Chant called on T. Ferguson whose health is not improving. Mrs. William John and Miss Martha called on friends in town, Thursday. Joseph Marquardt and sister, Katie, spent Sunday at G. W. Fox's. Miss Dora Marquardt was the guest of Miss Christina Chatsworth, Sunday.

Three Kinds Of Football.
New York Times.
It is maintained by those British missionaries of a gentler football who have now arrived on the British coast that the American game is needlessly rough and dangerous, and they have come to commend to us the "association game," which is assured to soften the manners, nor suffer to be ferocious.

That is not what the British opinion. In fact, it is a British saying that in the rugby game you kick the ball, in the association game you kick the man if you cannot kick the ball, while in the Irish game you kick the ball if you cannot kick the man.

Curious Railway Custom.
A curious custom of ancient origin prevailed until quite recently among the employees of the Highland company. All new uniforms served to the staff were soaked for several days in water, the object being to improve their appearance. A circular, however, was lately addressed to the men requesting them to abandon this process as the contractors declined to do anything with the uniforms when they were returned for alteration after being so treated.
