Mercantile News. Sewspapers exist because there is a universal demand for news. Advertising exists for a like reason. Aside from the question of income, a newspaper could no more get along without advertising than it could vithout reports of current events. To cut out the sporting news, of the telegraphic news, or even the local news, would make less serious inroads on a paper's circulation than to cut out advertising. Consumers want to know what's on the market, and they read the news- & GANONG'S G. papers to find out. Merchants who reise to enlighten them get little of
