ODESSA AT MERCY OF RABBLE NUMBERING 50,000.

Kief Governor Resigns Because Unable to Stop Riots—Czar's Portrait Mutilated—Odessa Mob More Criminal Than Revolutionary.

London, Nov. 2.—Almost numberless reports from Russia leave the impression that the situation, in general, has become worse during the past twenty-four hours. The riotous mob in Odessa, seen to have been far more criminal than revolutionary. The conflicts between the people and Cossacks at Warsaw, Moscow, and elsewhere have not led, so far as the telegrams tell, to any increase in the revolutionary work, though popular indignation, while there is evidence, in many directions, that hunger is doing its inevitable work among the strikers, numbers of whom would renege work if they dared. In some cases, especially in St. Petersburg, many have returned already. At the same time, the mob continues to continue to declare themselves irrevocable. At one meeting in St. Petersburg a resolution was adopted, demanding, in addition to the demands formulated on Tuesday, the abdication of the czar, and the establishment of a republic, on socialist lines. The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Telegraph says that as time passed, they get to appreciate the enormous loss which they have fallen to its share, it is extremely probable that the people will set themselves to profit by the new condition, and nearly everything warrants the belief that as soon as the government is fully constituted, progressive efficacious organs in the provinces, and can apply the principles it has taken for the basis of its policy, things will likely to move smoothly and satisfactorily.

A Kief despatch, dated yesterday, says: "The governor-general has resigned, because he was not permitted to take strong measures to prevent the riots. Indescribable scenes occurred, last night, when the mob invaded the town hall, and tore down the portrait of the emperor, the troops fired to disperse the mob, killing forty persons. Three hundred of the rioters were arrested. During the conflict the troops were dismounted, thrown to the ground, and many of them shot. A lawyer, named Rattner, who cut the emperor's portrait from its frame, humped out the face, put his head through the opening and hurled the mob from the balcony of the town hall. Twenty a band of workers invaded Rattner's house, and tore him to pieces. Jew-baiting started at midnight, and continued until morning unchecked.

"A despatch from Odessa, describes that city as having 'experienced a dreadful day, the defenseless populace being at the mercy of a howling and armed rabble of 50,000 men. The Jews made a feeble resistance, and their sacred graves, established in venerable sanctities. Rumor puts the number of killed and wounded as high as 2,000, many by bombs, which the mob used wholesale. Not until late at night, when the mob's work had gone unchecked for hours, were the troops brought out, and quiet somewhat restored."

A Negro Doctor Jailed A White Woman.

AN EDINBURGH CASE

THE JURY GAVE HER GOOD DAMAGES.

Plaintiff in Breach of Promise Suit Describes How Doctor Went Another Woman After Courting Her.

London, Nov. 2.—Miss Bella Mackinnon, forty-nine years old, sued a negro doctor for breach of promise in the Edinburgh court of sessions. The defendant was named Joseph Skeele Meyers Nurse. He is forty-two years old and a native of Barbadoes. He now lives in St. Kitts in the West Indies. His former residence was York Mansions, Battersea Park London.

Miss Mackinnon was a friend of a Miss Wilson, who in 1891 married the doctor. They went to the West Indies, and two years later the wife died. The doctor then began a correspondence with Bella Mackinnon, and in 1898 he returned to Edinburgh. Miss Mackinnon met him at the station, and he stayed at her house as a boarder from February until May.

He went to the West Indies once more, and the affectionate correspondence between the Scottish spinster and the negro was resumed. By the first mail he wrote: "Dearest Bella—I could not let this day pass without sending you a line as promised. I was greatly grieved at leaving you, and often wondered what you were about. I missed your loving attention all through the night, and at breakfast this morning you have missed me, but you must be brave. With fondest love and kisses, believe me to be ever yours affectionately, JOE."

Other loving letters, full of embraces and kisses followed. In 1898, Miss Mackinnon was shocked by receiving from her negro lover a photograph of himself and three women. The lord chief justice observed that there was safety in numbers, but the spinster plaintiff indicated that she took a different view in the matter. She wrote an indignant letter to Newport.

The lady then developed a rift. In January, 1904, the doctor wrote that his Scottish friend did not seem the same on his last visit. "It would be a great sin to take you like a lily and let you droop and die in a strange land. It seems you are hysterical, and I could not be engaged to a hysterical lady. Marriage is a thing for life, and must not be entered into unless after due consideration."

One of Miss Mackinnon's brothers admitted that he objected to his sister marrying a negro. Damages to the amount of $7,500 were sought. The jury awarded $2,500.

Yachtman Accused of Stealing a Prayer Book.

London, Nov. 2.—One of the strangest cases heard before all English courts for years has just been tried at Bow Street.

Thomas Caradoc Kerry, of the Royal Colonial Institute, an explorer of international fame, and the only Englishman known to have crossed New Guinea from sea to sea, in the defendant, the charge against him is strange. It is that of stealing a prayer book aboard his own yacht, the Pandora, the prayer book being the property of the trustees of the Missions to Seamen.

Mr. Kerry is a wealthy man, owner of a steam yacht and a large bank account. Last year, with a conceited air, the British admiralty, he sailed for the South Sea Islands, of which his knowledge is believed to be more extensive than that of any living man. After meeting with wreck and misadventure, returned to England last May.

In opening the case the prosecuting attorney graphically detailed the history of the expedition and the basis of the charge. Various parcels of goods and devotional books for the inhabitants of the lonely island of Tristan d'Acuna, he said, were placed in Mr. Kerry's charge. The prosecution claims that most of the books were thrown overboard when the Pandora left London, and that part of the cargo of presents was bartered and sold to the natives instead of being presented to them.

On Mr. Kerry's return he wrote to the Duchess of Bedford and other titled ladies who were among the contributors of stores for the islanders, stating how much the lonely inhabitants appreciated the gifts, which, according to the prosecution, they never received at all.

The defense has not yet been introduced, the defendant being remanded for a further hearing.

The prominence of Mr. Kerry and the unusual character of the charge have aroused the greatest interest in the trial.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The state department has been informed that, at the instance of Emperor William, steps have been taken toward the withdrawal of the troops of the allied powers associated in the suppression of the Boxer uprising, which were assigned to the protection of the road from Peking to Tien-tsin.

The treaty which terminated the Boxer uprising gave the powers the right to police this road to insure a safe line of retreat from Peking for the diplomats and other foreigners and thereby avoid a recurrence of the siege of the legations of 1900.

America refrained from stationing troops on the road. A small guard of soldiers, however, was stationed at the legation in Peking. This force was recently relieved by a detachment of marines.

ABOLISH GRAND JURY.

This Was Advocated by Montreal Judge.

Montreal, Nov. 2.—Judge Hall, in his address at the opening of the November term of the court of King's bench, to-day, advocated the abolition of the grand jury system. The principal reason given was that the magistrate presiding at the preliminary investigation into a case was competent to judge whether or not a prisoner should go on for trial. Another reason was that it was unnecessarily expensive.

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 2.—At the close of the testimony in the Willis murder case presented by the Crown Justice Anglin decided that there was not sufficient evidence adduced to convict and took the case from the jury, directing that a verdict of "no guilty" be entered and ordered the liberation of Alexander Willis.
