Hearst's success in the New York election was simply a surprising monstration of municipal ownership. It seems to be a winning card.

The reciprocity movement did not amount to much in Massachusetts, and in connection with the gubernatorial election. The candidate who favoured it suffered a severe defeat.

Weaver, of Philadelphia, won the navoralty because he was too sharp for the boodlers. He stopped the ballot stuffing. In one batch he had 56, 000 bogus ballots cut off the list.

The people have paid $30,000,000 nore for their coal since the great strike. The miners got a benefit 814,000,000, and the owners of mines $16,000,000. The coal barons are not going to be left in any case.
