NOT UP TO STANDARD OF OTHER YEARS.

Old Rugby Men Have No Use for the Snap-Back System-The Latest News in Sperting Circles. The quality of junior play in the

O. R. F. U. this season has not been nearly up to the standard of that of several years previous. The Lime: stones of the past three years were as cuits and strong as Peterboro's intermediate team of this season. Probably, however, the teams of recent seasons should have been in intermediate ranks; in fact eligible seniors were playing upon them. The junior football of this season may be more like what it should be.

> Old rugby players like Dr. Ross and J. M. Mowat, who appeared Queen's teams as far back as 1890, have no use for the snap-back system. If one-half of the Doctors vs. Lawyers' contest is to be played under snap-back rules, they declare that they will not play that half. They will play only genuine rugby. The snapback game isn't rugby, and it has certainly failed utterly to be an at traction in the east. Kingston does not take to it.
