CRAIG AND SCOBELL

A SUNSHINE WEDDING IN CAPE VINCENT.

The Piquant Bride Looked Lovely, as Did Her Attendants—The Church Beautifully Decked by Warm Friends.

Bright out-of-doors, with bright sunshine, which shone forth when no one expected it, brought within the church with the golden glow from hundreds of sunny chrysanthemums and bright with the good-will and kind wishes which surrounded both the winsome American bride, and her handsome Canadian husband, the marriage, in St. John's church, Cape Vincent, last past one, on Wednesday afternoon, was a happy one indeed.

As many interested Kingston friends know, the wedding was that of Miss Gertrude Maria Scobell, of the little town across the border, and John Davidson Craig, of the Topographical survey department, Ottawa, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Craig, of this city. The bride was given away by her father, J. A. Scobell, and Rev. Charles Lyall, rector of the church, solemnized the marriage.

The wedding was a golden one at the outset, and many are the wishes that there will be a repetition fifty years hence. Within the church had been massed yellow chrysanthemums. The altar was adorned with the canonical lights, and above it was wreathed with amilax and lavishly decked with flowers. A large bell of yellow chrysanthemums hung above the chancel steps, where the earlier part of the ceremony was performed, and the portion of the church set aside for the guests closed off with gates of flowers, reaching across the aisle.

The piquant little bride looked lovely in her wedding gown of white embroidered chiffon, over white tulle, the traditional veil caught to her prettily-set head with its crown of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses and lilies of the valley, and her ornament a half hoop of diamonds, the groom's gift.

The matron of honor was the bride's sister, Mrs. Francis W. Sackett, a handsome, dark-eyed woman, who looked regal in a gown of yellow crepe de chine, over tulle, with a black and white plume, and her bouquet, white chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaids, Miss Belle Craig, the groom's sister, and Miss Nina Kinghorn, Rochester, N.Y., the bride's cousin, wore lovely frocks of white embroidered chiffon over yellow tulle, medallions of the ribbon, edged with Valenciennes lace, ornamenting the skirt, which was also filled with the material, edged with lace. The bodies had lace yokes, and the wide soft girdles were of cream duchess satin, the elbow sleeves were finished with narrow white satin ribbon, and the groom's emblematic gift, a pearl studded maple leaf safety pin, and the bride's gift gold signet rings, were worn. The hats were of white maline, the brims edged with cloth of gold, a lovely bow of wide white satin ribbon, knotted with shirred piping, were at the sharply turned back, and white wings were fastened at the side with the same shirring as caught the bow. Bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums were carried by the bridesmaids.

A reception for all the guests, who had been at the church, was held immediately after the wedding, and besides many Cape Vincent friends came in to wish the bride and groom all happiness. The entire bridal party received, and the house was a bower of yellow, white and green.

Mrs. Craig had chosen for her going-away gown grey Panama cloth, the coat three-quarter length, opening over a vest of red embroidered satin, inset in a blouse of blue plaid silk, with red and yellow bars. Her becoming hat was of grey panne velvet, the brim edged with tiny rouchings of grey in alternate shades of light and dark. Pale grey wings unadorned, and the pretty effect was heightened by a pale grey veil and gloves. The happy bride and groom have gone off to New York, and on their return will live in Ottawa. From the latter city came the best wishes of Dr. G. P. Jackson, and the ushers were Arthur and William Craig, the groom's cousins, George Smythe, and E. C. Gilderleeve, all of Kingston.

Among the quantities of lovely and valuable presents were an electric lamp from the groom's friends in the astronomical department of the government at Ottawa, and a beautifully chased spoon from the choir, and the bride's co-workers in St. John's church.

Gary wishes for true happiness, through a long and useful life, went with the rice and confetti with which the happy pair were deluged as they went to the train. Halfway there, they were made dismount from the cab and walk to the station, that they might lose none of the good luck shower, which came, not only from the numerous relatives and friends, who had come over from Kingston, by the Island Wanderer that morning, but from many loving friends in the town where the happy little bride has been brought up.

COL. HENDRIE IS ILL

A CLERK WAS DISCHARGED FOR PARTIZANSHIP.

Members of University Commission to Visit American College—Toronto Wants Life-Saving Appliances—Dozen Plumbers Committed.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—Word was received from the city, this morning, that Col. J. S. Hendrie was seriously ill at his residence at Hamilton, and that much anxiety is being caused his friends.

Robert Mahood, a clerk in the license department at the parliament buildings, has been discharged for alleged partizanship.

It is probable that several members of the university commission will visit Princeton, Harvard and Columbia Universities, next week, to gather methods of government in these institutions.

The board of control, this morning, decided to memorialize the dominion government for the provision, at this point, of proper safeguards against loss of life by wrecks. The need of some life-saving appliances was especially felt on Tuesday, when assistance was asked to be sent to the schooner Oliver Mowat, ashore at Whitley, and the city was unable to do anything toward the rescue of the captain and crew of five.

Before Justice Street, this morning, the action of the Northern Navigation company against the estate of the late J. A. Long, was opened. The action is for $150,000 damages, arising out of the payment of two semi-annual dividends of five per cent, made, so the plaintiffs alleged, through misrepresentations on the part of the late president. The examination of witnesses, this morning, was with the object of establishing a discrepancy in the president's report, and the facts, as supplied the president by officers of the company.

Cross-examination was directed to show that the facts supplied were merely estimates, and that the discrepancy, if any existed, was merely a mistake in estimating, and not abnormal. Mr. Cassels, in protesting against the prolongation of the examination on methods of book-keeping, said there was no contest, excepting on the one point, that defendants had put $3,000 into the estimate of earnings to get the shareholders to increase the dividends. The profits had been reported as $88,819, and were shown to be only about $85,000, the amount paid in dividends being $83,773. D. G. Cooper and A. M. Knight, accountants, swore that they had not authorized the placing of their names to the printed report on which they had appeared. H. J. Scott, K.C., who appeared for the plaintiffs, said he proposed to show that the report was a forgery.

The dozen members of the Master Plumbers' Association, and Plumbers' Union, charged with conspiracy, were committed for trial, by Magistrate Denison, this morning. J. Harrison, a former member of the association, swore that he had not collected more than one of his bonuses, on contracts because he felt that the arrangement was illegal, and that the men would end up in jail. It was shown that the association had been levying percentages on all the jobs passing through the office of Toronto architects, whether in the city or not. Further evidence showed that the ramifications of the supply combine existed in British Columbia. Harrison also swore that Mr. Stevenson, of Stevenson and Malcolm, Campbell, claimed the job on the Guelph sanitarium because it was in his city. His claim was conceded, and Stevenson gave each of four other tendering firms an I. O. U. for $200. This, with the five per cent, collected by the association was added to the contract.

Col. Hendrie says that the report of his illness is greatly exaggerated. When the reporter found him, he was eating a hearty luncheon at the parliament building. Col. Hendrie said that the rumor was evidently founded on the present indisposition of his father, William Hendrie.

Situation Dangerous. London, Nov. 30.—A St. Petersburg despatch, dated 2:10 p.m., to-day, says that the situation is dangerous. Another despatch says it is reported that 5,000 persons perished in yesterday's battle at Sebastopol. The leaders of the mutineers, it is added, have already been executed.

Action For Damages. An action has been entered by E. O. Jacobson & Co., Toronto, vs. James Richardson & Sons, Kingston, for $5,000, for failure to deliver felpar. The case will be tried in Toronto.
