The opinion is expressed by leading rugby men here that the only way to succeed in arranging uniform Canadian rules is for representatives from each union to get together and discuss the matter, in a friendly way and with a genuine desire of arriving at a unanimous agreement. Not only playing leaders of to-day, but also of the older rugby players who were no ted in years gone by. For instance, as a Kingston and Queen's delegation the following are suggested: Messrs. W. F. Nickle and J. McDonald Mowat, Arthur E. Ross, Dr. Dalton, Dr. Etherington and W. H. MacInnes secretary-treasurer of Queen's athletic committee.
