

YOU FIRST WHEN YOU PAY ME

The physician who has not sufficient confidence in his pay... I expect to give you the best of my services...

DEBILITY

gentle boon to nervous sufferers. There are from severe nervous disorder resulting from...

TREATMENT

apply for treatment in person, but if you prefer...

OMY!

the first thing to be considered in heating stove, so why not heat up the chimney...

Stove

which will save you considerable heat any room where...

in and let us explain it also have a complete stock of SODS, SIFTERS, etc.

& SONS

103 King Street.

ST. SALE

er awards the quality of the goods ask for

AND, AGENT.

1 King St.

GANOQUE NEWS.

likely to Be a Good Contest for the Mayor's Chair.

Gannoque, Dec. 2.—Mayor Sheppard will likely have some opposition at the coming municipal election.

Mayor W. N. Rogers, Councilor W. J. Knapp Wilson and ex-Councilor L. S. Knapp are among those who have an eye on the position.

John McMurphy's name is also mentioned. The more the merrier.

Gannoque high school has made a little progress during the past week.

The sale of fancy articles in the parlor of the St. Andrew's church...

The social given by the young men of the class of St. Andrew's church...

BABY'S AWFUL ITCHING ECZEMA

Sores and Scalds All Over Face and Body—Could Not Tell What She Looked Like—Unable to Sleep—Grew Worse Under Doctors.

CURED BY CUTICURA IN ONE MONTH

A grateful mother, in the following letter, tells of another of those marvelous cures by Cuticura: "When my baby was four months old her skin broke out with a humor. I took her to a doctor who treated her for eczema, but she kept getting worse...

INSTANT RELIEF For Baby and Rest for Tired, and Frighted Mothers

The foregoing statement justifies the oft-repeated assertion that Cuticura Soap and Ointment afford instant relief, and permit sleep for baby and rest for tired mothers...

Wood's Peppermint Cure

A positive cure for all forms of Asthma, Spasms, Croup, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Hay Fever, and all other ailments of the throat and lungs...

Grand Union Hotel

Rooms From $1.00 Per Day Up Opposite Grand Central Station New York

Luggage and FREE

HAVE YOU ANYTHING TO SELL OUTSIDE OF YOUR SINS AND YOUR TROUBLES?

COME TO WM MURRAY, The Auctioneer

Try Myers' for Fine COOKED MEATS.

C. H. POWELL CARPENTER AND JOBBER 103 Raglan Street.

FASHION'S FORM.

Lingerie Frock for the Small Girl.

One might use this design either as a lingerie frock or as a picturesque costume for the little maid of some half a dozen summers or so...

The garment is applied in shirring, and part next to the armholes is brought up over the shoulder in the guise of a bretelle...

The social given by the young men of the class of St. Andrew's church...

The social given by the young men of the class of St. Andrew's church...

The social given by the young men of the class of St. Andrew's church...

HEARD FARMERS WHO WANTED REDUCTIONS ON THE TARIFF.

Farmers' Delegates Pressing For Low Tariff—Lennox and Frontenac Men Heard.

In response to the invitation for opinions from the farmers' interests, Messrs. Dawson, Kennedy, Peterboro, P. B. Rogers, ex-M.P.; and J. A. Wilnot, Frontenac, and W. R. Lott, Lennox county, appeared at Peterboro before the Tariff Commission on Thursday.

Mr. Dawson emphasized the basic importance of the agricultural interests in Canada, and strongly endorsed the views presented to the commission by the Ontario Farmers' Association and the Dominion Grange.

Mr. Lott, speaking for farmers of Lennox county, declared that present-day conditions in industrial and agricultural matters amply justified a reduction in the tariff and the abandonment of the protective policy.

Mr. Fielding—But they are still staying in Canada and probably bettering their condition. Mr. Lott thought that a duty of fifteen per cent. might be placed upon wool and fifteen per cent. on the animal product.

Mr. Fielding—Do you think that if the woolen manufacturer has to pay fifteen per cent. on his raw material, and if the cost of labor, etc., is much cheaper in foreign countries, he can do business at a profit? They say they can't make a profit even now with a free raw material.

Mr. Lott was driven to the conclusion that some of the factories would have to close up. All duty removed from agricultural implements and machinery was his idea of what the patriot farmers' stand should be.

Mr. Paterson drew attention to the fact that the farmers of the United States seemed to have appreciated even an extreme measure of protection.

"All combines and trusts and combinations," said Mr. Rogers, "the real sentiment of the people if allowed free expression, would show disapproval of a high tariff."

Mr. Fielding—the highest protectionists have met with our tour here have been farmers. No manufacturer asked for as high protection as did some class of farmers.

John Wilnot, president of the Farmers' Association of Frontenac county, concurred in the above sentiments of his brother farmers.

Mr. Lott added that on an eighteen thousand dollar farm in Lennox county where a strict account of revenues and expenses had been kept, the net returns had only averaged $300 per year, not allowing anything for labor done by the farmer himself or his family and allowing nothing for interest on capital investment.

POETICAL SELECTION

Just for a handful of silver he left us, For a riband to stick in his coat— Found the one gift of which fortune's breast is proud.

LABBY POKED RIDICULE.

Kills Woman Suffrage Bill by His Wit in Parliament.

Could a policeman be a woman? Are archbishops ladies? These two questions were propounded by Henry Labouchere in the British House of Commons during a debate on the perennial question of woman's suffrage.

"It was the drollest speech heard in the House for many a year. Standing at the foot of the gangway, wearing his favorite cutaway coat of blue, of a cut, color and style essentially old-fashioned, the editor of Truth poked ridicule at the bill to grant the right of parliamentary votes to women and the measure was effectively put to death."

"When you argue with a woman you begin to realize how she differs from a man," he said, "an attempt to do it that would happen if lady legislators sat in the House, as the proposer of the measure suggested."

"Men are very weak in regard to women. If men were a female member of the House, would she speak simultaneously the man would always chivalrously give way no matter what his politics."

"And supposing that a man lived with his wife"—the House as almost convulsed with merriment at the supposition—and they were both members of Parliament, the husband, after listening to his wife mauling along in this chamber, would return home to go through it all again!

"You see, then, this venerable and respectable Parliament into a promiscuity of sexes. There are a lot of young men here, and all sorts of political flirtations would go on. An old man—I would not place any such temptation in the way of my honorable friends opposite."

"I am not going to be crushed under the domination of women and the successor of St. Paul, who objected to women talking in the churches, the discussion places of his time. Take the church now. Are archbishops women?"

"Could a policeman be a woman?" he asked. "Women are more beautiful than muscular, but they have no sense of proportion. They exaggerate one thing and despise another."

Donkey as Doctor. The donkey was a famous old-time medical character, particularly in dental troubles. Kissing a donkey, if done according to established formula, was accounted an unfailing cure for tooth-ache, and the proper method of doing it is explained in the Rev. Caesar Otway's trial of an old Irishwoman for stealing a donkey, which she had borrowed to cure herself of a violent tooth-ache.

"Whin I got him"—i.e., the donkey—"to my place, I held him by the halter just over the sill of the door, his head above the sally hole of my shoe... and there I lifted up his upper lip and gave him three kisses on his teeth... and the pain left me, and I let him go, thinking as he knoed the way, and would have trotted back to his own home, and nobody be a bit the wiser." The method adopted for children teething was (and often is still) generally to "rub a few hairs from the cross on a donkey's back, and hang them in a bag round the neck of the child, which will then be proof against any teething trouble."

Crumbling of Gibraltar. The public is not aware that the great rock of Gibraltar is tumbling down; that its crumbling, rotting masses must be continually bound together with huge patches of masonry and cement. Yet they who sail past Gibraltar do not fail to notice on the eastern slope of the fortress enormous silver-colored patches gleaming in the sun. These patches, in some cases thirty or forty feet long, are the proof of Gibraltar's disintegration. Of thick, strong cement, they keep huge spurs of the cliff's side from tumbling into the blue sea.

Sea captains cruising in the Mediterranean say that Gibraltar has been rotting and crumbling for many years, and that of late the disintegration has gone on at a faster rate than heretofore.

THE ZAMBEZI BRIDGE.

Highest in the World and Built of Steel—Length 650 Feet.

The Zambezi bridge, or the Victoria Falls bridge, generally is called in a record bridge in many respects, says J. Hartley Knight in the Engineering Magazine for October. It is the highest—420 feet—in the world, and it was built in the shortest time recorded for such a work—viz., nineteen weeks.

Sir Charles Metcalfe also claimed that no other bridge of its size and capacity had ever been spanned. The great centre span rises in a graceful parabolic arch to the centre, the spring of which starts from the bases of the main piers. The vertical rise to the crown is 90 feet. The main span is made of twenty bays each 25 feet long, and lateral stability was secured by a wide spread at the feet of the bridge.

The vertical rise to the crown is 90 feet. The main span is made of twenty bays each 25 feet long, and lateral stability was secured by a wide spread at the feet of the bridge. The girder centres is 27 feet 6 inches, whereas at the bases the width between pin centres is 50 feet.

The roadway projects beyond the side girders so as to allow a clear 30 feet between parapets. The bridge is of steel, and as it is coated with gray paint it is scarcely visible as possible against the cloud of spray—"the smoke that sounds," as the natives call it—that rises from the falls, and the undue obstruction on the landscape which many feared has thus been avoided.

When Henry was king there were frequent complaints by both buyers and sellers of goods of the varying number of inches to the yard, according to the district and to the disposition of the dealer. One day the King himself, in making a purchase of cloth, found cause for dissatisfaction on this account; and so, calling one of his counsellors to him, he bade him measure the length of the standard yard; and so it has remained ever since.

Samuel Johnson's Preciseness. Goldsmith and Boswell and Johnson having met at the usual hour at the chop house, Boswell observed that he had just encountered the Prince of Wales on the street.

"Do you think," asked Goldsmith, turning to Johnson, "that the Prince of Wales will ever be king?" "It is impossible," retorted the great doctor. "It is impossible!" "Why do you think so?" asked Boswell.

"Why, condemn you!" roared the doctor, getting red in the face. "Why, because, sir, the minute he gets to be king he ceases to be Prince of Wales."

Some Table Lore. It is bad luck to shake hands across the table. It is an ill omen to turn a loaf of bread with the cut side downward, after having dipped oneself from it.

To Cure a Cold in One Day. Take Lavative Bromo Quinine Tablets. Druggists refund money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box, 25c.

When a man stays home every night it is a sign that either he has to get up early in the morning or thinks he is economizing.

There are times when the still small voice of conscience sounds as if it had been filtered through a megaphone.

Why Not Begin Your Christmas Shopping Now?

We have a very large and complete assortment of all kinds of Leather and Fancy Slippers

For men, women and children, which make suitable Christmas Gifts

We have Slippers from 20c. to $2

ABERNETHY'S

DANGEROUS HAT PINS. Suggestion That Corks Be Stuck on Sharp Ends.

The long hat pin is regarded with esteem, not only as a valuable implement of the toilet, but also as an instrument of defence, and well is that young woman armed who has the courage to use it when attacked.

This was shown in New Jersey recently, when a Millville girl was seized by a highwayman. She put him to ignominious flight by jabbing the weapon into him with such effect that he was glad to get away.

Highwaymen have reason to fear the hat pin, but peaceable, law-abiding citizens also stand in danger of being punctured by the sharp points. One of the dangers in this era of indented chapeaux, perched on top of masses of ringlets and puffs, is the murderous weapon projecting out the side of the fall hat.

Men riding in the street cars stand in constant dread of losing their eyesight because of the business point of the hat pin thus menacing them. The altitude of a woman's hat is normally on the level of a man's eyes, and when the car aisles are packed poor man is powerless to dodge the points of hat pins which stick out in all directions.

In round, mean sharp curves when there is much swaying about the strap hangers, a man faces blindness or a terrible gouge in the cheek from the exposed point of the hat pin. It is suggested that corks can be worn on the sharp points to save injury to the public.

They might be made very ornamental, and as a safety device would be welcomed.

Comes From Torrid Africa and Frozen North. More ivory is sold each year in London than would be produced if all the elephants in the world were killed—not only those in Africa, but in Asia, also—and it is lucky, not only for the elephants but the dealers also, that other sources of supply are open besides tusks obtained from living elephants.

True, a large proportion of the ivory supply comes from Africa, but this is obtained mainly from the vast stores which have been laid up for generations past by native chiefs. The natives also know where the so-called elephant cemeteries are—for elephants always go to certain places to die—and there they find great numbers of tusks.

Wanted Hanging.

Douglas Warrant, the famous humorist and satirist, and Henry Compton, the well-known comedian, figure in a capital story told in a memoir of the latter celebrity. The two men were on intimate terms of friendship for many years, and one day they were in a certain gallery. On entering the anteroom they found themselves opposite a number of very long looking-glasses. Pausing before one of these, Compton remarked to Jerrold:

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."

"You've come here to admire works of art. Very well, fasten your eyes on that work of nature" pointing to his own figure reflected in the glass. "Look at it, there's a picture for you!" "Very fine indeed," replied Jerrold, "but I don't see what you mean."