The sewerage there must affect our harbor injurious

The above points I present, not in the way of opposition to the Locomotive company, but only to clear the way for the following suggestions, viz., that, instead of the city granting the petition of the company for twenty years' exemption from taxes, in consideration for which they dertake to extend their works, increase the number of their employees the city do offer to the company the property known as the smelter site, free of taxation and with free light and free water, and also that the city pay the cost of the removal of th machinery from the present works to the smelter site. This plan would give the Locomotive company an oppor tunity to erect a modern up-to-date plant, with unlimited facilities for extension, convenient to both lines railway for sidings, etc.

It would also provide abundant space for depositing slag out to waste line, and in addition enable to reclaim, if necessary, land to the east, which is now worthless as marsh. The smelter site would also be open to water for the clay bottom of the bay is very easily dredged, and a deep channel where desired could be opened up, so that the largest vessels could bring their coal to the works, and apart from this use of the water T.
