Letter From Greater New York.

THE AUTOMOBILE AND ITS SLAUGHTERING PROPENSITIES.

Pay Dear in Human Lives for Sport—Yale-Harvard Football Match Excited New York—Lord Kitchener's Programme.

Special Correspondence Letter, No. 1,490. New York, Dec. 1.—The shocking death of Mrs. Burton Harrison in a recent automobile accident, which occurred near Long Island City, on Saturday, November 25th, adds but one more to the list of accidental crimes which has clouded the record of the phenomenal locomotor of the twentieth century. Once more the question is forced upon us, whether we will listen to it or not, "Are we not making too much of a good thing?" Are we not going too fast? Does not the loss exceed the profit gained by many thousands killed and untold millions of maimed? Is it not time to halt? Not a day passes, but from some portion of our country, comes the news of a shocking automobile disaster. There seems to be a fatal fascination about automobile riding that the most experienced motorists cannot explain. After the first few trials fear vanishes from the most timid and no matter what the pace, every rider wants to go a little faster. The man who says ten thousands dollars for a swift flying motor, and he generally gets it, even if the additional price is a child crushed into a shapeless mass of blood and bones, with a cracked skull, a half dozen smashed ribs, and a broken collar-bone thrown in to make a good measure. When an accident occurs and the dying and dead are dragged from under the smoking and ruined pile, we are told that a rubber tire had burst or the steering wheel was out of order, that the brake did not act, or it could not be reached in time to slacken the speed of the tremendous machine that was madly rushing right into the jaws of death. When the accident occurred which cost Mrs. Harrison's life, the automobile was speeding thirty-five miles an hour, a good time for an ordinary railroad train running on smooth steel rails; not one of the excuses offered above might have been avoided with ordinary care, but it would seem as if the lives of pleasure-seekers were never held so cheap as they have been since the invention of the automobile. It is only a few months ago since a husband and wife, two friends of Mrs. Harrison's, representatives of the portions of our fortune, were dashed to pieces within a moment's warning by nearly a similar accident to that in which Mrs. Harrison perished. These seem to be a peculiar fatality about automobile riding. After a few trials the most timid lose all sense of danger and the demand in every case is for the chauffeur to drive faster; he is hardly ever requested to slow down. Severe laws will have to be enacted to regulate this matter and until they reach the voters of the law we can look for similar accidents every day.

The football game which took place on Saturday in Boston, affected New York nearly as much as it did the hub of the universe. From the commencement to the ending of the game, the wildest excitement prevailed in every portion of the city. All of our long distance telephones and telegrams were besieged by anxious bettors. All sorts of conflicting reports came in, and for a few moments when Harvard seemed to have victory in sight, thousands of dollars changed hands, for it looked as if the colors of Yale were at last to go down to disaster. The forty-two thousand lovers of football who crowded the seats of the stadium and all the reserves of the aristocracy exhibited no wilder enthusiasm than the thousands who crowded around every bulletin board in town and awaited the final news of Harvard's disaster. The most unhappy man in the multitude that crowded Boston on Saturday, was the captain near the Harvard eleven. Chafing under the misfortune of his absence, he had hoped for victory which would wipe out the memory of Harvard's painful defeat. Just recovering from a painful operation under the surgeon's knife he demanded of his surgeon that he should be carried to the close of the game. The compromise was accepted by the brave captain, and he was able to follow the game from the beginning to the close. He had given up the very highest state of perfection; the eleven were in better condition than any eleven had been for several years before and in the tremendous battle he could see nothing but victory for his men. Considering his critical condition I almost wonder if he lives while I am writing of his favorite's defeat.

WHAT SULPHUR DOES For the Human Body in Health and Disease.

The mention of sulphur will recall to many of us the early days when our mothers and grandmothers gave us our daily dose of sulphur and molasses every spring and fall. It was the universal spring and fall "blood purifier," tonic and cure-all, and mind you, this old-fashioned remedy was not without merit.

The idea was good, but the remedy was crude and unpalatable, and a large quantity had to be taken to get any effect.

Nowadays we get all the beneficial effects of sulphur in a palatable, concentrated form, so that a single grain is far more effective than a tablespoonful of the crude sulphur.

In recent years, research and experiment have proven that the best sulphur for medicinal use is that obtained from Calcium Sulphide and is sold in drug stores under the name of Stuart's Calcium Wafers. They are small chocolate coated pellets and contain the active medicinal principle of sulphur in a highly concentrated, effective form.

Few people are aware of the value of this form of sulphur in restoring and maintaining bodily vigor and health; sulphur acts directly on the liver, and excretory organs and purifies and enriches the blood by the prompt elimination of waste material.

Our grandmothers knew this when they dosed us with sulphur and molasses every spring and fall, but the impurity of ordinary flowered sulphur, were often worse than the disease, and cannot compare with the modern concentrated preparations of sulphur, of which Stuart's Calcium Wafers is undoubtedly the best and most medicinal.

They are the natural antidote for liver and kidney troubles and cure constipation and purify the blood in a way that often surprises patient and physician alike.

Dr. R. W. Wilkins while experimenting with sulphur remedies soon found that the sulphur from Calcium was superior to any other form. He says: "For liver, kidney and blood troubles, especially when resulting from constipation of the bowels, I have been surprised at the results obtained from Stuart's Calcium Wafers. In patients suffering from boils and pimples and even deep-seated carbuncles, I have repeatedly seen them dry up and disappear in four or five days, leaving the skin clear and smooth. Although Stuart's Calcium Wafers is a proprietary article, and sold by druggists, and for that reason tabooed by many physicians, yet I know of nothing so safe and reliable for constipation, liver and kidney troubles and especially in all forms of skin disease as this remedy."

At any rate people who are tired of pills, cathartics and so-called "blood purifiers" will find in Stuart's Calcium Wafers a far safer, more palatable and effective preparation.

IS A WEDDING DIRECTOR.

New Way Her Sex Can Earn Money.

Philadelphia Telegraph.

A wide-awake woman in Boston has found a new outlet for woman's activity by taking charge of weddings. On the day of the marriage ceremony the bride and the bride's mother are generally too busy and too tired to give much attention to the management of details. As a helper in this household emergency, the wedding director fills a long felt want. The name of the pioneer is Mrs. Nellie Bliffins, and she lives with her husband and daughter on Boston's aristocratic Beacon street.

Mrs. Bliffins' method is to get to the house early and to give her first attention to the groom. She sees to it that the dress, gloves and slippers are just right. She then takes charge of the packing: The bride eats her luncheon in comfort, knowing that everything she needs will be in her bags and trunks, carefully inventoried in a little book as to its precise location.

Mrs. Bliffins is at the church door before the marriage ceremony to give the last touches to the bride's gown before the bride enters the church. The girl's mother is then saved from having to see that the rooms are put in order after the newly wedded wife has gone on her wedding tour. Mrs. Bliffins attends to all that.

The value of the work of the wedding director is best attested by the popularity it has attained. Most of her business, Mrs. Bliffins says, comes indirectly. It has grown on the principle of the advertisement of a certain merchant some years ago: "If you don't like it, tell me; if you do like it, tell others."

At first many people were inclined to pooh-pooh the idea of a wedding director. To-day, however, they have learned that even to run a wedding properly, takes some expert knowledge. Mrs. Bliffins is a student of design and decorative art as well as of the changing fashions. Frequent visits to New York and occasional ones to Paris enable her to bring back ideas of how they manage these things in other places. But more valuable yet are the many suggestions her woman's wit and her woman's taste enable her to add to the convenience or the beauty of the wedding.

In France some women artists and others are allowed to wear masculine attire, but for this a tax of about two guineas a year has to be paid. The total value of toys "made in Germany" every year is no less than $3,500,000. Belief is not morality; opinion is not character.
