WILLIAM FELDMAN COMMITTED BY MAGISTRATE FOR TRIAL

At Next Sitting of the High Court—Buffalo Man Saw Three Men Scouting Around McKay's Place on Night of Robbery.

William Feldman, charged with stealing furs from John McKay's establishment on November 18th, was committed for trial at the next sitting of the high court, by Magistrate Farrell, at police court this morning.

The first witness was John McKay, owner of the furs which were stolen November 18th. His establishment was closed at 3 p.m. Saturday evening; they not discovered until 9 a.m. Sunday. Ladder placed at back window, by which robbers had evidently gone to enter building. It wrapped up in bundles some would not be bulky, but the three coats stolen, would.

To Mr. Nickle witness said he found coat, which led over Vanlue's fence. Furs were marked "J. K." perforated stamp, mink skins had a double stamp in indelible ink, "J. K." in a circle.

Henry O'Brien, night clerk at the Randolph Hotel, testified that he was on duty on November 17th. Recognized prisoner, who came to the hotel that night between 11:30 and 12 p.m. There was a man with him. He registered, Harris Smit, Toronto, and Yak Thompson, and Henry Burger signed next. Burger had been there, and had same room night before.

(To Mr. Nickle) he signed Yak Thompson. Burger came in 1:30, Friday morning; did not see him after he went to his room. Did not see the three conversing together, but saw Smit and Thompson talk together in broken English. Smit and Thompson were in room together. Burger had a room alone. He only knew from ledger they did not breakfast.

Samuel Welsh, a bell-boy, at Randolph Hotel, testified that he was on duty on November 17th. Two men came in with them. Showed prisoner and another man to room No. 18. The man from New York came up to No. 18. Witness met man from No. 9, and he asked where the other two men were, and witness took him up to No. 18. Feldman came to the door. The door was then shut. Never saw prisoner other than on that night.

Saw Men at McKay's. Mr. Macpherson, Canadian representative of the Buffalo Home World, was called. He was at the Windsor Hotel, November 18th. Recognized prisoner, but not in the present clothes. Was going over to McKay's store at 10:30 o'clock. A stout man, whom he had seen at the Windsor Hotel, on Montreal street, was talking to a girl.

To Mr. Nickle, he said, he saw two men in Windsor, whom he later recognized near McKay's, but never saw prisoner with them. Prisoner was behind a post near the church. All was quiet and dark at McKay's, so he left. Another man was near a post, across the road from McKay's. It was a dark night. Could not distinguish the man, except that he was a big man. Prisoner was standing in shadow of a doorway, when witness was returning to the hotel. Man had on a dark coat, and a stiff hat.

J. B. Crowe, jeweler, the next witness, he went to Montreal on November 19th, at 2 a.m. Saw prisoner at outer station, talking with two others. They were foreigners. Saw them later on the train. Saw them twice conversing. One had a small grip, another a telescope, and a bundle tied with a strap. A stout man had a bundle three feet wide. Prisoner had a small grip. Prisoner got off at Montreal, other two at St. Henri.

William Boyd, a cab driver, first saw prisoner on the Sunday morning. Saw him between one and two o'clock, at the city station. Prisoner was talking to another man. The other man was a foreigner. He drove to outer station. Saw prisoner with two other men. Had two valises and oilcloth bundle.

C. H. Carpenter, sergeant detective in Montreal police force, was also a witness. He testified that he knew Feldman about two years. Had a conversation with prisoner about matter. Prisoner said he had not been away from Montreal on 17th to 21st November.

Story of the Prisoner. Police Constable Craig went back to Montreal and brought prisoner back. Had a talk with prisoner November 23rd. Read warrant to him. Feldman was not guilty of that offence. Witness said if he (prisoner) was not guilty of that offence, he should not be afraid to tell what he was doing in the city. Prisoner told that he came to the city on the midnight train, and got off at the outer station. Asked if he rode or walked; he did not answer. He knocked about the city all day; met another fellow and they went to the Randolph Hotel. He signed register for both, did not know what name he wrote, nor his own. While there he found out that his room-mate was acquainted with another fellow. They all went to the Opera House, came out during one act, didn't say where they went. After the show returned to hotel at midnight that night (Saturday). They had no bundle but, perhaps small valise. Prisoner left an hour later, and saw other two men at the depot. Other men had bundles. They all went to train towards Montreal. The other two got off at St. Henri. He went on to Montreal. Prisoner later saw one of them in Montreal, who said to him he was hard-up, and sold to him (Feldman) a gold ring. Witness asked to see ring. Prisoner said the fellow came along later with lots of money and redeemed ring. He would know fellows again. Prisoner believed that were the fellows that stole the furs.

J. L. Whiting—That's the case, and I ask for a committal. W. F. Nickle submitted that the prosecution had not shown a bit of evidence that Feldman was concerned in the robbery. There was not a bit of evidence before the court, that the men with whom Feldman was associated, were the thieves.

J. L. Whiting pointed out that Feldman declared, he thought the other two men were guilty of the theft. Magistrate Farrell said he was satisfied that the non-contradicted evidence is sufficient to commit the prisoner. His registration under an assumed name, and his being with the other two men are suspicious. Later, according to his own story, they attempted the show. Then according to the Buffalo man, he is seen "scouting" about McKay's. Then he denies in Montreal, having been in Kingston, when it is shown that he was in Montreal.

W. F. Nickle—I am willing to let the case go to a higher court, and so the magistrate decided. Again Feldman requested that he might see his wife, to talk on matters of business. After much discussion J. L. Whiting finally agreed to allow the husband and wife to have a talk in German, in the presence of Police Constable Timmerman, at three o'clock this afternoon.

A Pseudo-Countess Falsely Off as Widow, and Gets $2,000 In Notes and Gold—The Thief Caught.

Paris, Dec. 6.—Widow's weeds, a pretty face and floods of tears were calling herself the Countess de Ligonette, just arrested. M. G. was in his study when a card with the countess' name was brought to him. It was followed by a woman in the deepest mourning, who threw aside her heavy veil, revealing a pretty face, and a paroxysm of weeping, almost fell into his arms.

When he had consoled her, she sobbed out that she was the widow of his brother, who had just died a few days before. "But my brother was unmarried," expostulated M. G. "I was his wife! I was his wife!" sobbed the countess. She then explained that she had come to ask for the return of the letters which had written him, saying he had told her that he always kept them in the left-hand lower drawer of the writing table.

M. G. happened to be sitting at the table in question. He searched the drawer, but found nothing more important than an old newspaper. He next suggested that the letters might be in another table upstairs. He begged her not to wait while he searched, she did not wait, but departed with about $2,000 in notes, and gold, which Mr. G. kept in a drawer. He telephoned to the police and they found the countess later in the day in a bar in the Avenue du Maine.

MADE MOURNERS SMOKE Hollander's Love for Tobacco Shows After Death.

There are some famous smokers in Europe, but perhaps none more so than an Austrian and a Hollander, both now deceased. An old man who died in Vienna kept a record of his smoking since he was twenty-seven years old. In forty-five years he smoked no fewer than 62,772 cigars and 3,929 cigars, giving an average of thirty-eight a day. Out of this gigantic total 43,500 were given him at various times, leaving 19,272 left, although this Austrian devotee of the shrine of St. Lady Nicotine never paid more than a penny for each one, cost nearly $12,500. But even this marvellous record is beaten by that of Mynheer Van Kintore, known by the nickname of "King of the Snokers." He was eighty-one at the time of his decease, and sometimes smoked as much as ten pounds of tobacco in a week. How strong with him was the ruling passion, is shown by the fact that he placed in a coffin lined with the wood of old cigar boxes. By his side were laid his favorite china-bowled pipe, a box of matches, flint, steel and tinder. Around his grave was gathered a circle of Rotterdam smokers, each with his pipe, from which, at the words, "Ashes to ashes, dust to dust," he shook a cloud of smoke into the coffin. To each of these mourners the deceased left ten pounds of tobacco and two pipes bearing his arms.

Death of Miss Williams. The death of Miss Florence Evelyn Williams, daughter of the late J. H. Williams, took place at her mother's residence, "Roselawn," Goderich, on Thursday, last, St. Andrew's day. The young lady was very clever, receiving her first class certificate at the age of thirteen years, and taking a position on the Goderich Institute staff. Later she became a teacher in the high school at Nanapan, but receiving an attack of la grippe, Miss Williams returned home and was under medical treatment for many months. Feeling much improved in health, the next year, Miss Williams joined the high school staff at Orillia, where she remained for five years, but was later a patient at the Toronto hospital. Last year she served central school staff, but suffered at intervals from the grippe, which compelled her resignation at midsummer. She returned home to be cared for by her mother, but it was but to die in loving arms.

Buddha's Deedology. Buddha, the great religious teacher of India, has at the present time about 300,000,000 followers. Condensed into ten short precepts, his doctrine may be given as follows: 1. From the meanest insect up to man thou shalt kill no animal whatever. 2. Thou shalt not steal. 3. Thou shalt not commit adultery. 4. Thou shalt speak no word that is false. 5. Thou shalt drink no wine or anything to intoxicate. 6. Thou shalt avoid all anger, hatred and bitter language. 7. Thou shalt not indulge in idle or vain talk. 8. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods. 9. Thou shalt not harbor pride, envy, revenge, or malice, nor desire the death or misfortune of thy neighbor. 10. Thou shalt not follow the doctrines of strange gods.

Goderich Notes. Sleighting is excellent. Mrs. Crowe, of Ernestown, was a guest at the wedding of Mrs. Nora Dean and William Kearney, on November 29th. Lorna, daughter of Dennis Neville, formerly of Nanapan and Kingston, was wedded to Captain W. McCarthy, of the steamer Edward Blake. The bride is organist of St. Peter's church. The new bridegroom is disappearing bit by bit, the storms having been severe on the work of the whole summer.
