When they tried Red Rose Tea they found it

ALWAYS MOVING NORTH
BISHOP BOMPAS BEST FRIEND OF
PEOPLE OF BLEAK LAND.

Rev. J. O. Stringer, an Ontario Graduate of Wycliffe College, Announced as the Successor to This Most Remarkable Anglican Missionary to the Northwest of the Dominion as Bishop of Selkirk—Their Lives.

The announcement that Rev. J. O. Stringer, a graduate of Wycliffe College, and an Ontario man, has been appointed to the office of Bishop of Selkirk is interesting. It is so, not alone because of the personality of the new prelate, but, in addition, because of the remarkable character of the man whom Mr. Stringer succeeds. The immediate predecessor of Bishop Stringer is Bishop Bompas, one of the greatest and most self-sacrificing missionaries of the Anglican Church.

From London to the Yukon. Bishop Bompas was educated with great care in England, and was designed for clerical work there. But he attended the Church of the "Glean" in the Fields, London, on Sunday night, and heard Bishop Anderson, the first Anglican bishop to the Northwest, and the predecessor of Archbishop Machray, preach a missionary sermon, which settled the fate of the young man. To the Northwest he was determined to go. A fine scholar, a linguist of great talent, the then Mr. Bompas gave up all his chances for preferment, and proceeded to Fort Garry, where in due time he was admitted to the priesthood. In the year 1865—exactly 40 years ago—Mr. Bompas arrived at Fort Simpson, the most northerly portion of British Columbia. From that point he worked north into the Yukon, preaching to the Indians and establishing mission stations. He became well versed in the Indian language, and could speak the Tutchuk fluently. Ultimately, he was known as one of the best friends of the people of that bleak land.

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.
Strong Words From Toronto Pulpit On a Recent Sunday.

Rev. J. T. Sunderland spoke on a recent Sunday morning on the text "It is more blessed to give than to receive." He strongly condemned that spirit, too common in our day, which wishes to get what does not belong to it, and receive what it does not pay for. He asked, "What is a worthy aim of life for a man? Is it to receive without rendering a full equivalent? Does any really high-minded man want to get more than he gives? What do we call a man who, without business matters, obtains what he makes no proper return for? We call him a rogue or a swindler. Is it worse to be a rogue or a swindler in business than in other things? Is it more criminal to rob a man than to rob society? Or to rob in matters which the law takes cognizance of than in matters which it does not? Says a distinguished and honored statesman: "The darkest hour in the history of any young man is that in which he first conclusively establishes the desire to get something for nothing." History bears out the saying. It is true. Such a young man has set his foot on a downward road. No human being, at least, no one that his health and strength has any right to want to get something for nothing. He who cherishes such a desire is nourishing in himself either the pauper or the criminal habit of mind. He who, being able to support himself, is willing to be supported by another, is in spirit a pauper. He who is willing to get a living by any means, or by any name, no matter how legal it may be, which does not involve the rendering of a just and full equivalent for what he receives, is at heart a criminal; all that he lacks is either the opportunity or the courage to make him a criminal de facto.

Here lies the greatest evil of lotteries and gambling. It is not so much that they are opposed to the common good, as that they are a source of money. That is bad enough. But the worst evil lies in the demoralizing and degrading influence of what is done, on men's character. It lies in the fact that gambling and lotteries create in men a willingness and a desire to obtain something for nothing; to get something that is not rightly theirs; to take the opportunity which they offer to render no just equivalent. That spirit always and everywhere undermines the integrity and rots the moral fibre of the human race. It is a source of money. That is bad enough. It lies in the fact that gambling and lotteries create in men a willingness and a desire to obtain something for nothing; to get something that is not rightly theirs; to take the opportunity which they offer to render no just equivalent. CITY BANKING HOURS
Not Desirable in Country Villages.

Yarker, Dec. 4.—Yarker will soon boast of a good orchestra. Miss Ada Warriman, Washington, D.C.; Mrs. Storms, Sydenham, and D. Macdonald, Cleveland, Ohio, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Winter. Miss Violet Ewart, Sydenham, was home for a few days. J. V. Burn has moved into his new home, a fine handsome residence erected by R. S. O'Loughlin. Jedediah Irish and Frank Irish have moved into the residence vacated by J. V. Burn. John Woodhouse and wife will board for the winter. Mr. Serry and children have moved to Verona. The new school house cottage for the winter. The new church of the Holiness Movement will soon be completed. Mrs. J. Elliott is home from the Kingston General Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Judge, Moscow, are at their son's, John Judge's, William Storms has returned home from Wilton. Two new arrivals at Yarker, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Eagle, and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. William Wagar. Joseph Lindsay has returned to Bancroft, his place as foreman in wheel factory being filled by Allen Silver. The water is very high this year; the roads through the swamp to Verona and Bell Rock are covered with water. A narrow escape from being injured, by throwing out sticks of dynamite, occurred near here, today, and the two men concerned are very thankful for their escape. Slighting would brighten up things in general in the country now. The swamps are all full of water, which will enable the farmers to get out wood and timber the coming winter. Mr. and Mrs. John Grant, Bellevue, were in town today.

City banking hours should not be introduced in the country villages. To make a success of them longer hours are necessary. Factories will not lack for water, this winter, as there is plenty of it. Mr. S. Winter has a fine line of groceries in stock for Christmas trade, also candles and oysters. The new organ purchased for the Methodist church, is a fine instrument. Mr. Garrett preached in the Methodist church Sunday night. The staff of life is being reduced in price, for which many are thankful.

Always Moving North

In 1874 the missionary was appointed a bishop. He became the first Bishop of Athabasca, and the northern diocese was called. Owing to the increase of work, a new diocese was created in Athabasca eight years later. There were thus two Episcopal dioceses, and Bishop Bompas was elected to choose which he would hold. He selected the farthest north—Mackenzie River. Once again, in 1891, was the diocese cut in two. And once again did the bishop select as his territory that which was least attractive, the northern part, known as the Diocese of Selkirk. From the day Bishop Bompas entered the Arctic circle as a missionary he has been but once in civilization. He returned to London that event, in 1874, repaid to his field labor, and has remained there ever since. The devotion to the work is not inspired by any degree of comfort pertaining to it. From year to year and to year's end the bishop is engaged in Arctic traveling and in the mission palace, a log cabin, is precisely the sort of place in which the average man would not care to summer—much less to spend the long nights of the northern winter.

Consolidation of Country Schools.

One remedy for the lack of trained teachers and the dearth of scholars where teachers can be found for the small district schools is the consolidation of sparsely peopled school districts. This is a method of consolidation, or of the system of consolidation, is evident. It substitutes for a mixed, ungraded school in a poorly ventilated room with a single, underpaid teacher a graded school in a better building with modern appliances for giving instruction and competent teachers. Wherever centralization has been carried out in this way, it has developed it is found that it decreases the per capita cost of education and gives longer school years and better teachers and equipments. The old time district schools were run at their best where the inhabitants were settled in proximity. The extension of roads has distributed the population, and the modern improvement makes it possible to gather the children from widely scattered homes to a central point for lessons.

Some Physical Facts.

A person's eyes are out of line in two cases out of five and one eye is stronger than the other in seven persons out of ten. The right eye is also as a rule higher than the left. Only one person in fifteen has perfect eyes, the largest percentage of defects prevailing among fair-haired people. The smallest vibration of sound can be distinguished better with one ear than with both. The nails of two fingers never grow with the same rapidity, that of the middle finger growing the fastest. In fifty-fingering out a hundred the left leg is shorter than the right.

An Ancient Belief.

The still prevalent notion that when a person has a pimple on his tongue it is evidence (or a "sign") that he has been guilty of a falsehood is referred to in documents written considerably over two thousand years ago. The ancients attributed the tiny, but annoying, protuberance to an infliction by the gods to indicate their displeasure at a mortal's untruthfulness.

Look For High Prices.

Morven, Dec. 4.—Morven being an inland town, news is a little scarce at present. We are getting all kinds of weather and everybody ought to be satisfied. Not much sickness around here. Those who have been ailing for some time are M. P. Lewis and Mrs. McQuire. Hay and grain are not moving very rapidly yet, as farmers are looking for a better price. W. R. Purdy has his new barn about completed, except the cement floors, which will be laid over until next spring. Visitors: James Hicks and daughter, Ruth, Moscow, visited his brother, D. R. Hicks, last week; Mrs. Hazle and sister, Mrs. Willes, Eskridge, Kansas, visiting their cousin, W. W. Hazle; Mrs. Minto, Park, Michigan, visiting his sister, Mrs. W. W. Davis, and niece, Mrs. D. R. Hicks, a few days ago; Mrs. D. R. Hicks and daughter, Berlie, visiting her mother, Mrs. John Palmer, near Bellevue. The Union girls' factory closed, on Saturday, after a successful season.
