This Pretty Girl Saved From Catarrh of the Lungs By Pe-runa.

MISS FLORENCE KENAH. Miss Florence E. Kenah, 431 Maria street, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "A few months ago I caught a severe cold, which settled on my lungs and remained there so persistently that I became almost blind. I took medicine without benefit, until my digestive organs became upset, and my head and back began to ache severely and frequently. I was advised to try Pe-runa, and although I had little faith I felt so sick that I was ready to try anything. It brought me blessed relief at once, and I felt that I had the right medicine at last. Within three weeks I was completely restored and have enjoyed perfect health since."

but have purchased several bottles to give to those without the means to buy, and have noticed without exception that it has brought about a speedy cure wherever it has been used.

Pe-runa Contains no Narcotics. One reason why Pe-runa has found permanent use in many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Pe-runa is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Pe-runa does not produce temporary results. Its permanent effect. It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Pe-runa has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Pe-runa contained any drugs of a narcotic nature. Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio. His last resting place was the police station. Napanee. He had been employed on the new work of the C.P.R. at Sudbury, as tender, but was taken ill with typhoid fever, and had been nearly three months in hospital there, and all his earnings were taken to pay his expenses in hospital. The C.P.R. gave him a pass to Toronto, as he had been engaged there for them, and from Toronto he walked to Kingston, as he was still weak and desirous to reach his father's home outside of Oshesburgh. He had been a sailor and sailed out of the burg. He was invited to sit down to tea with the missionary and his family, provided with sleeping accommodation, and after breakfast he was invited to proceed to walk sixty-two miles to Prescott, but rather than allow him to do that the missionary purchased a ticket to Prescott, and after a Christmas lunch, saw him off on the train to Prescott. He is a happy man when he came into the city, "Inasmuch as ye have," etc.

HISTORY OF ASTRONOMY. How We Learned What We Know About the Heavens.

The first of a series of lectures at the Biological Building of the University of Toronto to be given to the students upon subjects not normally dealt with in the curriculum was delivered by Prof. Baker on "The History of Astronomical Knowledge." The lecture was very entertaining, and was attended by a large number of students, and as it was public it was also attended by a number of outsiders. Prof. Baker dealt first with the appearances in the heavens which would have presented themselves to the notice of early astronomers. There were three of these appearances which would have been particularly noticeable. One was the fact that the planets all moved in the same direction about the sun. Another was the appearances resulting from the fact that the earth moved on its own axis. The motion of the planets in the sky was another appearance which presented itself for explanation, and it could easily be understood that they needed considerable acuteness of observation for their solution. The appearance of the "Odysey" which gave evidence of more than ordinary knowledge of the motion of the heavenly bodies. Prof. Baker read a few of the passages which served to illustrate the point. The early astronomers had been unaware of the chief cause of the appearances, namely, the motion of the earth with respect to them. The earliest conception of the universe that had deserved the name of a "theory" was that the stars were fixed in a crystalline sphere which during the day revolved about the earth from east to west. The motion of the sun and moon from west to east, however, had also to be accounted for, and this was done by simply multiplying the spheres in which the planets moved. This hypothesis, however, was itself not ample, and had to be modified, and the course of modification led to the modern conceptions of the universe. The sphere theories, however, were clung to for a long time, and were amplified to serve the increased perception of the orbits by the theories of eccentric spheres and epicycles. The system of Copernicus had made the sun the centre of movement around which the planets revolved. Subsequent developments had been due to the use of the telescope. The genius of Newton had deduced the law of the planets being determined by the force of an attraction in the sun. Finally, the secret had been wrung from the heavens and the law of gravitation had been discovered. The law alone, however, was not sufficient. What gravitation itself was had still to be learned.

Home From The Shanties. Reports From The Mount Peel Department bring accounts of very strange lives followed by people living in the western plains of Canada.

Reports From The Mount Peel Department bring accounts of very strange lives followed by people living in the western plains of Canada. Some of the inhabitants have gone there to endure hardships in preference to living in comfort in fashionable English homes. Not a few with "blue" blood in their veins have cast in their lot with the rugged westerners, though the aristocrats in many cases assumed names. In a report received recently by Comptroller White of the N.W.M.P., there is an interesting account of the finding of a strange individual in camp some nineteen miles from Selkirk. The report is from John Taylor, inspector of Division E of the police. He was sent last summer to meet the police steamer Vidette, and on his way an isolated camp was sighted. On entering he discovered a man who gave his name as Tollemache. Mr. Taylor says he believes the stranger a son of a baron of England, who at one time was a Lieutenant in the King's Royal Rifle Corps. His only companions were three dogs and a cat. He was crippled, the result of an accident many years ago. He gave no information about his previous life. Col. White expresses no surprise at information of this kind, as the circumstances of the person described are by no means uncommon, even if the supposition of the Inspector be true. Pegged Boots In Canada. There are few, if any, pegged boots made in the factories of the United States, while fifty years ago the sewing machine was yet unvented and nearly all shoes save the hand-sewed were hobbled or pegged. In Canada there are a few scattering factories producing pegged boots for men and boys. Adam Bertsch, a Rochester pattern manufacturer, recently ran across one at St. John's, Nfld. Mr. Bertsch was interested in the quaint manner in which the boots and shoes are manufactured, the machinery in use being long out of date, as compared with the present standard in the United States. There are no up-to-date methods, and one might easily imagine in stepping into this factory that the cycle of time had turned back forty or fifty years. The pegged boots are high cut, such as men wore generally before the war, and find a ready sale in Newfoundland and in Canada.—From the Shoe Retailer.
