Mr. Newlands prepared plans of the present treasury department, with large vault attached, and in due time these plans were adopted and contracts were let. The work-masonry, carpentry, plumbing and hot water seating, furniture, electric fittings, etc. -cost, according to the auditors' report (1904), 85,095.08, Now this large expenditure was not provided for in the budget, and though it was expected that some gain in revenue would be made, as a result of the reorganization of staff, the actual experiences were not anticipated. More of 1904's taxes were called in than had been estimated by the finance committee, more non-resident taxes, and large amount of the arrears of taxes. The auditors' report shows that 843,724.03, and although a much larger amount was due it will be re membered that the finance committee (see budget) estimated as collectable only $44,000.

Hence the record of the year was really remarkable, It was without parallel in recent years, Adding deficit of 1903 and the cost of improvements together and there is a total of $8,153.52. The deficit covered by the budget, but not the other item. And yet this extraordinary liability of $8,163,52 was removed excepting the small sum of $811. Was that not something to be proud of? Surely, and Ald. King had a hand in it. He was a member of the council for three years previously, and neither he nor those who were associated with him thought of the con-The best Oilcloth you ever solidation of offices, or if they not to tackle it ..

The Savings In Salaries.

Ald. King wants the Whig to talk about the saving of $600 in salaries. Why not? It is not a disagreeable subject. The treasurer's office, as the Whig has pointed out, was structed in 1904. The salaries not finally adjusted until this But the situation was so arranged and formulated that the saving had to take place. Mr. Ireland, by by-law passed in 1904, was made the head of the finance department, and its controller, Mr. Bartels was by by-law. made the tax collector, with the assurance that he would be compensated adequately for his extra labour. The water, and light, heat and power rates collectors were transferred treasury well that recommended. As a result there was nothing for this year's council to do arer and collector. One was advanced was $1,000. The amount allowed to the treasurer and collector, out "INVESTMENTS IN HOUSES this, is $100. Therefore the difference represents a saving of $600 per annum. By the way what did the council 905 do to secure the small surplus that is reported this year? Nothing The man who brought about the muc desired result was the auditor, the man whom Ald. King tried his best to keep out of office, and towards whom at times he has been somewhat curt. Mr. Miller kept the appropriation before him constantly and, long before the end of the year, suggested that the accounts be called in so that they might be passed and not come in at the eleventh hour and cause surprises. Moreover, the close checking of the auditor necessitated the analysis and taxation be maintained as in 1903, allotation of all charges by the large-10 to 20 Per Cent. (when Ald. OPEN LETTER TO ELECTORS From the Kingston Hosiery Co.,

You will, on Monday, January 1st, be exemption to the Kingston Hosiery company, and we beg to give you few facts in reference to same,

1.-The company started business twenty-three years ago, taking over property almost useless, and of ittle value, but by improvements they have made, it has now become valuable and also improved the adjoining property to such an extent that the gets a substantial revenue on what formerly was useless.

2.-The company is exempt up to the end of the present year so renewing he exemption will not affect the rate 3.—The company is now paying chool taxes and will continue to do 4. Under the old by law we agreed to pay $400 per week, while under the new arrangements we guarantee $1,000 5.-250 hands have steady employment and this number will be increased to 300 during the coming year. 6.—The company have spent during the past two years over $50,000 in improvements and intend to continue the policy, as in the past, of keeping the plant up to date.

7.—The increase in the number employees will mean additional wages and consequently increased trade in all lines of business.

8.-We employ a large number householders, who are all paying taxes and which will more than balance any concession the city may give us We would therefore ask you to sup port the by-law and assist us to meet the competition from other concerns which are bonused, and also enable us thought of the task took good care to continue our policy of increasing our plant as well as build up the trade of our city.-Yours truly, KINGSTON HOSIERY CO., LTD.

Lieut.-Col. Massie Took Observations as to the Conduct o the British Ammy Department -Given Every Possible Help.

Lieut.-Col. Massie, just returned from a four months stay at Aldershot, England, has been at Ottawa for several days, reporting on his observations and suggesting the formation of a veterinary corps for the dominion. Col Massie left here for England in August and was in September assigned to the staff at Aldershot, where he spent three months under Col. Rutherford, and above the $3,058.44 which the attending many inspections and leccouncil of 1903 left to it as a previtures and generally observing the procedure in connection with the army veterinary department. He was given every possible facility to become scized with all the details. Following that he was called to the war office in Logdon, and very cordially received and afforded all opportunity to investigate the procedure at this fountain head. He visited remount stations, studied the British war horses and took special courses as to forage, farriers' work and cognate subjects. At Aldershot he passed the examination of qualifica-

AT THE GRAND.

New Year's Matinee and Night Performances.

A new comedy from the pen of Norman Lee Swartout, author of "Sandy and many other equally successful farces, is scheduled for an early production by C. S. Williams. The nev farce is entitled "The Arrival of Kitty," and it is expected to make one the substantial hits of the year It is a comedy of complications, written along lines similar to those of the old Hovt laugh-makers, but entirely original in theme and treatment, and it is said to be one of the brightest and liveliest pieces of the sort that have been offered in many a day. M Williams believes that the time is ripe for the presentation of good, clean crisp farce like the "Arrival of Kitty and he has this season abandoned his other enterprises in favor of this line of entertainment. No pains nor expense will be spared in staging and equipping "The Arrival of Kitty," and the company will be the strongest and cleverest that can be engaged. performance will be further enlivened by the introduction of several bright specialties. At the Grand on New Year's day, matinee and night.

Rufus Rastus.

A new starring vehicle for Ernest Hogan, the "unbleached American' comedian has been launched by Hortig & Scaman, the New York managwhich they have given the title of "Rufus Rastus," and which will be seen at the Grand on Thursday, January 4th. There are said to be sixty dusky sons and daughters of Ham the support of Hogan.

Mrs. Temple's Telegram. Harry Conor and an exceptionally strong cast will present the most conspicuous London and New York come ly success, "Mrs. Temple's Telegram" at the Grand on Wednesday, January 3rd. Much can be said of the multi tudinous merits of this play, but it wi have to be seen from start to finish to enjoy its charming interlacing of philosophy and inoffensive fun. Built on entirely new and original lines "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," is more than a mere framework for laughter, as it has a bright and entertaining play that is always in evidence.
