Police Court-Saturday.

A goodly crowd of spectators witnessed proceedings in police court this morning. William Ropp, who last week was charged with theft and given a week's remand, was sentenced to six months in jail. Magistrate Farrell said he had given the prisoner a chance at a previous date, and it had not been taken advantage of. Harry Shepperd, a Johnston street resident, charged Michael Bulger with cutting his clothes-line and wilfully damaging a quantity of clothing. The case was dismissed.

The Blacksmith Here. The blacksmith, who made the "iim my," found on McKay's grounds, after the fur robbery of last month, arrived in the city last night. This morning he made a visit to the jail and when Feldman was brought before him, he positively identified him as the one for whom he made the "jimmy." This is a very important piece of evidence against William Feldman, and, with the evidence as shown at the police court trial, a month ago, would seem to point the finger of guilt at him.

Tuesday, 2nd

A few days ago a representative of one of the leading wholesale houses called on us. Said he had one of the finest lines of Ladies' Skirts ever made. But he received a sudden shock. We didn't want any skirts, couldn't think of taking any-we simply had all the skirts we felt competent to move before spring. But this chap didn't like a turn-down and begged to show at least that special line. Well, that was only fair, but we didn't then understand the chuckle of satisfaction he gave as he left to get his samples. We do now, though, Hs knew he had made just as good as a sale-knew all that was needed to decide us to buy a lot was a look at the goods and the prices marked. The character of these specials certainly surprised us. Length, sweep, style, flare, fit and finish were all they should be. while the prices were ever so far lower than we could have expected. We marked them all at just two prices-both low as possible. The number is limited too, so you must be around early Tuesday morning at just thirty minutes after nine they'll be placed on sale on left half of the second floor.
