SICK HEADACHE

Many varieties of headache exist, those most prevalent being sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, etc.

Headache is an effect of disease, the cry of the suffering body for relief from some oppressing disorder.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed in order to cure the headache permanently. Wrong action of the stomach, liver or bowels is responsible for nine out of ten cases of headache.

In sick headache (a very common form) there is sometimes nausea and vomiting and usually constipation.

In nearly all forms of headache

has proved itself a specific—a medicine that has cured where all others failed.

Keep the stomach, liver and bowels in perfect working order by the use of nature's regulator and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters, which cures all forms of headache by removing the cause.

Miss L. Smith, Morrisburg, Ont., writes: "I desire to let you know how much good Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled with headaches all the time, and could get no relief, until a friend told me of your Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles of it, I can say that I am completely cured."

MARSHALL FIELD

STARTED IN LIFE AS A FARMER BOY.

From a Clerkship in a Massachusetts Country Store He Went to Chicago and Became a Leader in the Mercantile World.

Marshall Field began life as a farmer's boy in Massachusetts, trying a clerkship in a country store. Then, going to Chicago, and growing up with the town, he finally became the head of a mercantile establishment which did a business of more than $50,000,000 a year.

Honesty and industry have always been associated with his name, and he was not a stranger to philanthropy and the arts. In addition to his dry-goods business he had extensive banking interests, owned more than $50,000,000 worth of real estate, was the chief stockholder of the Pullman company, held enormous quantities of railroad stocks and bonds, and was a director in the steel trust.

In spite of this colossal wealth he was a modest and retiring man, little known to society, though his handsome looks and cultivated mind were calculated to grace it.

It was a matter of pride with him the basis of his success had been cash. He never gave a note, never bought a share of stock on margin, never borrowed money nor allowed his property to be encumbered with mortgages; he bought for cash, sold on short time, and held his customers to a strict enforcement of their contracts.

Mr. Field was born in Western Massachusetts, in the little town of Conway, in 1835. Five years ago he gave the town a $100,000 public library in commemoration of the event. He received a common school and academy education, and at the age of seventeen went to Pittsfield, Mass., to become a dry-goods clerk. Having served there four years he started out for a place offering opportunities, and Chicago was his first and last stop.

There was no guarantee at that time that Chicago would become the western metropolis—in fact, the chances seemed rather in favor of St. Louis—but Mr. Field became a Chicagoan heart and soul, and the story of his life is a wonderfully close index of the city's history and growth.

Mr. Field obtained employment as a clerk in the wholesale dry-goods house of Cooley, Farwell & Co. His equipment at the outset in his new field of labor was health, brains, sound principles and ambition. Genuine worth did not have to wait for dead men's shoes to secure recognition in the broader field in which the young man found himself. His good qualities were promptly discovered by his employers and availed of to mutual advantage.

Mr. Field remained in the capacity of clerk only four years. In 1865 there was a partial reorganization, the new firm consisting of Mr. Field, L. Z. Leiter and Potter Palmer, under the firm name of Field, Palmer & Leiter. Two years later, Mr. Palmer withdrew, and until 1881 the style of the firm was Field, Leiter & Co. Mr. Leiter retired in the latter year and since that time the firm has been Marshall Field & Co.

The only break in the unexampled growth of the great mercantile house was that made by the fire of 1871. In that great calamity Mr. Field suffered proportionately with the city itself. His firm then did business at State and Washington streets, the present site of the new retail store of Marshall Field & Co. Everything was swept away by the flames, involving a loss of $3,500,000. The firm eventually recovered $9,500,000 insurance.

Mr. Field had an instinctive capacity for estimating the ability of his assistants. He also had a human side in his relations with them. The story is told of a small boy in his employ who once dared to ask Mr. Field for a raise in salary. "You're no bigger than a pint of cider," said the merchant gruffly. Then as the boy kept silent Mr. Field said:

"How much are you getting now?"

"Three dollars a week," replied the boy faintly.

"Three dollars a week!" exclaimed Mr. Field. "Why, when I was your age I got only $2."

"Well," spoke up the lad in desperation, "perhaps you weren't worth any more."

The reply amused the merchant millionaire and the boy got his advance.

Entirely outside his enormous dry-goods business, Marshall Field was estimated to be worth $150,000,000. He was assessed at $50,000,000 on real estate alone in Chicago and New York, and paid taxes on a $10,000,000 personality assessment without suggesting that the figures were too high.

Mr. Field's seventy years had turned his hair and moustache to a silvery white. He was a singularly distinguished looking man and a man whose dignified presence inspired respect in other persons. His first wife was Miss Nannie Scott, of Ironton, O. After her death at Nice, France, in 1896, Mr. Field was repeatedly reported to be engaged to the widow of Gen. Phil Sheridan. This Mr. Field denied, and on September 5th of last year he married Mrs. Arthur Caton, a wealthy English woman.

Marshall Field, Jr., died in Mercy hospital, Chicago, on November 27th, 1905, from a self-inflicted pistol wound which his family declared to have been accidental, and left three children, Marshall Field III, aged ten; Henry, nine, and Gwendolin, four.

The elder Field had one other child, Mrs. Ethel Beatty, who was divorced from a wealthy Englishman named Arthur Tree, and later married a British army captain.

A prominent Chicagoan once said that Chicago would never know what Marshall Field had been to it until after he was dead. In all his giving he was unostentatious, and it is more than likely that his greatest benefactions have never been told. He made many gifts of land to Chicago University, including "Marshall Field," university athletic grounds. He offered Chicago $10,000,000 with which to build and endow a permanent home for the Field Columbian Museum of Art. He was a member of the Presbyterian church, and a democrat in politics, having been a favorite candidate (against his will) for the vice-presidential nomination at St. Louis in 1904.

The Struggle For Breath

In Asthma and Bronchitis is Promptly Relieved By

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine

The wonderful success of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine in relieving the terrible paroxysms of asthma and the hard, dry cough of bronchitis, and in positively curing these ailments, is the best proof that it is far more than a mere "cough mixture."

This well-known medicine is composed of a number of simple yet powerful ingredients, which are of proven value in the cure of diseases of the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs. It is prepared by a long and tedious process, that cannot be carried out in filling a prescription at a drug store.

The ingredients are always fresh and of the best quality obtainable, for the reputation which Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has built up in years of success must be maintained by every bottle that is sold.

Persons who have suffered from asthma for years tell us that they never found anything to bring such prompt and lasting relief. Sufferers from bronchitis have a similar experience, and, while this medicine is not recommended as a cure for consumption, it does bring wonderful relief from the dreadful cough that so tortures the weakened patient.

John Clark, coachman, Port Hope, Ont.

"Being exposed to all sorts of weather I frequently catch cold. Last winter I was so bad with a cold that I could not speak above a whisper, and had great pains in the chest. At last I feared it would develop into consumption if I did not not succeed in getting proper treatment. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine and I began to improve before I had taken half a bottle. One bottle cured my cold which I believe would have proven very serious if I had not used this medicine."

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, 25c. a bottle, at all dealers.

Insist on seeing the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, on the bottle you buy.

MISS ZAIDEE COBB.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund M. Cobb, Washington, D.C., has become engaged to Cornelius N. Bliss, jr., of New York and the wedding will take place some time in the spring. Miss Cobb is considered one of the beauties of Washington, is a splendid athlete and one of the finest horsewomen of the Capital.

THE ROYAL DAISY.

Man Preferred Crushing it to Being Crushed.

The motherwit of the Berliner was illustrated recently by one of the frequent mishaps to which those travellers on the street cars expose themselves. A working man, jumping off a car before it had stopped, was threatened with being run over by a car approaching on a parallel line. Saving himself by jumping on to the grass of the public garden close by, the voice of a guardian of law and order called out, 'Get off the grass, where you have no business.' Whereupon, the man who had just escaped from being crushed to death, roared back furiously, 'Shut up, you will. Am I to be made into sausage meat because meat is dear? I prefer the chance of crushing a royal and imperial daisy in the grass.' And with that he made off, followed by the applause of the onlookers.

Accused Army Man Ends Life.

Berlin, Jan. 25.—A young lieutenant belonging to the Hanoverian pioneer battalion has just committed suicide in singular circumstances. He had, it is alleged, insulted a woman in the street, and drew his sword with the intention of attacking the man who accompanied her.

The woman complained to the colonel of the regiment, and as a result the lieutenant was dismissed from the army.

The officer was on duty until midday and went straight home, without calling on his colonel. Later he was found in his rooms with his brains blown out. He had taken his life before even removing his tunic.

Thrifty Scots.

A balance of ten millions sterling due to depositors was announced at the annual meeting of the Glasgow Savings Bank. The lord provost, who presided, said that this was a record in the bank's history. A hundred thousand depositors have £10 each to their credit. Glasgow depositors have saved more than Liverpool and Manchester combined.

South Bay Warmth.

South Bay, Jan. 21.—Fine, warm, spring weather is what we are having now; no snow, but good wheeling. There is not any ice in the lake yet, so that navigation is open. A meeting at Carmen church last Thursday night was a success. Rev. J. J. Ray, Picton, gave a very interesting lecture; the subject was "Jack and Jill." The proceeds were $34.60. There will be a social at the South Bay church some time in the coming week. Frank Williams is visiting his father, James Williams, license inspector. D. J. Cronk has bought the Arden cheese factory from W. G. Vanderburgh, as well as the Mountain Grove, and Long Lake factories from Samuel Abbott. Edward Deline, a former resident of Kennebec, for many years, is stopping for a while, with his son, Frank, north of Cross Lake.

A QUESTION OF COST.

In any number of stores you'll see various preparations of cod liver oil at as many different prices. You'll wonder, perhaps, why Scott's Emulsion costs more than some other kind in as large a bottle. Hearing only one side of the question you may be led into buying the "just as good as Scott's" at the lower price. That's false economy. Scott's Emulsion costs more because its more expensive to make. Every ingredient is tested and guaranteed of the purest quality. No adulteration, no shaving of quality. There's no economy in bargain medicine. If you can afford to experiment with your health, substitutes may satisfy you. We take it, however, that you want a pure preparation, a reliable remedy and something that's going to help you. That's what you get in Scott's Emulsion. Thirty years the standard.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Toronto, Ont.

LIPTON'S START.

How the Great English Shop-Keeper Began.

Sir Thomas Lipton was called the other day "the most successful shopkeeper this country had ever known," these being the words of a well-known English peer. In any case it can be said, without contradiction, that no one but a man of extraordinary ability, enterprise and concentrative energy could have done what Lipton has accomplished in the short space of twenty-nine years. One of the reasons of Lipton's success was his determination to keep out of debt at all hazards and to buy only as much as he could pay for. But on one occasion, when his business was in its infancy, he employed an agent in Ireland to purchase Irish butter for him in order that he should not have to deal with a middleman and to save the middleman's profits. But this agent purchased more butter than Lipton could pay for.

"If I didn't take the goods the agent had bought I knew that I should lose him, and he was a smart man," says Sir Thomas. "I found that I was $3 short, so I resolved to pawn my silver watch, and this was the amount the pawnbroker gave me for it. I paid the bill, kept my agent redeemed my watch shortly afterwards, and, the best of all kept out of debt."

Lipton, at the beginning of his career, when he opened his first shop at Stobeross street, Glasgow acted as his own salesman and then his own errand boy, after the shop was closed at night. He had laid down a few hard and fast rules which he says were the recipe for his success. These in his own words were:

"Be honest. Keep pushing. Use indement. Treat your customers well."

WEDDING AT BEDFORD.

A Very Happy Event Last Week.

Bedford, Jan. 22.—Last Tuesday morning, at nine o'clock, the Sacred Heart church bell pealed forth its announcement of the arrival of the bridal party from the home of James Hickey, Cole Lake. The church was elegantly adorned, giving an aspect of joy. The contracting parties were Miss Josephine, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hickey, and Edward J. J. Madden, Burridge.

The bride, attired in white taffeta silk with veil and wreath to match, attended by her sister Mary, looked beautiful as she proceeded to her place before the altar, followed by the groom and his attendant, Edward McAllister, Fermoy. The blessing of the nuptial and celebration of the mass were performed by Rev. Father Le Clerk Superior, in the presence of a number of invited relatives and friends.

After the congratulations of all present they drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a large crowd awaited their arrival. After the usual congratulation, the bridal party proceeded to the dining tables, which were handsomely decorated and laden with all kinds of delicacies; a most enjoyable repast was partaken of. Dinner over, T. McNicholas and J. Murphy enlivened the company by some very fine selections in music, until four o'clock, when the bridal party and guests all drove to the future home of the bride at Burridge, where a grand reception was given them by Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan, performing the part of host and hostess. After a delicious tea was served, dancing was in order, music supplied by Hartman's orchestra, until a late hour, when all left, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Madden a long and happy married life.

The bride received many beautiful presents, among them a handsome gold watch and chain, gift from the groom, also a gold bracelet to the bridesmaid. John Madden's gift to the bride was a $20 gold piece; the parents' present, a handsome bedroom suit in mahogany, showing the high esteem in which the bride was held by all. She was a graduate from Notre Dame convent, Westport, and performed the duty of public school teacher for a few years; latterly she was engaged with a New York dry goods company as demonstrator. The groom is a wealthy young farmer, an only son, and a favorite with all his associates.

THE DAM SWEPT AWAY.

Mild Weather Causes Damage at Cobden.

Cobden, Ont., Jan. 24.—The dam which supplies power for electricity for Alexander McLaren's roller mill here, was swept away. The volume of water and ice carried away the bridge on the road leading from Cobden to Foresters' Falls and Haley's.

Curtis Phillips and family who have charge of the power house, had a narrow escape, the water sweeping away the stable and horses, three of which were drowned; the water also rising to a depth of five feet in the house.

This is a serious loss to Mr. McLaren, as the dam was swept away twelve years ago. Great sympathy is expressed for Mr. Phillips in his loss of horses and buildings.
