JUST FOR BOY'S SAKE.

Father Begins Study to Keep Pace With Son.

Philadelphia Record.

A scante merchant residing in West Philadelphia has purchased a "First Lesson in Electricity," and reads it so constantly that until he recently explained his friends were wondering whether he was thinking of giving up commerce and going in for a scientific career, or what.

"No, it's my boy," he said when asked this question. "I had a fairly good education in the rudiments of all the sciences that figured when I went to school, and I've been able generally to meet the boy's questions with fair success. When he went in for saw, hammer and nails I was able to show him a few things about the grain of wood, right angles, bevels and other points of carpentry; then when he became interested in steam engines I managed to face his conundrums about condensation, expansion and what not. It was the same through his studies of windmills, the properties of liquids and similar interesting fields, and he came to think that I was a pretty good sort of an assistant.

"About a month ago, however, he struck electricity—or, rather, electricity struck him—and he is rapidly losing all faith in me as his guide, philosopher and friend. My school studies in electricity concerned only the basic principles of the mysterious force so far as they were known, but the boy wants to know now how to make armatures, induction coils, buzzers, relays and a lot of more things I can't even remember the name of. And when he gets them he wants to know why they operate as they do—a curiosity I have always encouraged and helped him to satisfy. But I'm up against it now, and that's why you see me mourning over "First Lessons in Electricity."

Peterboro Excited.

Peterboro people grew pale when they read that Kingston had been promised a normal school, at least D. M. McIntyre so announced. The premier was wired to by the Peterboro Examiner, whether it had been definitely decided to establish a school in Kingston, and got the reply:

"The policy of creating additional normal schools must first be adopted by the legislature, on motion of the government. Should that occur the question of the location will then be considered."

The Examiner calls the Kingston story "a post-election roorback," and concludes from the premier's telegram that the premier "contradicts McIntyre's normal school ghost story." Other people, however, cannot see any contradiction.

Appeal To Children.

The Anglican bishops have issued a pastoral letter to the scholars of 1,500 Sunday schools throughout the dominion, urging them to make special efforts to increase the Lenten missionary offering to $10,000. Mite boxes are to be given out by each Sunday school teacher, and the children are urged to be active in their collections throughout the season. The initial collection three years ago was $5,000, in 1904 it was $6,000, and in 1905, $7,000.

Humanity Beautiful.

It has been said in cold print that men are growing more handsome and women more beautiful and that the progress of civilization, the better understanding of the laws of health, is to bring a time when all of us will be of absolute beauty—or, rather, not us but our ultimate remote descendants. It is a little difficult to feel envy, hatred and malice for one's descendants, but this news is enough to induce that evil state of mind.

REV. HENRY F. LYLE

AUTHOR OF "ABIDE WITH ME" REMEMBERED.

Bishop of Pennsylvania Asks for Subscriptions to Complete Memorial Church in Devonshire, England—Fishermen Are Building It.

A subscription is being organized by the bishop coadjutor of Pennsylvania, Dr. Alex. Mackay-Smith, for the completion of the rebuilding of the memorial church in Devonshire, which honors the memory of him who wrote the most modern English hymns. Says the bishop in a letter to the Philadelphia press:

It is sixty years since the Rev. Henry Francis Lyle, who wrote the beautiful hymn, "Abide With Me," died at Nice, and this year a final effort is being made in the far distant little seaport in Devonshire, where he lived and ministered for twenty-five years, to complete the rebuilding of the memorial church, which has taken the fishermen thirty years to build. Now it is finished all but the upper portion of the great belfry tower, but their own money is exhausted. Ten thousand dollars more is wanted to build the rest of the tower and to provide and hang the bells.

The story of the writing of the hymn is very touching. The gifted preacher and poet, who had refused all preferment and lived only to devote himself to the Brixham fishermen, found himself at the age of fifty-four stricken with consumption, and grieved to the heart to think that he would so soon be called away, leaving his work only half done, he prayed that it might be granted to him at least to write something which should live to the glory of God and the comfort of his fellowmen when he was dead.

The prayer was granted. On the very last day of his ministry at Brixham, when he had preached and administered the holy communion to his flock for the last time, as he sat in his study and gazed on the sun setting over the bay, the words of the hymn came into his mind, like an inspiration. He wrote them down and gave them to his wife to keep. Next day he bade farewell to her and to home and set forth with his son to go to Nice in search of health, which was never again to be his. He died a month later and the hymn was first sung by the fishermen in Brixham on the Sunday in November, when the news reached them of his death.

Thirty years later that church in which he had ministered became so dilapidated that a new generation of fisherfolk, among whom his memory was tenderly cherished, resolved to rebuild it. But Brixham is a poor place, and although the parishioners have ever since given and collected all they could, the work has gone slowly. Bit by bit, it has been rebuilt, as the money came in, and it is only now, when the work is nearly done, since the task is beyond their strength to finish unaided, that they cry for help to save the scaffolding.

Hundreds of thousands—perhaps millions of English-speaking men, women and children, in every quarter of the globe—have at one time or other felt a real uplift in of the heart when they sang this hymn. Round many an open grave it has been sung, to many it brings tears to the eyes—tears of sweet, sad memories. Will not those who love the hymn do some little thing for the sake of the poor old parson-poet who wrote it, in sorrow of heart, all those years ago, and who to use his words of his intimate friend, Dean Hole, who was known to many in America, "would have rejoiced to the very bottom of his heart," to see the beautiful church rising on the bleak hillside—a beacon to sea and land—and to hear the bells ring out over the bay on Sunday when the harbor is filled with boats as the fishermen come ashore?

THE GAME OF PELOTA.

One of the Popular Pastimes in Spain.

Pelota is the national ball game of Spain. The game demands a court 270 feet long and 35 feet wide, bounded by a wall thirty feet high and sixty feet wide, and the other sides by a net about twelve feet high. The onlookers watch the struggles of the six players in the arena. The players are armed with a sickle-shaped basket, and with this instrument the ball is swiftly hurled against the top wall, caught on the first rebound and returned with force. The ball must be served against the wall in the first instance over a line drawn three feet from the ground, and it must rebound within the court. The return must be made on the volley or first rebound. Failure in any of these respects loses a point and the service if the serving side be in fault.

HIDDEN WEALTH OF INDIA.

Some of These Immense Treasures Are Lost Forever.

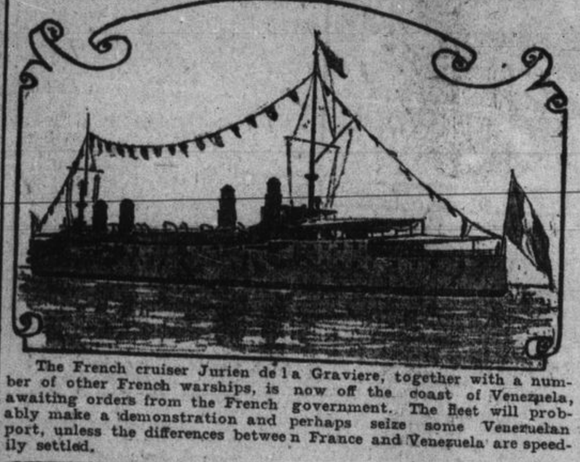
From Spare Moments.

It would be an immense benefit to all mankind if the stores of gold now held by individuals in India could be made available for general use. Ever since the dawn of history that country has been gathering gold and hiding it away. Treasures of almost incalculable values are possessed by many Indian princes.

When the Maharajah of Burdwan died the stock of gold and silver left by him was so large that no member of the family could make an accurate estimate of it. A report made to the British government by a secret agent stated that on the estate of the defunct potentate were a number of treasure houses, one of them containing three rooms. The largest of these three rooms was forty-eight feet long, and was filled with ornaments of gold and silver, plates and cups, washing bowls, jugs and so forth—all of precious metals. The two other rooms were full of bags and boxes of gold mohurs and silver rupees. The door of this and other treasure houses had been bricked up for nobody knows how long.

These valuables, according to an ancient custom, were in the custody of the maharajah's wife, the vaults being attached to her apartments, but none of them was allowed to be opened save in the presence of the master. One vault was filled with ornaments belonging to different gods of the family. The natives of India commonly buy their hoards, and among the poorer classes a favorite hiding place is a hole dug beneath the bed. Disused wells are sometimes employed for the same purpose.

It is undoubtedly a fact that many hoards thus deposited are lost forever. Gold is also valued on religious grounds. The gods take up great quantities of gold, silver and precious stones. The temples contain vast amounts of the yellow and white metals. The habit of hoarding seems to have been induced by ages of misgovernment, during which oppression and violence were rife. No feeling of safety existing, it was natural that the natives should adopt the practice of reducing their wealth to a concentrated shape and hiding it.



The French cruiser Jurien de la Graviere, together with a number of other French warships, is now off the coast of Venezuela, awaiting orders from the French government. The fleet will probably make a demonstration and perhaps seize some Venezuelan port, unless the differences between France and Venezuela are speedily settled.

We Will Buy

You a Bottle of Liquozone, and Give It to You to Try.

We make few claims of what Liquozone will do. And no testimonials are published to show what it has done. We prefer that each sick one should learn its power by a test. That is the quickest way to convince you.

So we offer to buy the first bottle and give it to you to try. Compare it with common remedies; see how much more it does. Don't cling to the old treatments blindly. The scores of diseases which are due to germs call for a germicide. Please learn what Liquozone can do.

What Liquozone Is.

The virtues of Liquozone are derived solely from gases. The formula is sent to each user. The process of making requires large apparatus, and from 8 to 14 days' time. It is directed by chemists of the highest class. The object is to so fix and combine the gases as to carry into the system a powerful tonic-germicide.

Contact with Liquozone kills any form of disease germ, because germs are of vegetable origin. Yet to the body Liquozone is not only harmless, but helpful in the extreme. That is its main distinction. Common germicides are poison when taken internally. That is why medicine has been so helpless in a germ disease. Liquozone is exhilarating, vitalizing, purifying; yet no disease germ can exist in it.

We purchased the American rights to Liquozone after thousands of tests had been made with it. Its power had been proved, again and again, in the most difficult germ diseases. Then we offered to supply the first bottle free in every disease that required it. And over one million dollars have been spent to announce and fulfill this offer.

The result is that 11,000,000 bottles have been used, mostly in the past two years. Today there are countless cured ones, scattered everywhere, to tell what Liquozone has done.

But so many others need it that this offer is published still. In late years, science has traced scores of diseases to germ attacks. Old remedies do not apply to them. We wish to show those sick ones—at our cost—what Liquozone can do.

Where It Applies.

These are the diseases in which Liquozone has been most employed. In these it has earned its widest reputation. In all of these troubles we supply the first bottle free. And in all—no matter how difficult—we offer each user a two months' further test without the risk of a penny.

Man wants but little, in very truth, in Burmah, as most of the peasants live at a cost of five or six cents a week, chiefly on rice. Of this cereal no less than 150 different varieties are grown. Agricultural methods and appliances are primitive, but the soil is so rich that the introduction of up-to-date machinery, the production of rice could be easily quadrupled."

At Paterson, N.J., eye specialists who have been treating the son of John Schmidt, a musician, say the lad was blinded by having had an abnormal appetite for highly colored candy. The doctors say the eyes were weak, and the aniline compounds affected the weak part of the optic nerve. Two months ago the child was totally blind, but his sight is being gradually restored.

The establishment of the greatest electric power station in the world in Chicago, capable of developing 230,000 horse-power is described in the Technical World Magazine. One of the greatest engineering feats of the generation is the building of the Diamond Shoals Lighthouse on the sunken reef off Cape Hatteras, long the dread of seamen. An artificial island, with steel frame and a concrete stuffing, is made as a foundation.

Charles Wurren Stoddard's "Misadventure in the Campagna," is a story in the life of this famous author and reveals delightful glimpses of old Rome, most romantic of living cities. "The World for Christ" is Mary Crawford's story of the growth of the Christian Endeavor Union during its first quarter century now closing.

A despatch announces the engagement of the Marquis of Graham, eldest son of the Duke of Montrose, to Lady Mary Hamilton, the only daughter of the late twelfth Duke of Hamilton and Brandon, and the richest heiress in the United Kingdom. Lady Mary owns the island of Arran on the Clyde, is very popular, and only recently attained her majority. The marquis is a keen yachtsman. He tried to get into parliament by standing for Stirlingshire last month, but was unsuccessful

Broughton Brandenburg, president of the National Instute of Immigration, tells in the March issue of the Technical World Magazine, of the great fight between mill and mine-owners, and the empire-builders of the undeveloped west, for the control of the more than a million immigrants who come to the United States each year. Victory for the first means the concentration of great foreign population in city slums; victory for the empire-builders means the wide distinction of the newcomers over a rich, healthful and undeveloped country.

History Of The Thimble.

Pittsburg Gazette.

The origin of the thimble has been a subject of the thought and researches of learned and patient antiquaries, some of whom have collected examples of varied dates, forms and substances in the course of years devoted to archaeological pursuits. It is contended by some that the metal thimble is a Dutch invention of only two centuries ago, while others claim for it an antiquity of some 2,000 years at least.
