William Cockade, William Sands and F. Reid be granted the increases provided for in the by-law. Ald, Bassam asked concerning the fire limits. He instanced a case where a Princess street owner had begun the erection of a frame building in rear of his shop. When it was up, h found the erection was contrary to the by-law, and if the building was to Kingston's Only Exclusive remain it would have to be bricked

The chairman pointed out that the fault was the loose manner in which the by-laws had been enforced of late cears. The law required that per sons erecting buildings should secure a permit from the city engineer and also file a plan with him. Ald. Millan said that if the by-law was enforced, there would be quite a number of people who would be forced to take down wooden buildings they had erected within the fire limits.
