Baronet Also Makes "Spite" Will Leaving Helpmeet and Daughter Only Shilling Each. London, March 8 .- In a will quite lately proved the testator bequeathed to a certain person "the sum of ten eents for the purchase of a hempen cord or halter for the use of his dear wife, which, I trust, she may make use of without delay." Angry comments or spiteful bequests are seldom found in modern wills Such few of the unkind sort as have been noticed concern women, but women's own wills seem always to be kindly. They contain often charitable angry or spiteful comments. An Irish baronet gave no reason for leaving his wife and daughter only me shilling each. A Cumberland yeoman, whose will began, "I bequeath meagre provision, but a Yorkshire manufacturer of good means excused himself from making any provision for his wife because she had not conformed to his religious opinions and

A North country shipbuilder, who left personal estate to the amount of $100,000, advised the executors of his have plenty of trouble with his wife a sum of $2,000, payable until she married again or tried to destroy his furniture by throwing vitriol over it for she had never taken any pleasure

Another testator left to his wife one farthing, to be sent to her by post in an unstamped envelope. He stated his grievances at some length Generally, people are seen at their best in their wills. The desire to be just is usually evident. Ninety per cent, of the property disposed of and near relations.
