Giant's Coffin Is Found.

Workmen engaged on excavations alongside an ancient Roman Catholic chapel at Bristol, England, recently unearthed in a deep trench the coffin of Patrick O'Brien, a giant from Kinsale, who died in Bristol 100 years ago. His height was eight feet four inches. Identity was established by the coffin plate. The coffin and remains will be reburied.

TURBINIA IS HERE

SHE WILL GO INTO THE DRY-DOCK.

For Scraping and General Overhauling—Capt. Bongard Taken to the Hospital, With a Bad Finger.

The steamship Turbinia arrived in port, Tuesday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, from Montreal, after her winter in Cuban waters. There was quite a crowd at the government dry-dock to see this fine boat, as she entered. She will have her hull scraped and repainted.

Immediately on the steamer docking Dr. Garrett hastened on board to attend to Capt. Bongard, who was suffering from his finger, which was pricked, Tuesday, by a steel cable. It was found that blood poisoning had set in and the captain was removed to the general hospital.

The Turbinia left Montreal, Tuesday morning early, and was delayed on her trip to Kingston by a cable being caught in one of her wheels as she was coming through the Cornwall canal. Her crew, made up principally of men picked up in Montreal to bring her as far as the Limestone City, were paid off.

The Turbinia Cuban route this winter, between Cuba and Jamaica, it is rumored, was not a paying one, owing to the fact of the trip being a night one and the steamer's lack of state-rooms. She will not likely leave Ontario next winter. The Turbinia attracted much attention in the southern waters, as no steamships plying in the water could compare with her in point of speed, the fastest with which she came in contact was the Port Kingston, of the Elder-Demster line, which was beat out by forty minutes on a fifty-mile run.

The trip from Cuba to Montreal is best told by one of the crew: "We expected to find some ice, but certainly not such a closely jammed body of it. It is somewhat late to find it remaining in such quantities. We ran into it first after we were several hours out, on Friday evening, April 20th, and were kept working around and through it until Monday morning, then we became clear of it in the Baie de Chaleurs. We were also delayed for about twelve hours by a heavy snow storm in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and were compelled during that time to lay off Cape Chatte. The heavy, close-packed Gulf ice, however, caused most of our difficulty. It reaches for seventy-five or eighty miles, some of the cakes being 100 feet in length by eight in thickness. North of Gaspe there is no ice."

His Sweethearts Two.

J. C. McNally, Joliet, Ill.

One was the wife with the winsome kiss,
One was the babe she bore;
These were the bringers of all his bliss,
These were his life and more.
Out of the lareard the lion grew,
This was the luck of him;
Wooed by the wiles of his sweethearts two,
Jenny and Little Jim.

He who had dozed in the shining sun
Woke with a sweet new thrill;
He, with no record of duty done,
Roused with a wish and will.
Reached to the plane of the higher few,
This was the luck of him;
Lifted and led by his sweethearts two,
Jenny and Little Jim.

Preacher nor priest could his soul entice,
Yet was he lured to grace;
Saved by the blue of the baby eyes,
Saved by the fond embrace.
Day broke at last on the darkened view,
This was the luck of him;
Charmed to the truth by his sweethearts two,
Jenny and Little Jim.

One was the wife with the winsome kiss,
One was the babe she bore;
Man may not know greater joy than his,
Angels may ask no more.
Ell h heaven beamed as he upward grew,
Blessing the luck of him,
Loved into light by his sweethearts two,
Jenny and Little Jim.

The Germ Of Leprosy.

Ottawa, May 2.—Dr. Morgan, editor of Canadian Men and Women of the Time, is in receipt of a letter advising him that Dr. W. J. Goodhue, medical superintendent at the leper settlement at Molokai, Hawaii, who has devoted many years to the investigation of leprosy, clinically, bacteriologically and chemically, has discovered the germ of leprosy in the mosquito and in the bedbug. This is considered a very great discovery in the medical world, and will be especially interesting to Canadians, as Dr. Goodhue, to whose painstaking studies the discovery is due, is one of themselves. He was born at Arthabaskaville, Quebec, October 8th, 1869, and is well-known to Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A Voice in Favor of Opening Clarence Street Park.

Kingston, May 2.—(To the Editor): In your yesterday's issue, I notice a letter from "Leave Well Enough Alone," criticising the Frontenac Historical Society's scheme to open up a park on Clarence street. First, let me say that I have no connection with that historical society, but have watched with interest and appreciation the press reports of their doings, nor am I particularly concerned about upholding the parks' committee. If "Leave Well Enough Alone" represents the congregation of St. George's cathedral, I would not press for the proposed change. But judging from his marked discoloration of facts and slight regard for truth, I would be inclined to doubt that he represents any religious body.

He objects to St. George's grounds being opened up to trespassers, and yet they are already exposed on two sides; could any great harm result by exposure on the third? A few paths or cinder tracks could easily be made which, no doubt, the public would respect enough to patronize and save the grass. Is it any sin to walk near a church? He talks about the destruction of valuable property. Undoubtedly those fences originally cost a good deal of money, and when first built were a necessity, but they do not represent any money value to-day, as customs and ideas on this question have undergone a complete change. On the contrary the removal of them would enhance the appearance and value of the cathedral.

He also complains of the great expense which the taxpayers would be subjected to. Did he stop to figure what the increase in taxation would be? It would be so infinitesimely small as to be insignificant. And yet, when any new project is pronounded, we constantly hear the objection that it will raise the taxes, and this is just one of the reasons why our city is kept back, because some people are not willing to pay the price of a good thing. There are other places not far away, of smaller proportions and pretentions than Kingston, paying higher rates of taxes and going ahead, while we stand still, because of our sparse economy.

He also says that the removal of the fences would open up these grounds to "wayward trespassers" and the "motley throng" and thus offers insult to our city and citizens. By the placing of proper lights at these points, this difficulty will be very easily obviated.—PROGRESS.

A BOX OF CANDY.

Bribed Youthful Elopers to Postpone Matrimony.

Albany Journal.

The custom of telling little boys and girls that they are sweethearts, etc., had a curious effect on one youngster the other evening. He is eight years old, and has a mind of his own. He became displeased at the conduct of his father, and suddenly left the house. Some hours later the telephone bell rang in the home of the youngster's parents, and this conversation ensued:

"Hello! This is Dr. Blank. Your son Harry is here with Miss Gertrude ——, and wants to get married. Your consent is needed. Will you give it?"

"Just hold the couple there and I'll be down."

A few minutes later the father was at the minister's house, and, sure enough, there was Harry and his seven-year-old sweetheart. Asked by his parent why he wanted to get married, he said:

"You don't treat me right at home and we thought we would make a home for ourselves."

The very young couple were bribed to postpone the wedding for a few years. The bribe was a box of candy.

LONG BIRD JOURNEYS.

They Are Tired and Thin After Their Voyage.

That birds of the family termed surf birds in the Hawaiian islands should leave that paradise of the Pacific to go and rear their young in the tundras of Alaska would seem to many an extraordinary proceeding. Yet so it is; the turnstone and the black bellied plover and the Pacific golden plover make the long journey of about 4,000 miles thither annually, leaving the islands in May, when the snows of the Arctic, in melting, leave the cranberries and other low growing fruits of the great swamps of the tundras, which stretch across the bosom of the Arctic circle, as fresh as when they were first ripened by the perpetual sunshine of the Arctic summer.

Under the deep covering of snow the immense quantity of food has been lying during the winter months, for the snows froze it before the birds had time to gather it all, and they preserved it both from the effects of frost and decomposition, fresh and pure as when it first ripened toward the end of the Arctic summer. In August the birds, beginning their migration southward, have to leave much untouched.

Millions of our own European birds go to the tundras of Siberia and to Iceland and Greenland and other northern resorts, rearing their young there under the same conditions. The birds that leave the warm islands of the Pacific in May go in good condition, and in their bravest nuptial plumage, across to California, to strike northward to Alaska. The return about the middle of August, old and young alike, in very poor condition, exhausted by the long voyage.

Canada Did Not Vote.

London, May 3.—The Postal Union conference, at Rome, rejected the proposition of universal penny postage. Canada abstained from voting on the question. The United States, Egypt and Australia favored the motion.

Success With Millinery

The biggest fact in connection with this season's Millinery business is that we have the styles shoppers most admire, with more attractive things at our disposal than we ever remember. Wish there was a newspaper way of showing how very different our styles are. Ladies in any sense hard to please are just the kind of customers we want.

See the new Hats — See the new Flowers
See the new Sailors — See the new Trimmings

The stock is as you want it, with ample variety to choose from and surprising economy in the values. Easily and beyond question the most attractive Millinery showing within your reach.

We trim to order in any style you say. Give us all the time you can—so much to do, and no chance to rush, on good work.
