TORTURED BY ITCHING ECZEMA

Suffered Tremendous Itching Over Whole Body—Scratched Until Bled—Worse at Night, With Soreness and Excruciating Pains—A Western Lady's

WONDERFUL CURE BY CUTICURA REMEDIES

"Last year at this time I suffered with a tremendous itching on my back, which grew worse and worse until it spread over the whole body, and only my face and hands were free. For four months or so I suffered the torments of the damned, and I had to scratch, scratch, scratch, until I bled. At night when I went to bed things got worse, and I had at times to get up and scratch my body all over, until I was as sore as could be, and until I suffered excruciating pains. I did not know what it was, and resorted to a number of eminent physicians, until they told me that I was suffering from eczema. Then I made up my mind that I would use Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. I used them according to instructions, and very soon indeed I was greatly relieved. I continued until well, and now I am ready to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one who suffers as did your obedient servant. Mrs. Mary Metzger, Sweetwater, Okla., June 28, 1905."

Inviting Public Attention.

The city property committee is disposed to revise the scheme for spending $7,000 on the city hall, in remodeling its interior and in beautifying it.

The hall needs some repairs. The assembly rooms invite the attention of the painter, and by the exercise of his skill, for a moderate sum, they could be made most presentable. The entrance, and the corridors, similarly need the attention of the man of paint, and if he uses his judgment aright, as to colours and contrasts, he can produce results which will be very gratifying.

In the north wing the hot water system should be introduced, and the windows be changed so as to correspond with the windows on the south wing, and all this can be done for perhaps $1,500. The council chamber has just been renovated, is still redolent of oil and varnish, and looks very attractive in its new decoration.

The committee, with appetite whetted by what it has just accomplished, would indulge in extravagance by undertaking work that is not called for at the present time and incurring expense which can be very well spared. The people, says the mayor, can be trusted to do the proper thing, to give the proper verdict and vote when they are appealed to, and this city hall scheme welcomes their opinion in no uncertain way. There are some things wanted very badly, as the Whig has pointed out, but $1,500 should cover the cost of them.

Wishire And Mrs. Grundy.

Wishire, in his magazine, gives his version of Gorley's reception by New York and Mrs. Grundy. The meeting of the Russian author and his admirers was very cordial. The opening function, a supper, was attended by men who are distinguished in literature. For about a week the attentions paid to the visitor were all that could be desired. Then the World gave out the gossip respecting Gorley's bigamous conduct, and at once there was a storm cyclonic in its character. Wishire does not appreciate the spasmodic display of morality, or alleged morality, in America. Thousands of men, he alleges, are living with women under the same relations that Maxim Gorley holds with Madlle. Andrieva. They have wearied of their first marriage, and have entered into second marital conditions, which, though sanctioned by laws, which recognize divorce in certain states, after all are declared by the supreme court to be illegal and improper. These people should be more sympathetic, says Wishire, they belong to the class that can spend their summers in Europe, and it would be a fitting experience if they, on landing in Liverpool, were cast out as socially uneducated for association with decent people.

From Hearst's paper (the North American) comes an explanation that commends itself to the great socialist editor. It is that there is in Russia a revolutionary government, all ready to take the place of the czar's government, as circumstances demand, and it has promulgated plans for the guidance of its subjects. According to one law divorce is allowed, and Gorley has complied with it, has cast off his wife and married Madlle. Andrieva. The performance is likened in regularity with the marriages which were contracted in Cuba during the revolutionary period.

Yet the American people are not reconciled. Mrs. Grundy does not care that Gorley has been admitted to the home of Count Tolstoi, and been forgiven for his indiscretions. She does not care what the people of Russia tolerate in loose social relations. She is vexed beyond degree with Gorley and his "spouse," and resents their presence. A good many of his friends may have committed the folly of getting divorced and marrying again, but they did it in the name of the law that had for the time prevailed. She has had enough scandal of her own without endorsing that of other people.

The Last Power Scheme.

There has been much talk of the hydro-electric power bill, and now that it has been brought down it turns out to be, as Mr. Ross pointed out, simply a new edition of the act of 1903, with little change. "The mountain has laboured," said Mr. Graham, "and brought forth a mouse." The fact is heralded to the world, however, that the local government has undertaken a stupendous task in behalf of the municipalities and at their request. They asked the government to do something about public ownership, and it has, but the something is to appoint a commission, to hold office during the pleasure of its creators and do the business of the municipalities at their expense.

The commission has the authority, and with the consent of the government, to negotiate for the development of power anywhere in Ontario, to arrange for its transmission and distribution, and to borrow money on the credit of the province, with the understanding that the municipality, when the contract is complete, will provide the funds, the interest and sinking fund, so that the liabilities of the province will be met as they mature.

The commission will be simply the intermediary supplying the necessary information, plans and estimates, and undertaking the work, as the government approves, but without incurring any risk or responsibility in respect of mistake or omission in the contract. One thing more—the commission will regulate the terms and conditions on which the power will be supplied and sold to those who desire it.

What is in the bill more than is in the act of 1903? The same power, to expropriate and acquire private property and business, of regulation and adjustment is there. The cities are the moving agencies. They pay for all eventually. The only perceptible difference, as admitted by Mr. Whitney, is that the government appoints the commission and not the municipality, and the government pays for it and its contingencies.

Editorial Notes.

When there is a demand for modest men the city knows where to find them. Guess who they are. The Mechanics' Institute is to be congratulated on the initial performance of "Parada." It is a new and very interesting spectacle. And it is being given for the benefit of a very worthy cause.

When Mr. Coatsworth became mayor he purposed to grapple with the street railway company. He grappled in stead with his salary. It is now $6,500 and the electors are looking at it with anxious eyes.

Mr. McDougall, the ex-auditor-general, finds that during Mr. Parent's regime as mayor of Quebec, the financial position of the city was very much improved. The vindication of the ex-mayor is tardy but complete.

The people are waiting for the by-law with regard to City hall embellishment. When public money is so much in demand for necessary work the waste of it, in changes that are not pressing will not be tolerated.

What a pity it is that Kingston has not its public library on a larger plan, and supported on a more generous way. Carnegie would give the building but the annual tax for its maintenance and management would be quite an item.

A Tariff Argument. Living costs continue to go up. The poor people of this country may yet have to move to Europe to get the benefit of low prices on tariff protected American products.

Suicide in Germany. Official returns give some curious information regarding suicide in Germany. Between 1895 and 1903 the number of suicides has steadily increased and among women the increase has been relatively greater than among men. This latter fact is attributed to the larger share which women are gradually taking in commercial life and wage-earning. Among men the most common methods of suicide are shooting and drowning, and among women poisoning. Few women shoot themselves.

PROFESSIONAL LUNACY.

Man's Queer Desire to Live Among Crazy People.

A man has just been discharged from the Isle of Wight asylum under extraordinary circumstances, having twice fled from the institution with such success that he was committed to that institution as a dangerous lunatic. Ten years ago he started on his career as a professional "lunatic," and he was the first inmate of the Isle of Wight asylum. At that time he was soon discharged, as the asylum authorities were satisfied he was shamming. About a month ago he arrived at Cowes, from Southampton, where, seemingly under the influence of drink, he was chasing children and women in the streets, and acting in an extraordinary manner. When taken to the police station he spoke of military relations and millions of money, but as the local doctor suspected he was shamming, he directed his removal to the work-house.

BATTLES OF OLD.

Fought Differently From Those of Present Day. In Homeric days a battle was a conflict of armed mobs. The nearer you got to your assailant, the better was your chance of killing or being killed. The bigger the man, the better were his chances in the strife. In these piping times of mechanical warfare, the situation is reversed. Battles are fought at ranges of a mile or so. The smaller the man, the less are his chances of being hit. An ingenious mathematician has figured out that perhaps the casualties on the Japanese side must have been considerably more than those of the Russians in the recent war, if it be assumed that the marksmanship of each was equally good.

CURIOUS FACTS.

Statistics of German Protectorate of New Guinea. London, Eng., Standard. Some curious facts about the German protectorate of New Guinea were stated in a debate in the reichstag. Herr Erzberger declared that out of a total European population of 460 there were 174 missionaries, and that for every two farmers there was a German official. This meant that every farmer there cost Germany £1,100 a year. He declared that it would be cheaper to bring farmers home and give them a pension.

Wedding Presents. London Punch. As soon as May had named the day I best loved invitation To all the crew our mothers knew We were aware they all would wear In language far from pleasant "Lend me a pound I shall have to buy The blessed pair a present."

Then boy and man in cart and van And motor car came driving With girls and boys and more and more. And still they kept arriving: And then Madlle. Bew, and postmen too, 'Till all the terraces wended, And night and day they ran away— 'Till how the snapper chuckled.

We worked in shifts upon the gifts, And when we had unstrung them We'd twenty score of forks and more, And when we had a pile among them: And as we two had scored a sou And then we'd a great claret jugs, But not a drop of claret.

We'd endless gongs and sugar tongs Of every shape and fashion, As if a feast were bound to be: Henceforth our ruling passion, We'd knives, and forks, and spoons, And with sickly pertness sneered, And oh, the show of art nouveau In which we were interested!

And now we've got the little lot We're under obligation To every guest we most detest, And every year relation, And by the time the church bells chime And hymns die, the true knot We'd too late—we've all we hate, And nothing that we do not.

Cleaning The Floor. The following plan for cleaning the floor, which will work well on other tools of iron or steel, is recommended: Slowly add one pint of sulphuric acid to one quart of water, handling it carefully and stirring slowly as considerable heat will result from the mixing.

When it is cool, moisten the surface of the floor with this, and then rub dry, after which wash off with pure water. This application should clean any surface not too badly rusted, but if the tool has been neglected, it may require more than one application.

After cleaning, a thorough coating of grease is given before putting the tool away, and when taken out to use give another greasing, and it will go easier.

There is one tree which thrives in London as well as, if not better, than anywhere else. Other trees are succumbed by crime and coal tar vapours: of which the London atmosphere is largely composed. The plane overcomes this by the continual peeling of its bark, which is visible to everybody passing by the patches of new green covering on the trunk and branches, and the old bark lying at the foot of the tree. After all, "What time is it?" is merely a question of time.

SUPPLANTING GLASS. Silver is Now Being Used to Make Whisky Cups. The cheapness of silver is such that the metal continues to invade every branch of domestic economy. It has now started to supplant glass. Even as it is, among the many glasses for table use are so varied as those for liquor, but the latest form they have assumed is that of little silver cups, elegantly and daintily fashioned. To the eye their polish is admittedly attractive, but glass may claim greater qualities. There is little to choose in point of price.

UNNA DEFINES A CAUSE. European Skin specialist Says Dandruff is Caused by Parasites. Upon that theory, proved beyond a doubt, a cure for dandruff was sought after. Scientists, chemists, druggists and physicians all "cock a hat" and the successful issue is the present product known as "Neroline's Herpicide." This remedy actually kills the parasites that infest the hair, and contains its work most effective and contains not an atom of substance injurious to anything else than the germ alone. Herpicide causes the hair to grow and nature intended it should, soft and abundant. Sold by leading druggists. See the 10c stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. G. W.
