THE FIERY FURNACE AT SAN FRANCISCO VIVIDLY DESCRIBED BY WRITER.

People Rocked in Their Houses as if in a Cradle by the Mighty Earthquake—She Watched the Terrifying Spectacle.

This letter, is to Mrs. W. Woods, Cusshendall, from her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. E. Cornell, San Francisco: Dear Sister Hester,—Yesterday, Ernie and I returned from Portland, Ore., but he came to the street except for San Pedro and just had time to leave me at my sister's again, and then go back to the ship. I was glad to get home, although San Francisco is a dismal place to come to now.

After the first violent shock I ran to the door and called, but no answer—everyone had rushed to the street except my next door neighbor, who afterwards thought of, and screamed out of her window for me to go into her house. I threw a jacket and skirt over my night dress, and ran to the back porch, another shock came that nearly threw me down the back stairs.
