SICK HEADACHE

Many varieties of headache exist, those most prevalent being sick or bilious headache, nervous headache, headache from constipation, etc.

Headache is an effect of disease, the cry of the suffering body for relief from some oppressing disorder.

Undoubtedly the cause must be removed in order to cure the headache permanently. Wrong action of the stomach, liver or bowels is responsible for nine out of ten cases of headache.

In sick headache (a very common form) there is sometimes nausea and vomiting and usually constipation.

In nearly all forms of headache

has proved itself a specific—a medicine that has cured where all others failed.

Keep the stomach, liver and bowels in perfect working order by the use of nature's regulator and tonic, Burdock Blood Bitters, which cures all forms of headache by removing the cause.

Miss L. Smith, Morrisburg, Ont., writes: "I desire to let you know how much good Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I was troubled with headaches all the time, and could get no relief, until a friend told me of your Burdock Blood Bitters. After taking two bottles of it, I can say that I am completely cured."

SHORT OF AMMUNITION.

Congress Must Vote Supplies for the Navy.

Washington, D.C., June 2.—Naval officers are surprised to see the popular interest they have awakened in the scarcity of the ordnance supplies by the letter presented by the chief of ordnance of the service, Rear Admiral Mason. The letter was based on the reports submitted from a large number of sources, and is regarded by those who know the situation as not in the least too strongly expressed. It has been quite apparent that the supply of ammunition was being exhausted without the means of recuperation, and it is already contemplated to omit next summer's target practices off the New England coast. It becomes a question whether the men should be trained at their guns at the expense of the reserve supply of powder and shell, or target practice discontinued to the end that the ship magazines may have ammunition enough to meet an emergency. It will not be sufficient to the needs of a case for congress to make an emergency appropriation on the eve of trouble, for it takes months to get the powder, and nothing short of nine months' time would be lost in obtaining ammunition which would be of any use. It is a startling fact, also, that no ship is able to fire her battery of big guns for more than thirty minutes in action, when the ammunition would be exhausted. It is hoped by the naval ordnance officers that the emphatic terms of Rear Admiral Mason's letter will have some effect upon the senate naval committee and induce congress to put back the $12,000,000 cut out of the bureau of estimates between the navy department and the house naval committees.

BROADBRIM'S

Letter From Greater New York.

THE ATHLETIC AGE

FOLLOWS STONE, IRON AND STEEL AGES.

World Worshipping Brawn and Muscle — A Fleet Greeted the Irish-Americans—Sentence of Masonic Thief Removes a Bad Criminal to Custody.

Special Correspondence. Letter No. 1515.

New York, June 1.—The historian of the future who shall write the story of these latter days, after describing the peculiarity of the stone age, the iron age, the steel age, when he reaches the present day, must describe it as the age of brawn and muscle. Franklin, with his kite, who drew lightning from the clouds, Harvey, who discovered the circulation of the blood, Watts, with his steam engine, and Marconi, with his wireless telegraph are not to be mentioned in the same breath alongside of Jim Jeffries, the great knocker-out, or in comparison with Sheridan, who arrived last week with the American team, and, with the scalps of many Greeks suspended from their belts, with pockets full of substantial Greek rocks, and gold and silver medals, galore. It was a great day for these Americans, they had knocked out every Greek who attempted to stand before them in the Olympic games, and they only returned home now, because there was nobody else to knock out.

I remember the night when John L. Sullivan, then in the zenith of his fame drew a twenty-five thousand dollar audience to see a boxing match at the Madison Square Garden, being the only star, when ten thousand dollars would have been considered a first-class house for Italian opera with five prima donnas, three phenomenal contraltos, a half dozen bassos, three or four tenors, one of whom warbled at a thousand dollars a night, with a juvenile chorus whose ages averaged anywhere from forty-nine to eighty-four, and an orchestra of sixty skilled musicians,—and this big show, inside of an opera house that cost around million of dollars, taken altogether, was no match for a single buffer at the Madison Square Garden, and, not forgetting that Jeffries' last battle brought him a thousand dollars a minute, who shall say that we are not "some" on out door sports, and are stark staring made on the subject of athletics.

When the White Star steamer, Republic, from Gibraltar arrived at quarantine, with the Irish-American athletic team on board, they found steamers, tugs, sailboats and barges waiting to give them a clamorous welcome. There were sixteen sun tanned young men in the club, all victors, but Martin J. Sheridan, the man who threw the great discus three feet and a half beyond any previous record was evidently the leading victor. The king of Greece gave him a beautiful gold cup and an admiring friend presented him with a magnificent silver shield. The crowd seemed to go crazy in demonstrating their welcome to the victors, some of whom had their clothes nearly torn from our backs. There were several bands, each playing on its own hook, and while one band was greeting the ears of the victors with the delightful strains of "Home Again," a second inspired the patriotic soul with "The Star Spangled Banner," and a third roused the enthusiasm of the crowd to fever heat with the proud national anthem of "Yankee Doodle."

It is not only laurel crowns and glory that the victors brought back home, they have something more substantial to show, which is the thing that is good to put by for "a rainy day." The winner of the twenty-five mile received in cash, etc., over five thousand dollars, and an appointment to office for $5,000 more.

One of the most shocking revelations of the week was seen in the trial of the unfortunate girl Terzanova, who murdered her uncle and aunt. The court was crowded with women, apparently respectable, to hear the uncanny evidence; the judge warned them in advance that there would be no mincing of terms, but the plainest language would be used, as it was at the time of the murder, and if any of the women desired to depart, they would then be offered an opportunity, and not a soul stirred, but as the unfortunate girl began to speak in low tones, they craned their heads forward, desirous of catching every word of the shocking disclosure; some of the evidence was so vile that there was not a journal in New York, that dared to print in its columns, yet these women listened to it without a blush, and demonstrated an indifference that was actually appalling; several times the poor creature broke down completely, and begged of the judge to be excused. Under the circumstances he was compelled to deny the supplication. After a hard struggle, she repeated the vile words, while tears rolled down her cheeks like summer rain. It is a shameful record to chronicle, that this great audience of women listened unmoved to the last word of the evidence. In no trial at any time has such a scene taken place, and we trust there will be no duplicate of it in the future.

A startling phase in the trial has just occurred; it has been withdrawn from the jury and is to be recommenced after a further test as to the girl's alleged temporary insanity. At present it is impossible to tell what the result will be; one thing is self-evident that the sympathies of the great body of the people are decidedly on behalf of the unfortunate girl.

We are having a lively time in our politics; the fight has been most bitter; it was war to the knife and the knife to the hilt; neither side asks for mercy; it must be decided victory or political death. There was little in common between Mayor McClelland and Charles Murphy; Tammany Hall represented the old-time tradition, "To the victors belong the spoils" and those spoils were gathered by a merciless and unscrupulous band; the result of this doctrine was a consolidated band of office holders, whose lives depended on continuance in their positions, and the results was that the great body of outsiders never got a seat in Tammany Hall; this bred general discontent and sooner or later rebellion was sure to come. It only needed a chief around whom they could gather; that man was found in Mayor McClelland; his watchword for victory was "the honest distribution of the public money." In a few years our taxes have risen from forty-five millions to one hundred millions of dollars; the temptation to graft and dishonesty is terrible, and it requires the most adamantine virtue to withstand it; we have not reached the Golden Age where everything is right and nothing is wrong, but we see it as the prophet saw the Promised Land from Pisgah's height, dimly and afar off, but we hope to reach it at some distant day when God's blessing shall crown the millenium.

The sentence of the Masonic thief to forty years' imprisonment removes one of the worst criminals to captivity that has stood before the New York bar for many years; he had broke into the house of a wealthy German, who was awakened while the robber was riffing his bureau drawers; he covered him with his pistol and commanded him to give up whatever he had; among the spoil was a heavy Masonic ring; the thief looked at the emblem and handed it back saying, "I see you are a brother Mason, I can't take that." He had posed as a Mason several times before, but the fellow was a fraud and had never seen the inside of a Masonic lodge. This fellow who was rated as one of the most desperate of his class, turned out to be a cowardly ruffian when his own body was in danger. He expected a short stunt in state's prison, but when the judge said forty years, he dropped like a shot and had to be carried out of court as limp as a wet rag.

For a number of years I had quite lost sight of Berkman, who attempted the assassination of Mr. Frick at the time of the riots at Homestead and I never was more astonished than when I read of his release from prison and of his being joined in unholy matrimony with the celebrated female anarchist, Emma Goldman. Emma has tried matrimony many times and likes it; Herr John was one of her adorers; he was arrested in her room and was pulled from under her bed where he was hiding.

Have You Rheumatism?

Dear Sirs—I am, free from rheumatism to-day because I used Tuck's Bone Oil. I had rheumatism in my hands and feet and thought at one time that my life was going to be ruined by it. I consulted a doctor and tried various remedies, but while some of them that I took internally made me feel better for a time none of them took the pain away. After I had suffered for six months or more doctoring all the time, I was advised to try Tuck's Rheumatic Bone Oil, I did and I never can be thankful enough to the man who told me to up, the pain was gone and I was well. Tuck's Bone Oil did it. That was six years ago and I have not been bothered since.

AN INDIAN PRINCESS

Has a Very Poor Opinion of New Yorkers.

New York, June 2.—It is trustworthily stated that the wife of the Gaekwar of Barbda, who is called the maharani, does not entertain a very flattering opinion of New Yorkers. The Indian princess evidently takes the things written about her very seriously. She is deeply distressed at being attributed with strange and weird habits, which to the high-caste Indian woman seem barbarous indeed. So in place of the customary charming remarks about our beautiful America, our handsome men and lovely women, her highness thinks New Yorkers are entirely too busy; that some of them are really quite lacking in delicacy in dealing with royalty, and that they are always living at a high tension which, perhaps, makes them unaccountable for their occasional rudeness. "America may be far ahead of India in civilization," the princess is quoted as saying, "but in India we would never make visitors to our country so unhappy by pursuing them as they do here. It may be the way of civilization, but it is the first time in my experience I have ever been pursued. I have travelled in Europe and England, and have never had my slightest movements followed by a curious crowd," Her English companion, says the princess, is totally unable to comprehend the American attitude of regarding her as a curiosity.

But the gaekwar and his wife were wonderfully delighted with Coney Island, finding everything there to their liking, and varieties and numbers of attractions very much ahead of anything they had ever seen. They had none of the affected superiority that some people manifest when they are shown new things of meritorious quality, but took as much delight in the sights as children, riding the chutes, going the merry-go-rounds, taking in the spectacular events at Luna Park, and generally making a day of delight of it, the gaekwar taking copious notes as he went from one sport to another, with an eye to getting up similar attractions for his people. Their expressions of delight were as disingenuous as though they were children playing with their first toys, and Coney Island did its very best for them, keeping things going for their special benefit for a long time after hours, and when the time came to close the gaekwar was disgusted with the throngs that rushed for the cars, so the proprietor of one of the amusements took him to the city in his own auto. There will be a Coney Island in the gaekwar's realm in double quick order when the ruler has reached home and settled down to business.
