"Opter per Orbem Dico."

The Inspection Of Shops.

The food supply is all important. The health of the people, their happiness, even life itself, depend on the daily diet. Most people eat too much meat. A well known medical authority tells the Whig that it is necessary in the winter season, as it makes for heat, but during the warm weather, indeed during the larger part of the year, the bill of fare would be the better of being relieved of the strong foods, and especially of the fats in which some men fairly revel.

Granted, however, that meat of some kind is in demand, that it must be marketed, it follows that the city, and especially the health authorities, should see that it is prepared for use under conditions calling for absolute cleanliness. The market clerk had, under the law, very particular duties to perform, and a public officer is surely wanted to make frequent inspections of shops, carts and shambles—not once a year, or month or even week—and so guarantee that the care of fish or flesh is conducted according to the best regulations.

Let any one who is interested in this subject investigate, and he will see wagons, conveying the meat to and about the city in an unclean state; sometimes he will see beef or mutton or veal, rolled up or covered over by material whose contact is not good; shops are open, so far as doors and windows are concerned, to the dust from the street; screens, protectors, and refrigerators are missing. How can fresh beef or mutton, under these circumstances, be preserved from taint.

The council may, in a spirit of economy, do without a market clerk, but the city cannot do without a meat or shop inspector. The best law that municipal body can draft or pass becomes useless when there is no one to enforce it. And the police commissioners are invited to give this question their early and respectful consideration.

Insurance Funds In Stock.

There may be something in the contention of the insurance men, that the act restricts them unduly in the investment of their surplus, that they are obliged to go outside of the list prescribed by the law in order to make the higher interest. There is some risk in the handling of speculative securities, but the interest is high, and in the stocks in an ascending market, there are very large profits.

But the offence of those who are inclined to break the law is not mitigated by the temptations they encounter. They should obey the law in all points. If that law bears unduly upon them they have their recourse, they can repeat the operation for which they are so well qualified, and ask for amendments to the law, and the amendments will be effected when they make good their case. There is no excuse for the violations of which confessions have been made without a twinge of conscience. The performance of getting rid of objectionable securities on December 31st, and receiving them back a few days later invites a supervision the more exacting and it presents a species of effrontery which does not admit of palliation.

Worse still—more remarkable and surely more suggestive of local reform—is the admission of one leader in the insurance world, that he has used the funds of his company in strengthening or bracing up a weakened stock. Granted that the company had holdings that would be affected. The insurance act never meant that insurance moneys should be used in speculation in any way or to any extent, and the law in this respect will probably be "strengthened" also in one time.

Not Scared By Screams.

The refusal of parliament to reveal the membership of the North Atlantic Trading company is regarded as a serious offence. The conservative press applauds the attitude of Mr. Borden on the subject. He would not look at the list of names as it has been confidentially sent to the premier. "How could he tell," asks one paper—and it is fairly representative of all of its class—"whether they were honest men or mere commercial pirates." He could not verify the information; he would be completely gagged.

The original grievance, bear in mind, was that this company was a gold mine, in which Mr. Preston had a personal and financial interest. Mr. Borden's quarrel is said, by him, to have had its origin in the fact that he refused to tell what he knew about the waste of money in immigration literature, though he gave Mr. Preston, in the first place, the data he had upon the subject. To the people the "scrap" dated from Mr. Borden's failure to get into something which was supposed to be making money out of the immigration business. Mr. Preston swore that he had no financial interest in the trading company, and Mr. Borden had no evidence to offer to the contrary.

Now the disposition is to blackguard the government, and every member of it, because the opposition has not made anything out of the scandal. Mr. Sifton, Mr. Smart, and Mr. Preston have been exonerated from censure. They have not given out for publication the names of the company, and they have on this point been justified by Strathcona. In discussing the immigration business, in 1899, he approved the booming of it until it could get along without special aid, and he counselled Mr. Sifton that "the new arrangement must be regarded as very confidential, and must not be made public in any way."

It is not, therefore, one that concerns the immigration commissioner or any of his helpers, but the honor of the government and the advice of the high commissioner. Looked at in this light the screams of some conservative politicians and pressmen will not terrify anyone.

Editorial Notes.

The Scout explosion, at Kingston, is costing $10,000. That is the vote of parliament for the results of the accident. No one is going to suffer much, financially, by the calamity.

The provincial premier has not heard about the general deprecation of officials which is announced from Whitby. The rumour comes through the usual pipe line—the Toronto World.

A Pennsylvania railway clerk who admitted that he was grafting, was immediately dismissed from the service. As he has accumulated $75,000 from the spoils he will not go to the poor house.

It is estimated that there is $1,400 worth of light or power in each flash of lightning. What is the good of it when it cannot be applied? The men who could store the electricity that

A senator of the United States, a great man, died the other day, and a contemporary said of him that his career could not wisely be emulated by the young men of the country. Nothing more sad could be penned of any public man.

Mr. Jury is referred to by the Toronto News as a former independent in politics. Yes? He once visited Kingston, during a campaign, and there was not much doubt as to his politics. There was nothing wobbly about him, then.

Mr. Kittson, of Hamilton, called to the railway commission, will accept, and announces that "it will not interfere with his business interests." It won't, eh? For $4,000 a year, the set expects him to give the job all his time and attention. That ought to be quite clear.

James Hazen Hyde, of Equival fame, has attained his thirtieth year. Had he been as wise as his forbears he would have come into his inheritance, and become the head of America's greatest insurance company. He lost his head, his grip and his good name at one full sweep.

Senator Cox was staggered at the idea that he should give his whole time to the Canada Life company for only $15,000 a year as president. Doesn't seem to have occurred to him that a good many very clever men could be found who would cheerfully give all their time to the policy-holders for that amount or less.

A Great Undertaking.

Nowhere, perhaps, in the world, has electricity been applied under conditions more difficult and exacting than those in the St. Clair tunnel, conditions which have been carefully studied for some years both by the railway authorities and by electric engineers. The railway is busy on the new installations, which it is reported will cost $700,000. The installation will be a credit to the Grand Trunk railway system as well as to the electricians who have taken the problem, just as the opening of the tunnel itself was, over fourteen years ago, to the Grand Trunk railway and its experts who cut the tunnel. Since then the Hudson at New York City is being tunneled, and the Detroit river is about to be tunneled, following the Grand Trunk's pioneer example in this important submarine work. The length of the St. Clair tunnel proper is 6,925 feet, and of the open portals, or approaches, 5,603 feet additional, or more than two miles in all. It is a continuous iron tube, the total weight of the iron used being 56,000,000 pounds. The tunnel cost $2,000,000, and passenger trains began running through it on December 7th, 1891. The electric locomotives to be used will employ the alternating current, and will be capable of hauling a passenger train on the grade at a speed of twenty to twenty-five miles an hour; and a 100-ton freight train at ten miles an hour.

Damage By Lightning.

Pictou, June 8.—Very heavy showers passed over this place last night. Some damage was done by the lightning. The showers were needed to give the tomato plants a good start. Prince Edward county has fair, this year, to outdo any former year in turning out canned goods. More factories, larger contracts for a big yield were never better. The first moonlight excursion for this season was on Wednesday night, when the steamer Aetha, took a large company to Deseronto. A very pleasant time was enjoyed by all.

Preparing For Secretary's Trip.

New York, June 9.—Everything is being done to make the journey of Secretary Eli Root, when he travels to Rio Janeiro, to represent the United States at its pan-American congress this summer, as pleasant as can be made. The secretary of state will be accompanied by his wife and daughter and will make the journey by sea on board the United States cruiser Charleston.

CANANOQUE NEWS.

Y.M.C.A. or Young Men's Club for the Town.

Cananogue, June 9.—In the police court, Edward Gagnon, Jr., appeared charged with drunkenness and disorderly conduct on the streets. A fine and costs amounting to $5 was imposed on him.

Quite a well attended meeting of the citizens of the town was held in the lower hall last evening. Charles McDonald presided. A committee was appointed to canvass the young men of the town to ascertain the popularity of the Y.M.C.A. scheme, and also to decide whether it shall be in the line of a Y.M.C.A., or a young men's club. The committee's report will settle the details.

Two baseball games will be played on Grasshopper Park Saturday afternoon. At one o'clock Cananogue and Kingston high school teams will battle for supremacy, and at three o'clock the scheduled St. Lawrence League game between Bachelors and Crescents, will take place.

Grace Methodist Sabbath school will celebrate the first of July by holding their children's day service on that date.

Miss Essie DeLong entertained the members of Grace Methodist choir at her home on Charles street, Thursday evening.

Cananogue high school baseball team played a friendly game with the Bachelors, at Grasshopper Park yesterday afternoon winning an easy victory by 10 to 5, Umpire S. Dorcy.

The wife of the American Ambassador to Germany is the only American woman to whom the Sultan of Turkey has ever presented the Shekafet order, which is spending a holiday in this city personally decorated Mrs. Tower with the order on the occasion of her recent visit to Constantinople, while returning from the Olympic Games in Athens.

The conference has tackled the Thousand Islands on to Rev. Joseph Cornell's appointment on Cananogue East circuit. This will likely include service at Hall Moon Bay and in the neighborhood of Fry Lake.

A large number from the cottagers on the islands are already occupied. Dr. A. H. Maboe's on Trenton Park, and E. B. Rawson's, at Grey Rock, being two of the latest. Norman De Witte, of Watertown, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob DeWitt, of Hay Island House fame, is in town, accompanied by Mrs. DeWitt, and Miss Hazel DeWitt, to spend the summer season among the islands. Mr. and Mrs. Bethuel DeWitt, of Sutherland street, are visiting with their daughters, Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Stevens, Alexandria Bay, N.Y. W. Haig and Mrs. Jean, children of Mr. and Mrs. John Haig, Princess street, are visiting at Darling's Wharf. Miss Ellen Harrison, of Montreal, is visiting with Mrs. William McAvany, Charles street. Miss McCullum, trained nurse, is spending a holiday with her aunt, Miss M. Kane, Garden street. Miss Lizzie Maxwell is visiting friends in Trenton for a short time. She will, on leaving there spend some time in Chatham.

NURSES SHOULD BE PRETTY.

Do Better Work, Other Things Being Equal.

Trained nurses in this city are deep in discussion of a speech recently made by Dr. George Preston, head of one of the big hospitals in Baltimore, before a graduating class. He said that every girl who intended to be a nurse should be pretty. The opinion of the doctor has not been received by matrons of hospitals in this city with a unanimous approval, though they all say a nurse should make herself as attractive as possible. But many doctors agree with Dr. Preston, and say the presence of a really pretty woman is often far more beneficial to a medicine to a patient. There have been cases where an ill person has asked to have his nurse changed because what she lacked in looks she made up in strictness regarding diet and medicine. A matron in one of the largest hospitals says that a pretty girl, if she does not become convalescing girl, for she has more influence over her charge.

To Promote Study Of Vine.

San Francisco, Cal., June 9.—It has just been announced that in accordance with the terms of the will of Theodore Kearney, a raisin grower of this district, who died suddenly a short time ago on the steamship Caronia bound from New York to Queenstown, his entire estate, valued at $750,000, is bequeathed to the University of California, for the establishment of a viticultural station at this place. The Union Trust company of San Francisco, is the executor of the will. It will provide that, in case of a contest the estate shall go to William Alvert, who is dead, William H. Crocker, James D. Phelan and Joseph D. Grant. No statement has as yet been made whether the relatives of the testator intend to contest the will or not.
