Twenty-Five Years in Prison.

Montreal, June 20.—In the court of King's Bench, today, Chief Justice Larocque sentenced Barker, found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of the Ahern child, in April last, to twenty-five years in the penitentiary. In a statement the prisoner claimed that he was innocent of the crime.

FROM SEOUL

Come Reports of Wholesale Arrests.

THE ANTI-JAPANESE CONSPIRACY HAD IMPERIAL ASSENT.

Arrests Were Made as Conspirators Let Paris-Affair Has Indications of Being Pro-Russian Plot.

Tokio, June 10.—Despatches from Seoul, announce the arrest on Sunday, of Li Pon Grai, vice minister of the interior; Minister Kyongaik, vice-minister of the household; a lieutenant-general and 130 officers. The following closely upon the arrest of Choi Ryok and Vang Kim, confidential advisers to the emperor of Korea, demonstrates that the anti-Japanese conspiracy had imperial instigation.

The conspirators were arrested on leaving the palace. They had three documents bearing the imperial vermillion seal, empowering them to levy troops, granting 100,000 yen ($20,000) from the imperial treasury, and authorizing them to establish an independent administration on Kanto Island, at the mouth of the Yalu River (Tumen river).

The whole affair has indications of being a pro-Russian plot.

THE JEWISH MASSACRE

Due to Initiative of Russian Officials.

London, June 20.—The Standard says that although the government is not prepared to make representations to Russia, regarding the Bielsostok affair, Foreign Secretary Grey has telegraphed the British ambassador, at St. Petersburg, asking for full information.

The Jewish newspapers, in London, are recording full reports confirming not only the complicity, but the initiative of the local officials.

Formal official proclamations are now posted, in Bielsostok, withdrawing the statement that the massacre was thrown by a Jew, at a Corpus Christi procession. Eye-witnesses told horrible stories to the commission of enquiry, appointed by the dominion.

The justice of the peace testified that the troops were ordered to turn their backs while the roughs plundered houses.

ATTACKING NATAL REBELS

Were Routed, and Fled, Leaving Fifty Dead.

Yapampulo, Natal, June 20.—Rebels yesterday, attacked a convoy of five wagons, but the convoy got away, though pursued for two miles. A force of sixty men, which was sent out from Yapampulo, to protect the wagons, encountered 500 rebels, who were ranging an ambush. An engagement ensued, lasting an hour and a half, during which the rebels thrice determinedly charged the Natal forces. The rebels ultimately fled, leaving sixty of their number dead.

$80,000 SENT ON.

Ottawa, June 20.—The government announced, yesterday, that $80,000 of the fund voted for the San Francisco sufferers had been sent to that city. An opposition motion for the discharge of Philip Wagner, interpreter and assistant immigration agent, at Edmonton, was defeated.

AMERICAN BEEF TRUST

Made Irish Cannibals Says Irato Councillor.

Dublin, June 20.—The Independent states that Mr. O'Donovan, a member of the Brandon district council speaking at a district meeting, accused the American beef trust of making its Irish customers cannibals. He instanced the case of a local farmer, who had found parts of a man's thigh in a barrel of American salted beef. O'Donovan declared this fact could be proved under oath.

DAVITT AT REST.

Had An Interesting and Adventurous Life.

New York, June 20.—After an interesting and adventurous life and a stormy political career, Michael Davitt, the "Father of the Irish Land League," died on the last day of May. He was born in Ireland in 1846, and joined the Fenians at the age of nineteen. He was one of the founders of the Land League in 1879, and in the following year organized the auxiliary Land League in the United States. In 1886 he married the daughter of John Yore, of St. Joseph, Mich.

IT BLINDED DENTIST.

London, June 20.—Dr. Richards of Glamorgan, who extracted a child's tooth and held it up by forceps to show to the mother. A piece splintered off the tooth and struck the doctor's eye. A day or so afterward there were pains in the eye. On examination it was found that a small wound had been inflicted, and, owing to the splinter being decayed, the eye was poisoned. The eye had to be removed, its sight having been completely gone.

SOURCE OF RICHES.

Harnessed Alps Streams Give Italy Cheap Power.

New York, June 19.—As the World, O. D. Skelton says: Northern Italy is prospering beyond all record. The product of the silk industry has doubled in the past eight years; one-third of the silk thread used in the world is now produced in Italy. The cotton mills, scarcely in existence a decade ago, now have an annual output worth over $80,000,000. Textiles have advanced almost as rapidly. The 6,000 workmen employed in iron and steel foundries in 1881 have become 100,000 and Italy today is exporting instead of importing it. The new industries of electro-chemistry and electro-metallurgy are now especially flourishing in various parts of Italy. The French call the new industries of electro-chemistry and electro-metallurgy, the "white coal," as they are rich in coal. In more prosaic language, white coal is simply the French phrase, but the epigrammatic French phrase, but the epigrammatic invention that it has become current throughout Europe. Strictly speaking, it applies only to the power derived from glacial streams, rising in the eternally snow-crowns of Alps.

Call it what you please, this newly harnessed power is revolutionizing the European industry. It is shifting the seat of the world's power, giving a new start to nations hitherto hopelessly out of the race. It is more than a coincidence that the great industrial countries today are those which are rich in coal—the United States, Britain, Germany, and Belgium. Other causes, no doubt, have contributed to their success, but the possession of cheap power lies at the foundation. Now the tables are turned. By an almost providential compensation the nations which are poor in coal are richest in water. Austria, at much better supplied with hydraulic power than Germany, France, than England, Switzerland than Belgium, Canada than the United States.

ATTACKED DOCTOR.

London, June 20.—Special despatches received here, from Hong Kong, report that Chinese attacked and dangerously wounded Dr. Horne, the medical representative of an American insurance company, at Turgan, and caused the death of Horne's assistant, Forbes.

SAVAGE PUNISHMENT.

Berlin, June 20.—The severest sentence imposed in recent years for the crime of lese majeste has been passed by the Leipzig court upon a drunken workman who was sent to prison for three years for vilifying the Kaiser.

According to the news from Belgrade, those guilty of lese majeste in Serbia are even more savagely treated. A man who declared that King Peter did not seem fit for much, was sentenced to seven years' imprisonment. Other equally harmless critics of his majesty were sentenced to four and five years servitude.

Hospital Sunday.

London, June 20.—Hospital Sunday annually observed by the churches, brought Dr. Sir Frederick Treves, surgeon to the king, into the pith of the celebrated Union Chapel at Islington, where he eloquently appealed for funds. He contended that money contributed to hospitals paid a hundred fold. The amount of pain relieved could be roughly gauged by quantity of morphia consumed at the hospitals. One-sixth of a grain would relieve pain for one hour. By this test 7,000 pounds of pain, that is, practically, ten years, were averted in London hospitals alone in 1905.

SAVED NAME

Countess Made a Death-Bed Confession.

SHE DID THE DEED

AND LEFT THE RAZOR TO ALLAY SUSPICION.

Titled Woman Declares She Killed Royalist on Eve Before Duel Because of Jealousy Due to His Attention to Another.

Vienna, June 20.—The honor of the princely house of Karnovich has been saved by the dying confession of Countess Kokosovka. The sensational episode are matters of last winter, but the countess's confession has been publicly spread on the papers just filed in connection with the late Prince Karnovich's estates.

All the persons involved belong to Moscow. The prince had a large house party at his castle near Moscow. Among them was the beautiful Madeiroiselle Cyka, Capt. Zinsky, of the Imperial Guards, renowned for his many amours, made passionate love to her. He was, however, rebuffed and plotted revenge.

Discovering that she favored the prince, the captain managed to get the young woman and the prince on a toboggan next day with himself as steersman. After going half a mile down the mountain chute and gaining terrific speed, the captain deliberately steered the toboggan towards a precipice, and then slid off it into the snow. The prince had scarcely time to realize what had happened. He seized his lady love by the waist and threw her off following himself just as the sledges fell over the side of the precipice. The prince's arm was broken and both he and the young woman were otherwise injured.

The prince challenged the captain and a duel was arranged for the next morning. But Moscow was horrified to hear that only the captain was on the field of honor. The prince was found dead in his bed with his throat cut and a razor in his hand. He was dubbed a coward, who feared the duel and had preferred suicide. His name was taken off the rolls of the family, of the regiments and clubs, and a society to which he belonged, and even the peasants of his own estate cursed his name.

Some time afterward Countess Kokosovka was found dead in her boudoir in Moscow. She had killed herself with morphia. It now transpires that the countess left a letter of confession. It appears that she was madly in love with the prince, and, being a member of the house party, had seen his tender solicitude of Miss Cyka, and on the day of Capt. Zinsky's treachery learned that they loved each other.

At the dead of night she made her way to the prince's room and murdered him by cutting his throat. She then placed the razor in his hand to ward off suspicion. Remorse at the thought she had brought on the man she loved caused her to take her own life.

The boat commenced to fill rapidly and would have sunk in the stream had not timely assistance been rendered by some parties close by, who towed the disabled craft to shore. Mallory was badly burned, but his companions escaped injury.

A REMARKABLE FEAT.

Levison Gover's Good Work on Ottawa Links.

Ottawa, June 20.—The Ottawa Links, Levison Gover, controller at Government House, accomplished, yesterday, on the Ottawa Links, an extraordinary feat in golf line, that has not been equalled or ever approached in this country. Commencing at 3.45 a.m., and finishing at 7.30 p.m., stopping only about two hours during the day for refreshments and rest, he played seven times around the Ottawa golf course, in average of a little over ninety-seven strokes per round. He finished two rounds before breakfast, making a ninety-six and a ninety-four. The next four rounds were done in 98, 100, 94, 100 respectively, and the concluding round in 102 making the total 681 strokes for the 126 holes. It will be seen his average was a shade over five strokes per hole. Those who have played over the local course in this country, will be surprised to realize what a wonderful performance Levison Gover's was, in playing seven rounds (medal play) with an average a little over five strokes per hole. To do one round in an average of five to six strokes, under present conditions, is good golf. Seven rounds of eighteen holes, in sixty-eight strokes, in one day, is simply marvelous. Apart from the excellence of the golf, Levison Gover's feat was an exceptionally arduous test of endurance and very trying one, aggravated as it was by the excessive heat. In his seven rounds he traveled close on to thirty miles, which would be an excellent performance a day like yesterday, even on the level where one does not stop every few minutes and try to "knock the cover off," a little white ball.

ELECTROCUTED BY BURGLAR.

Fastens Coil About Woman's Neck.

Paris, June 20.—The very latest scheme for the fiendish murder of persons during their sleep, was demonstrated in a midnight robbery which has just been discovered. Mme. Dubois, a wealthy woman living in a big house at Malmaison, has been found murdered in her bed. She was eighty-four years old. The burglar had stripped the house of all valuables, and the old woman's chamber of money and jewelry. The burglar had fastened around her neck a coil of thick copper wire, which he had connected with the big electric radiator in the room. When she awoke he had evidently turned the switch on and electrocuted her, for she was very badly burned.
