THE 5 P. M. EDITION
ARE GUIDING POLICE
IN SEARCH FOR BODIES OF BOYS LONG DEAD.

Opinion at Sharbot Lake inclines to belief of Accident, Not Murder - But There Are Doubts, Nevertheless. Sharbot Lake, June 19.—Pursuing his faith to the declarations of a crystal-gazing fortune-teller, County Constable M. D. White has been making diligent search for the remains of Norris Babcock and James Martin, the two boys who disappeared from here four years ago. Disappointed, he has now gone back to Perth, and the mystery lingers. There will be no arrests for the present. The scenes is a farmer's wife, Mrs. Booth, living near Tiffin, sixty-three miles west of here, and confirmed of the alleged admission of the half-breed, Sandy Redon, that he had a full-blooded Indian, Frank Beaver, had murdered the boys instead of their having been accidentally drowned, and gave general instructions where to look for the victims' bones. The constable with a search party, has faithfully travelled many miles, through water and thicket in damp, unsteady, and hours have been spent in digging into the soil in a number of places, but there has been no success. Some find of human bones, as was rumored around for miles to-day, causing intense excitement and spreading rumors of all sorts like wild-fire. There have, however, been unearthed a few rotten cartridge shells on the lake shore, and some of the townsfolk have their suspicions strengthened that the boys were shot, while others believe that the shells were probably dropped by sportsmen. Consensus of opinion is, however, against giving much credence to Mr. Redon's testimony. She is a middle-aged woman, who left her husband here about eight years ago, joining a shiftless band of Indians, half-breeds and others, that have hung about the locality for years, leading a primitive outdoor life. Redon and Beaver, each aged about thirty, belonged to the gang. The former has a pronounced evil bent and was often jailed, but Beaver was considered good-natured, and inoffensive, and the general disposition is to disbelieve that he would commit murder. There have been sinister rumors, however, floating around ever since the boys' rowboat was found, while their bodies could not be located. Sharbot Lake is about ten miles long and of irregular width, but so carefully was it surface watched for months after that it is admittedly a mystery what happened the boys.

HOW ABOUT YOUR SUMMER DRESS TO-MORROW?

We're bound to get plenty of warm sultry weather all this summer. The seasons seem to have fallen back to the old-time kind—and now everybody is going to try to keep cool during July and August. Notwithstanding the fact that black and cream materials have besieged, perhaps conquered, the throne of fashion, cool white fabrics will be extremely popular—just because of the comfort they give.

To-morrow we'll offer you one of the best opportunities to secure your white needs. A great wealth of assortment and variety of qualities and prices (though you'll find each price exactly fits the quality it represents) will greet you. Some favorites:

Special Remnants
Such brisk and constant selling goes on around the section for summer materials leaves many ends—some large enough for children's dresses, some only for waists. You'll find it while to look them over and whatever you choose you may be sure it is a real remnant bargain—with the profit on your side.

Some More of Those Fancy Aprons

Last week the Aprons we offered created a great commotion. Fortunately we have secured one more small lot. But this is all we can hope to get at such a price—for it means a serious loss to the makers. For to-morrow—

25 dozen White Aprons, of just as good quality, make and finish as those offered last week, some with full shoulder and pretty embroidery, others quite plain—all worth regularly 25c or over; but to-morrow your choice only 25c for 3, or each apron only09

The Last Chance to Secure Your Long White Kid Gloves

'Twas a lucky turn of business fortune's wheel that sent us an assortment of Long White Kid Gloves. That the lot is small, you'll expect, for it's quite generally known that not more than one store in five hundred has long kids at all. Well, we could have sold them in Montreal at a handsome profit, but instead we will give to-morrow early comers a chance to get them.

Long Dressed White Kid Gloves, made and finished perfectly, in two lengths, to-morrow, a pair only, $2.00 or ... 1.69
A few Long Undressed White Kid Gloves, in splendid quality, to-morrow, a pair only 1.50.
