A COLLEGE SPREAD.

The Officers of the Royal Military Club.

The twenty-second annual dinner of the Royal Military Club of Canada was held at the institution across the bay, on Friday evening, June 29th. The dinner was a grand success, and the officers of the club were all present.

The dinner was presided over by the President, Mr. W. A. H. Kerr, R.O. Toronto. The Vice-presidents were Mr. C. R. F. Coutlee, R.O. Ottawa; Mr. C. A. Macdonell, D.S.O. Winnipeg; Mr. J. W. G. Macdonell, R.O. Montreal; Mr. W. B. G. Macdonell, R.O. Quebec; Mr. W. B. G. Macdonell, R.O. Kingston.

IN MILITARY CIRCLES

R. C. H. A. LEAVES FOR CAMP ON WEDNESDAY.

Cobourg An Unsatisfactory Place for a Camp—Eastern Ontario Troops Will Be Glad to Return to Barrieffield Heights.

After being in camp both at Ottawa and Cobourg, the Kingston corps have come to the unanimous conclusion that as a military camp ground, Barrieffield heights has the other places beaten to a standstill. The regiment that camped during the past two weeks at Cobourg, were fairly disgusted with the place and the treatment accorded them. Rival regiments found that the general treatment they got in Kingston was fifty per cent. better than in the lunch counter town, this side of Port Hope, and will be more than glad to come back to Kingston next year. Cobourg has had the camp for 1000, owing to somebody's negligence in not having a suitable rifle range erected at Kingston. This rifle range will be constructed before the snow flies, and next June, the old historic heights of Barrieffield will again resound with the hum of military rifles. There is not the slightest doubt but what Kingston is better situated for a camp than any other place in central or eastern Ontario.

Interesting experiments have been made by the German military authorities with a new pattern automatic rifle, the invention of a man named Sidelane. The results of the trials, which have been made so far comparatively very satisfactory, although no special experiments have been as yet made from which it is possible to form any correct or decided opinion as to the strength and durability of the mechanism—which is particularly complicated—or of the various parts of which it is composed. The calibre of the new rifle is .255 inches, weight of the cartridge is 600 grains, weight of a half pound, while the muzzle velocity equals about 2,200 feet per second. The recoil set up by the explosion of the cartridge is used to open the breech, and the breech is closed by the action of the breech, and it is claimed that five aimed shots can be fired with this weapon in ten seconds.

The R. C. H. A. will get away to camp at Petawawa earlier than lately anticipated. The batteries will leave Kingston on Wednesday next and proceed by route marked, covering the distance by easy stages. The camp will continue for six weeks, so that the batteries will be back before August 20th.

In a garrison city, where permanent forces are on the spot, the mayor is vested with the power to call them out to quell a riot. The militia is generally called out for the purpose of restoring law and order, but in the case of Thursday's riot at the junction, it would have taken several hours to get a couple of 14th Regiment companies together and armed. The artillery responded with prompt alacrity, and it was owing to its prompt action that the ringleaders were captured. Otherwise, they would surely have escaped.

Petawawa is the central training ground of the Canadian militia, the Aldershot of Canada, it has sometimes been called. Every branch of the militia is trained here, and in the case of the annual camp, which is held at Petawawa, the militia is divided into several corps, and the training is of a high order.

AN EXERCISE.

If Mayor Mowat desires to add to the credit he has justly earned for his spirited municipal action he will call a special meeting of the City Council at once, and advise the immediate repeal of the closure-by-law. It is hateful, injurious and out-of-date. Kingston's market has changed in character since the by-law was framed.

McKenna Fined.

Judgment was given in the police court today, in the sale of liquor, on May 24th, to a minor at McKenna's Hotel; $20 and costs was imposed. The magistrate was satisfied the man who served the liquor was an employee of McKenna, might not have been paid, but his services were nevertheless accepted. It is clear the boys were served in the room where liquor was always served. In allowing some one to perform his duties the proprietor must stand the consequences.

Bell, C. A. Lawlor, S. McCallum, W. R. Patterson, R. K. Patterson, L. L. Playfair, E. Sutherland, W. E. Spankin. Final—W. E. Grimshaw, J. F. Hogan, W. R. Patterson.

KING'S TWENTY WIVES.

But He Left Three Hundred at Home Jealous.

Marselles, June 30.—King Sisowath, of Cambodia, his twenty wives, his sister, and sixty-nine attendants, girl dancers, who have arrived on the steamer Admiral Lemaire, is the talk of all France. His wives and sacred dances are in charge of four eunuchs and four women guardians, all eight of whom are quite as hideous as fancy possibly can paint them. Though their ladies perfume is master of all, the ladies are charming, except Princess Sangreth, who is the king's eldest sister, and he is sixty-four—a Katisha of thirty-eight, which is old for a Cambodian lady. Like Katisha, she has a saving sense of humor and a shocking temper. She is very like the king, but has black lacquered teeth, and is one mass of jewels from head to foot.

Sisowath has left three hundred of his wives at home. Inasmuch as they all wanted to come no end of trouble has ensued. One of the king's present favorites can hardly move for lack of pure gold, and all studded with jewels. All through conversations servants came up and cringing, offered betel leaves or gold spittoons. All the plates and cups used by the ladies are of gold, and it can easily be understood why King Sisowath is occasionally short of ready cash. One of them understood what money means. The chants and dances which illustrate the sacred history of Cambodia are very beautiful.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Among the latest arrivals by steamer in New York was Macknow, the Russian agent, who was discovered by Oscar Hammerstein while on the search of operative stars in Europe, and is now in the United States. The young man, stands five feet three inches, in his stocking feet and weighs about four hundred pounds.

Local Recommendations Ignored.

It is thought that the Ontario government does not intend filling all the vacancies at Rockwood and asylum with Kingston Tories. The county clerk thinks that Kingston should be satisfied with the appointment of the superintendent. Other positions are likely to go to outsiders. The members of the district are clamoring for jobs for some of their friends, and Rockwood has to care for some of these county men. Hence, the recommendations of the Kingston Conservative Association are being ignored, much to the anger of some of the executive members.

A DARING ROBBERY

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN TO PROTECT JEWELS.

Thieves Broke Through a Wall and the Floor—They Succeeded in Getting Away With $10,000 Flander.

New York, June 29.—No recent burglary in New York has been accomplished with the success, expertness, and daring which characterized the theft of one hundred diamonds worth more than $10,000 from the show windows of N. S. Brann, jeweler, at No. 231 Eighth avenue, on Saturday, June 10th. All of the many Brann employees and those of the manufacturing jewelry establishment in the business, were warned by the police of the West Twentieth street station and by headquarters detectives to breathe no word of the robbery, and their success in keeping it secret has been equalled only by the lack of result from police investigation.

Brann's establishment is the third building on the west side of Eighth avenue, south of Twenty-second street. It is of the best type, which has been in business there for twenty years, occupying the ground floor and basement. In front of the street door a heavy steel lattice is locked at night, and the shutters are drawn down in front of the show windows. In the rear every opening is protected by steel crossbars set into the walls. The floors are lined with electric wires, and are the ceilings, and a touch upon any of them sends an alarm to a private watchman's agency.

Next door to the north is a store, vacant for several weeks, and the Twenty-second street corner building is a hat store. The rear of the three about on a narrow square, which was once yards. In Twenty-second street, back of the rear of the hat store, is a one-story frame shed, divided into three sections, each bearing the number 302 West Twentieth street. There are three doors into the shed. The nearest the corner opens into a covered passage leading through another door to the yard of the hat store, and the third into a covered shed abutting on the rear of the store, and the third into a covered passage to the rear of Brann's jewelry store.

The roof of the shed covering the passageway is covered with tarred matting. The basement of Brann's store has barred windows, outside of which is a three-foot wide wall eight feet deep. The wall outside the basement window of the vacant store, which is not barred, is about four feet across. There is no basement window in the hat store.

When Brann closed his store at ten o'clock Saturday night, June 29th, he placed most of his gems in his steel trunk in his alarm wires and also in the front show window about one hundred diamonds and pieces of diamond jewelry.

From the three doors in Twenty-second street, each opening into a rear passageway to one of the Eighth avenue stores, the thief selected the first one, which ends in a door opening into the yard of the hat store on the corner. That this door was open proved by the absence of evidence of forcing.

But the door opening from the end of the passage into the latter's yard was fastened on the inner side with a hook and hasp. It was not hard to burst this opening in the latter's yard, and the burglar, who had a key, could not go forward except into the latter's establishment. He then climbed to the roof of the shed, walked over the well outside the basement of the vacant store and was outside about fourteen feet and was outside the unbarred windows of the latter. It was a hot night and neighbors' windows were open, yet no one heard or saw the burglar on the shed roof.

It was child's play to lift the window and step into the yard, which adjoins that of Brann's building and is separated from it by twelve inches of solid brickwork. A hole two feet in diameter was dug through that wall in a moment, the burglar was in the basement of Brann's store and in the workrooms of his jewelry manufacturing place.

Standing on a box he bored holes in a circle through the planks of the jewelry store's floor. This was done with the nicest care, and with evident knowledge of electrical wiring methods. When this aperture was completed the hole made before the burglar biting into the wall, eighteen inches in diameter, fell into the basement and the way was clear to the store of gems.

A Pretty Wedding.

Laitimer, June 29.—At 11 o'clock, June 21st, a very pretty wedding took place, when Agnes Mabel, youngest daughter of Clark Smith, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Charles Darwin Laitimer. The bride was preceded by Miss Grace Darling, sister of the groom, who descended the stairs to the drawing-room where about forty guests were waiting to receive them, and in the 'gay window, under an arch of evergreen and floral bell. Rev. Mr. Richards made the happy couple man and wife. Miss Myrtle Spooner played the wedding march. The bride looked sweet, glowing, the only jewel worn being a pearl crescent, the gift of the groom. Her dress was of green chiffon, embroidered with white, and the presents were numerous and costly, showing the popularity of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Darling left amidst showers of rice and good wishes for a happy future.

Pure White India Linon Lawn on Sale To-night and Tuesday

This India Linon Lawn is one of the best washing materials of all the white summer fabrics now in vogue. It is much like a Victoria Lawn, but of finer weave, and beautifully sheer and even. To all who wish white waists or dresses (and for this kind of summer you cannot have too many), we would urge attendance at this sale, either to-night at 7.30, or Tuesday at 9 a.m. Of course, only a limited amount will be sold to-night. It would not be fair to let it all go then, and disappoint on Tuesday. But here's the way it gets, and as to value—won't matter at which time you come.

2000 yards, PURE WHITE INDIA LINON LAWN, 32 inches wide, one of the most popular materials we have for summer waists (and, unfortunately, becoming very scarce on the market), much like a Victoria Lawn—only finer, regularly sold at exactly 25c a yard; yours to-night after 7.30 o'clock, or Tuesday morning after 9 o'clock, per yard, only .17
