TAKE UP THE WALKS

GARDENERS TRANSGRESS A BY-LAW.

How the City Ordinance Reads—The Police May Have to Interfere and They Give the Needed Warning.

The attention of the Whig has been drawn to the condition of Kingston street fronting the market square on a busy market day, more especially Saturday. Here are drawn up produce waggons the owners in several cases, displaying their wares and in so doing taking up a goodly portion of the sidewalk. Nearly half the walk is filled with vegetable crates, boxes, etc. Just along the street of a busy morning traffic is quite heavy and frequently the street becomes quite congested. Market gardeners are the offenders in partially blocking the walks with their produce. The question arises, "Is this not a breach of the city by-law No. 487, respecting streets, section 6?"

The regulation reads: "No person shall expose or display any goods, wares or merchandise, in or upon any sidewalk, street or place, or allow any such goods, wares or merchandise belonging to him, or in his possession or charge, to remain in or upon any public sidewalk, street or place longer than may be necessary to load or unload the same or except when any such goods, wares or merchandise are actually being moved or transported across or along any such sidewalk, street or place, and no person shall allow to remain in or upon any such sidewalk, street or place, any barrel, crate, box or other thing containing, or supporting, or suspending, or intending to contain, support or suspend any goods, wares or merchandise belonging to him or in his possession, or charge, or by means of which any goods, wares or merchandise belonging to him or in his possession or charge are exposed or displayed as aforesaid. Provided that articles for sale may be exposed by hanging the same up on the outside of the shops, on the walls or door jambs, or posts thereof, or by exposing the same in neatly painted moveable trays or shelves, to be approved of by the city commissioner, to be attached for support to the outside of the shops, but all such articles shall be hung up and fastened so that the lowest part shall be not less than eighteen inches above the sidewalk, street or place, and all trays and shelves shall be attached for support as aforesaid, so that the bottoms shall be not less than eighteen inches above the sidewalk, street or place, and such articles as are hung up and fastened, and such trays or shelves so placed or attached as aforesaid, shall in no case project into the street more than twelve inches beyond the main or general line of the shop wall proper, and all such articles as are liable to be flapped or swayed or blown to or fro by the wind, shall be so securely fastened as to prevent this happening, and no such articles or trays or shelves shall in any way be supported from the sidewalk, street or place, and all such articles, trays or shelves shall be removed into the shop each day before it becomes dark, and no such articles, trays or shelves shall be hung up, fastened, placed, attached or exposed, or put outside, as aforesaid, on Sundays, and no articles shall be hung up, fastened or exposed outside of shops, in any public street or place as aforesaid, otherwise than is in this proviso permitted, and all persons hanging up, fastening or exposing articles or placing, attaching or exposing trays or shelves outside of shops in any public street or place, or otherwise than is in this proviso permitted, shall be guilty of a breach of this by-law and shall be liable to the penalties in such case provided."

As a citizen pointedly remarked, "If one of the shop keepers along the same thoroughfare was to allow to stand for any time during the day a box, crate, etc., on the street, he would soon know where he was at."

It has also been suggested and to all appearance wisely, too, that those farmers, or gardeners, or whoever are to blame, should move their produce waggons on to the market square proper. They might, for instance, take their stands opposite the western shambles. Here no objection would be offered if they displayed their goods along the walk.

Spoken to on the subject, Sergt. Snoddon said he would let this publication serve as a warning to all offenders, and if, in the future, the street was in any way obstructed or a violation of the by-law committed, the constables would have the offenders before the police court for a hearing.

Our merchants strongly adhere to the by-law; let all do so.

The O'Kill Sewer Problem.

What does the board of works intend to do about the O'Kill street sewer extension? It is not likely that the city council will agree to pay $2,500 more for the work. It is said that the pipe specified is both too large and also of too expensive a nature. Very ordinary pipe would have suffised, and also of lesser diameter, so that the flow would be freer. A simpler manner of laying the pipe will have to be agreed upon. If the city engineership is not settled at once, the council could engage Superintendent Rosier, of the water works, to prepare different specifications. He is an expert in the laying of pipes, and has greater practical ability than the ordinary engineer.

Dr. Sheep's Restorative brings lasting relief in stomach, kidney and heart troubles through the inside nerves. No matter how the nerves became inquired this remedy will rebuild their strength, will restore their vigor. Remember it does no good to treat the ailing organs—the irregular heart, rebellious stomach, diseased kidneys. They are not to blame. Go back to the nerves that control them—treat the cause—use a remedy that cures through the inside nerves. Sold by all druggists.

An old Brockville boy, W. Homer Simpson, of Schwarz & Simpson, Brooklyn, N.Y. was married, June 26th, to Miss Elsie L. Schwarz, of the same place.

THE RECEPTION QUESTION.

Who Are to Do the City's Creditable Part?

Eight members of the city council voted against a grant for the reception of the old boy visitors on the 29th. This is a public reception, of the peoples' friends, and the money is spent on bands and sports, which is 50? for home enjoyment of 20,000 people, on the civic holiday, to seventy-five cents spent for reception of 1,500 home-comers from Ottawa and Toronto. The reception serves a double purpose.

It is not a personal matter for the Kingston Home Association. It has done its duty for three years. It is for the credit of the city, dead in the volunteer camp spirit, dead in the hotel line, very dead in matters of energy and pride.

The excuse is that this expense should be met by private subscription. From whom? Not the merchants, for the visitors come from places having bigger shops; not from the saloonkeepers, for it is not their time of benefit. Those to be looked to first for support of that kind are public representatives. How much does the mayor suppose has come in subscriptions from the eight members of the city council who voted against a grant? They have had three opportunities, once each year, twenty-four chances. Just four subscriptions have been received, one of them $2. A promising state of affairs for a fourth canvass!

MISS HARKNESS MARRIED.

She Became the Wife of Henry Coyle.

On Tuesday morning, at ten o'clock, a very pretty home wedding was celebrated at the home of Mrs. S. Harkness, King street, when his second daughter, Emma May, was united in marriage with Harry Coyle, clerk at R. Waldron & Co's. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Markle, and the wedding room was handsomely decorated with marguerites and ferns. The bride looked charming in a gown of white crepe de chene, trimmed with chiffon, baby ribbon and lace. After the happy event, all present sat down to a sumptuous wedding breakfast. Among the presents noticed were many from a distance, including remembrances from Brockville, Owen Sound, Belleville, Port Hope, and other places, all testifying to the high esteem in which the young couple are held by a large circle of friends. The staff of Waldron & Co., sent a handsome oak and leather Morris chair; R. Waldron, Jr., a dozen silver spoons; Mrs. Geddes, a fine glass and oak china cabinet; and W. Coyle, a brother of the groom, an oak buffet. Mr. and Mrs. Coyle left on the 12.30 train for Buffalo, Toronto, and Niagara Falls, the bride's going away gown being of brown silk voile over taffeta. On their return to the city the newly married couple will reside on Clergy street.

MORE MONEY NEEDED

Before the Season's Band Concerts Can Begin.

The 14th Regimental band is being gradually re-organized. No break-up is to occur. The band is simply to be arranged on a better basis. It is fulfilling its engagements, playing, last evening, at the Hotel Dieu garden party, for which the services were given voluntarily.

Regarding the grant of $200 made by the city council, for ten band concerts in the parks, it might be said that another $100 will have to be subscribed by citizens before the concerts can begin. The band must have $30 a concert, and as the civic grant specifies ten concerts, the money will remain untouched until the balance of $300 is forthcoming. There will be no difficulty in getting the required amount. Some one has only to start a subscription list, and the dollars will come forth. Alds. Gaskin and Harkness will be the first to subscribe, having offered $20 each at a recent council meeting. It's time the band concerts were begun.

WAS NO SESSION

Of the Court Considering Value of Road.

The adjourned session of the Perth Road arbitration court was called for Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock. At that hour the legal talent was on hand and an array of witnesses but the arbitrators failed to put in an appearance. The president of the court, Magistrate Farrell, is away on a fortnight's vacation, owing to ill-health, so no session was held. However, the several counsel in the case were not notified to this effect so were present. After waiting for some time they left the police chamber and in some too good a mood. The county side of the arbitration was out in full force as it was thought their side of the case would be heard and fifteen witnesses had been summoned. The date of the next sitting of the court remains indefinite.

Go Slower Down Hill.

The Whig's reference to the dangerous practice of the street railway cars dashing down the penitentiary and asylum hills has resulted in the speed being greatly reduced. Yesterday it was very noticeable that the cars were kept pretty well checked on the down grades referred to. No car has yet jumped the tracks at Portsmouth, but one can never tell when such an accident might occur. The recent Eagle Lith railway catastrophy is a warning.

A Kindly Gift.

Mrs. George L. Hare, of Rexico City, with Harry and Miss Fleo Hare, and Miss Nora Warren, Toronto, recently visited Mrs. J. H. Gauthier, at "Beaudrieve Farm," Odessa. The people of Odessa will be pleased to hear that Mrs. Hare is sending one thousand dollars towards a new library building in her native village.

All Others Beat.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

NEW STEAMER IROQUOIS CALLED HERE.

Minister of Marine Allows Her to Run Here—Scarcity of Deck Hands is the Complaint of Vessel Captains.

Around five o'clock, yesterday, Swift's wharf was the scene of rather unusual marine activity. On one side lay the steamer Toronto, at the end the steamer North King, taking on and letting off passengers, and on the other side the steamer Rideau King, discharging her freight, when blew the whistle of a boat, unfamiliar in the waters of Kingston, the palatial new steamer Iroquois, of the Niagara and St. Lawrence Navigation company. The monster three deck possessor of the fair Queen city's name, backed out, allowing the Iroquois to dock. This new craft excited quite a bit of curiosity, mingled with praise from the mate on the wharf as she glided easily into her berth. She is very similarly constructed to the steamer Turbinia, steel hull, double deck and two smoke stacks. She, however, has more cabin room, fitted out in a thoroughly up-to-date manner, with every thought paid in detail to the convenience of the tourist. She makes sixteen to twenty miles an hour.

The Iroquois made Kingston port of call, yesterday, principally to take on board Inspector Dinie, and he went down the river to make his Canadian inspection.

The Iroquois will now be on her regular route from Lewiston, down the lake to Oswego, across to Kingston, and down to the Thousand Islands, east bound on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and west bound on Sundays, Wednesdays and Fridays. The minister of marine has granted this fine boat special permission to make the old limestone city a port of call. It will, undoubtedly, be a good thing for Kingston, as now many from "the other side," particularly Oswego, have a direct route of reaching this city. James Swift & Co. have the local agency, and Joseph Nash, an energetic young Kingstonian, is general passenger agent at Clayton, N.Y., for all the river points.

It is understood the Iroquois is to make a special trip down the river on Sunday, leaving here at noon and taking as guests of the company, the Kingston Board of Trade.

Deck Hands Scarce.

Just at present, with business in steamboat circles booming, captains on the majority of the river-plying boats are experiencing their usual summer difficulty in getting deck-hands.

"Can you pick us up a couple of deck-hands?" is frequently the call of the boat's officer on hailing in port and one sees two or three men in their working clothes, their bundle of belongings under their arm, step from the gang-way to the wharf and off. Some dissatisfaction, and they refuse to continue their sailing. And not infrequently there are a few fellows hanging around the wharf willing to fill the vacancies. Down in Montreal they go by the name "wharfrats," and are more often than not, ably termed. Here and along most river ports the men who go decking are of a little better type than in the Quebec metropolis.

That wages are too small for the work to be done, is the plea of the deck men. The usual wage, locally, is from $18 to $22 a month, and principally the lower figure. The men are fed and bunked (such as it usually is).

"Not only is the wage the stickler with these men," declared a certain captain, to-day, "they are human, though many are troubled far from so. I find no trouble in keeping my men, for though they are of a necessity hard worked, they are properly fed and given clean berths, and, by the way, it perhaps would not be a bad idea, if it was within their jurisdiction, if the board of health would visit the forecastle of some of our steamers which make Kingston a port of call."

Really good men are hard to find for decking, and when "found" soon work up to buggagemen and wheelsmen.

The government supply boat Scout, in port the past two days, left, this morning, proceeding to Prescott. Capt. Sugbroe came up this way to attend to the buoy at Four Mile Point, which had become displaced. He has re-planted the buoy at the foot of Wolfe Island which recently was dragged to near Clayton, N.Y. The Scout will remain in Prescott a couple of days before proceeding to Montreal. She will then be engaged in painting some of the buoys down the St. Lawrence.

HOTEL DIEU FETE.

It Was Successful In Every Way.

Those who were kept away from the garden fete, at the Hotel Dieu, on Tuesday afternoon, all went in the evening, with the result that the grounds were packed. The pretty, secluded garden of the institution, makes an ideal spot for just such an affair as yesterday's. Last night it looked very pretty with many Chinese lanterns, and other lights, and the flowers decorating all the tables, together with flags and bunting in profusion, and streamers, also, of white and yellow. Mrs. Joseph Swift, the president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, assisted by Mrs. D. O'Leary, received those who came, Miss McDermott and Miss Ronan taking the money at the gate. Home-made cakes, buns, etc., were sold nearby by Mrs. Grady, Mrs. Dolan, Miss Granger and Miss Anna Grady. Pop corn and peanuts went off like hot cakes, from the table in charge of Miss Hickey, Miss S. Crowley, and Miss Rose and Miss Irene Nicholson, and Miss A. P. Hickey. Aunt Sally was perpetually bombarded, with Miss Irene Swift, Miss Dwyer, Miss Gourdier, Miss May Tierney and Masters W. Folger and Swift Hanley in charge of the process. At the flower table were Mrs. F. Ryan, Mrs. Charles Morrison, Miss Wright, Miss K. Ryan, Miss A. Hanlon. Candies were sold by Mrs. Baker, the Misses J. Brown, E. Ward, A. Rigney and I. McDermott. Lemonade, ginger pop, cigars, etc., were looked after by Mrs. McCormack, Mrs. Sowards, Mrs. Moran and Mrs. Murphy, while a bran pie was in charge of Mrs. Devlin, and the Misses McCormack, F. Devlin and I. McCormack.

Miss Sarah Flanagan sold wonderful palmistery secrets, with Miss Lynch and Miss Tierney in the booth with her. Fortunes were told by Mrs. Waterhouse and Miss M. Walsh. Tea and coffee were dispensed at a very pretty dicked table by Mrs. Fagan, Mrs. Phelan, Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. James Sowards, Mrs. Beaudry, Mrs. Teron, Mrs. Scadin, and the Misses Bolger, Burke, O'Connor, N. Hanley, M. Fallon, Beaudry, Myers and Kane. Ice cream was greatly in demand, and the busy ones here were: Mrs. F. Folger, Mrs. Hanley, Mrs. Duffy and and the Misses Beaupre, M. Martin, E. Scadey, Crowley, C. O'Brien, K. Sullivan, M. Hanley, F. Folger, T. Theriault, Burke, O'Connor, H. Asdagh, K. Lynch, Daley, A. Hanley.

Both afternoon and evening there was a capital entertainment, some of the "Pierrots" numbers being put on. The band of the 14th played delightful music at night, the sweet strains floating down from the gallery of the Hotel Dieu, where the players were stationed.

A Large Garden Party.

Cataraqui was the scene of a large garden party, on Tuesday evening, in aid of Christ church. The gathering was attended by a large number of people from the city, all of whom report a fine time. After the usual sale, concert and refreshments, the younger people present indulged in tripping the light fantastic, the music for which was furnished by Crosby & O'Connor's orchestra. As a result of the entertainment the treasury of the church has been increased handsomely.

Street Watering Rates.

This year's street watering bills will go out by themselves, as heretofore, but next year the new rule adopted by the city council will come into force, viz.: placing the street watering charges upon the regular tax bills. By this means, the watering rates will be more easily collected. Of last year's rates there is still about $500 unpaid, in very small amounts. The total street watering rates amount to about $2,800. The bills will be sent out this month.

An Easy Way Out.

The main reason advanced for the refusal of certain members of the city council to vote for a grant to the Old Boys' reception, was that the law did not allow money to be so expended. The law, however, does allow councils to make grants for band concerts, and as music was to be the chief portion of the entertainment, the proposed grant of $200 could have easily been made for that purpose.

HOPE STILL EXISTS

FOR REPEAL OF FORESTALLING BY-LAW.

Ninety Per Cent of the People Would Vote to Have it Wiped Out—The Duty of the City Council is to Repeal It.

Though the by-law to repeal the market forestalling by-law was not passed by the city council on Monday night, there is still hope that this ancient law, which is a detriment to the city's interests, will be wiped off the civic statute book. Some of the aldermen didn't like to vote for the repeal till they had more time to think over the matter. There has been no lack of time, as the forestalling by-law has been the subject of discussion for several years, and it is safe to say that ninety per cent. of the ratepayers are in favor of its repeal. There was a time, no doubt, when the by-law was of some value, but it seems to be pretty well agreed that that time is long past.

This argument is advanced by a merchant: Up town, and in fact in all quarters of the city, there are scores of people who never go near the market. These people are not the wealthy class, either, but just of moderate means. They depend upon the corner store and the general grocery for their green goods, their butter, their eggs and their poultry. Are the interests of these people not to be considered, as well as the few who want to poke about the market all morning looking for bargains? The merchants must get produce to supply their customers, and hence the necessity of being enabled to buy early on the market. It has been proven time and again that the stores sell just as cheap, and often cheaper than do the farmer, to city people. Therefore, the merchants cannot be accused of grabbing up market produce for the purpose of making big profits. There is scarcely a store in the city but does not sell berries cheaper than these can be purchased from the farmer. The same applies also to potatoes and other things. Last winter, around Christmas time, poultry were to be bought cheaper in the stores than from the farmers. Why then, asks the merchant, is a forestalling by-law enforced when facts show that the people would not be injured if there was none?

Because of the forestalling law, many farmers will not go to the market at all, and the market house has been losing much toll as a consequence. These farmers sell in bulk to the stores early in the morning, and get away from town by one o'clock in the afternoon. If there was no forestalling by-law most of them would go to the market, which would be a decidedly busy place between eight and nine o'clock in the morning. Farmers whose trade is more in the line of a wholesale nature, do not care to stand on the market till ten o'clock when the merchants can come and buy.

The repeal by-law having had a first reading, can be introduced at often hereafter as desired. With a full council it is thought that the repeal will carry.
