NEW YORK LETTER

SAFETY OF BALLOON AS A TRANSPORT VEHICLE.

Street Beggars Make a Pile Every Day—A Class in Carving For Prospective Bridegrooms.

New York, July 27.—Dr. Thomas and his brave wife are demonstrating the docility and safety of the balloon as a vehicle of transport. They have made a great many ascensions in their splendid balloon Nirvana, which is the largest gas bag in this country, and carries a family with ease. For poetry of motion and attractive means of locomotion, Mrs. Thomas furnished a very pleasing specimen of ease and luxury as she sailed over Central Park, the observed of all observers. A balloon in the air is the beau ideal for an exhibition machine in this city, for nobody can obscure anybody else's view, all seeing the machine as easily as any can. Mrs. Thomas is absolutely fearless in her ascents, and can do as well as the doctor, who is a little irascible at times, especially when the newspapers criticize him. He was very much put out with a Pittsfield newspaper which intimated that he liked to spread out a great deal, and talked more than he performed. He would not give that paper any information about his plans. But there is no doubt that he is an adventurous spirit and will improve the business of going up into the air and coming down again with safety. Sight-seers are always plenty when a balloon appears upon the scene. News of it seems to spread like news in India by an unknown, yet swift system which no European has ever found out. The balloon found along every street and on the corners, and in the squares, crowds looking upwards, and eagerly following the progress of the balloon.

The street beggars make a nice little pile every day, while they affect all the woes of poverty, seeking relief at the free dispensaries as if they were absolutely destitute. A middle-aged woman appeared the other day and got a prescription, after which she took her place in the line of persons waiting to have their medicine made up by the apthecary. This particular woman, it should be said, had given satisfactory answers to all the questions put to her, designed to show whether she was a proper person to receive charitable contributions. Suddenly there was a cry "I am robbed; I am robbed!" The victim was this woman, who so far forgot her previous professions as to assert that her pocket had been picked and that the thief had got away with $20. Then she lost the opportunity to get free medicine, thus adding, in her view, insult to injury.

The little church of St. Jean Baptiste, on East Seventy-Sixth street, where the annual Novena is now held, presents a remarkable spectacle of canes, crutches and other supports of defective limbs, that have been discarded by patients who have been cured. The walls are lined with these discarded helps to locomotion, and the cured persons are loud in praise of Ste. Anne, the mother of the Blessed Virgin. From that humble temple during the past week and the nights also, there have been wafted incessant prayers for the intercession of the saint, who is, with preference, addressed as the "Mother of the Afflicted." At the services the little church was steeped in reverential silence, broken only by sobs from burdened breasts, or the awkward clumping of crippled feet along the reverberating aisles. During this time thousands on whom fate has heaped the weight of a weak or broken, or deformed body, have flocked there to offer fervent supplications for favors at the hands of the saints. These seekers, after health are certainly lifted into a higher religious state, and by faith have thrown off many ills. The novena stirs up their energies, fills them with hope and by extraordinary exercise of their faith they summon all their energies and powers, and spring to their feet practically regenerated. However, much of a miracle, or how little, there may be about the exercise, the newly regenerated individual is many times the man or woman that he or she was before kneeling at the altar.

Bourke Cochran's fiancee, Miss Annie H. Ide, is known among readers of Stevenson, as the girl to whom he "gave his birthday." Stevenson had met Miss Ide's father when the latter was the United States land commissioner in Samoa, and through this there sprang up a warm friendship between the Scottish novelist and the Ide family, including Miss Annie. The author learned she had been born on Christmas day, which, from his whimsical viewpoint, prevented her from celebrating her natal day in fitting style. So he drew up a document in legal phraseology, dated "Vailima, June 10th, 1891," and addressed to Annie's father, in which he formally made over "to Miss Annie Ide all and whole my rights and privileges in the 13th day of November, formerly my birthday, now, hereby and henceforth, the birthday of the said Annie H. Ide, to have, hold, exercise and enjoy the same in the customary manner by the sporting of fine raiment, eating of rich food, and receipt of gifts, compliments and copies of verse, according to the manner of our ancestors." The reason for giving his own birthday anniversary to Miss Ide was that Stevenson had attained an age when, "oh, we never mention it, and that I have no further use for a birthday of any description."

A pretty and fashionably attired young lady alighted from a Madison avenue car. She waited until the other passengers had filed past her, and then turned a pair of deeply appealing eyes upon the conductor. "Would you please give me my shoe?" she said. "Certainly, madam," replied the conductor, picking up a dainty, dark thing from the car platform, and handing it to the woman. She took it with a blush, and, balancing herself against the car, stooped to put it on. The conductor waited until the woman had thanked him with a smile, and then gave the signal to go ahead. "The first time that happened, it startled me," he said, "but it has become a common occurrence now. The new style of shoes that come this season, pumps, I think they call them, is the cause of the trouble. No matter how small they are, they do not seem to fit the foot. It is quite a trick for a woman to step on or off a car and not lose at least one of them. Of course, it delays things considerably, but then it's worth something to get a glimpse of such pretty feet and to have a good-looking woman smile at you."

The employment of messenger boys in odd kinds of services is beginning to attract the attention of the public, and it seems almost as if people, when unable to find anybody else to do immediately ring up for a messenger boy and he does the rest. One boy was sent for by a woman to catch flies for her pet lizard, which was too sick to catch them for itself. Another boy found, when he entered a hotel room that the extremely fat man who occupied it wanted him to scratch his back. He did the job well, with the help of a brush. The latest is that of a woman, who rang up for a boy, and when he came she told him to hang his cap on a hook, and hired him for an hour and a half at thirty cents an hour. It seems that the maid who attended to her little five-room flat did not materialize, and she set the boy to dusting, clearing the table, sweeping the dining room floor, dusting the hall, and other jobs of fixing up things generally. The woman was pleasantly surprised to find that the boy dusted in the cracks and crevices, and that when the hour and a half ended the flat looked as spick and span as after a regular Saturday cleaning. She thinks it beats servant girl hiring out of sight. The boy rather liked it better than playing at craps.

"There goes a woman," said the tall girl, "who is preparing to confer a blessed boon upon humanity. She is going to establish a class in carving for prospective bridegrooms. She has a score of pupils pledged already. The instruction will be thorough. Each man will be required to wrestle individually with all kinds of meat from the Sunday morning ham to the Thanksgiving turkey, and not until he has learned to sever joints and slice juicy cuts gracefully will he be granted a diploma. Fifty cents a lesson is the price to be charged for this invaluable education. The ultimate cost depends, of course, upon the ingenuity of the pupil. A man with a natural aptitude for carving will probably get through in six lessons. At that rate the education is dirt cheap, and I intend to urge every man in my acquaintance to avail himself of the opportunity to master a difficult art." The young man took a note-book out of his pocket and asked for the name and address of the carving teacher. The girl smiled knowingly and wanted to know when the wedding would be.

A WARM SUBJECT
There's nothing in the world we're so much interested in as Coal at this time of the year. It may sound queer to speak of coal buying and selling as a science, but that's what we've made it. Two important discoveries we have made are that complete satisfaction to our customers pays best, and that the way to win business is to deserve it.

WHAT WHIG CORRESPONDENTS TELL US

The Tidings From Various Points In Eastern Ontario — What People Are Doing And What They Are Saying.

Notes From Westbrook.

Westbrook, Aug. 1.—Raspberries are very plentiful. Pickers can be seen daily, wending their way to the different berry fields and returning heavily laden. Potatoes promise to be a good crop and so far have no indication of rot. J. Gorrie, Kingston, and S. Gorrie, Toronto, spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. A. Howie. Rev. H. I. and Mrs. Allen of Ottawa, Dr. S. S. Smith, of Emporium, Pa., spent a few days the past week with Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Smith. Rev. F. Sproule and son, of Brockville, are at his brother's, J. A. Sproule. Miss Edith Saundercook and Miss Ethel Sproule were recent visitors at M. McDonald's, Odessa. Edward Botting has purchased a fine rubber tired carriage.

Old Resident Dead.

Harrowsmith, July 31.—Richard Ellerbeck, an old and highly respected resident of this township quietly passed away on Saturday morning; funeral services were conducted by Rev. William Service. Miss M. Gallagher is entertaining a number of her young friends. Miss Theresa and Master Daniel Davidson have returned home after spending a week in Brownville, N.Y. Miss Lily Walker is on the sick list. A fine shower visited this vicinity, Sunday evening. A number of our neighbors enjoyed the trip to Picton, on Thursday last. A. Baker's house is nearly completed. Miss Hattie Samuel and Miss Pearl Chown, have returned home, after spending a few days at Dr. Lockhart's. Miss Jane Bradford, visiting friends in the city. Miss Ettie and Earl Buck at Gananoque.

Cheese Factory Meeting.

Keelerville, July 31.—Berry picking and haying are the order of the day. There was a meeting of the patrons of the cheese factory, last week, to decide several matters re methods of book-keeping, auditors, etc. Those thoroughly conversant with the old methods of making out a monthly statement, easily convinced the others that it could not be improved upon, and now there is perfect satisfaction. The splendid prices received for cheese so far this season, promises that this will be a bumper year for the farmers in Ontario. Little Joseph Anglin is very ill with pleurisy. Quite a number attended divine service at Battersea, last Sunday evening. It being flower Sunday, the church was tastefully decorated with nature's choicest blossoms, and Rev. J. A. Waddell delivered a very interesting and instructive sermon. Several from our neighborhood spent an evening at the C. C. C. camp, on Loughboro Lake, and had a jolly time. Mrs. William Dixon, Jr., paid her parents at Round Lake, a short visit. Mrs. C. Moore is spending a little time at her home in Sunbury. Visitors: Mrs. W. Patterson, Sunbury, spent a day or two with her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Hanley; Miss I. Bureau and Miss L. Hipson, Kingston; R. T. and Miss Ethel Clark, Cedar Lake, spent a day at Charles Clark's.

Full Of Visitors.

Barriefield, July 31.—Our village is full of visitors. Gay parties are made up every day to go picking wild berries, which are plentiful in the woods back of the village. Garden grown raspberries and currants have been a complete failure, here, this season. Mr. Stanton has painted his house; it is the prettiest now in the village. Mr. Bennett is painting his house. Mr. Cherry has purchased the house formerly owned by Capt. Batten. William Milton got every bit of his hay put in in splendid condition; not one speck touched with the rain. Mrs. Esford accompanied Mrs. Kennedy, of Buffalo, to the shrine of St. Anne, and spent one week there. The children of the village only come out of the water to get their meals and to sleep these days. Mr. and Mrs. Collyer, visiting her mother, Mrs. M. Byrnes, before returning to Toronto. Miss McCaferty, Rochester, Miss Maggie Burns, Syracuse, at Mrs. Bryns'. Mrs. T. Esford and Mrs. Kennedy, of Buffalo, at Mrs. Esford's. Mrs. McCaugherty and five children, visiting her mother, Mrs. Hutton. Mrs. Henry Knapp returned from a visit to her parents. Mrs. and Miss VanAlstine, Watertown, at William Bennett's. Miss Katie and Beatrice Allen returned from a visit to their brother, George Allen, Brockville. Miss Bennett, Watertown, at J. Tisdale's. Mrs. Givens and daughter, Mrs. Vanluven, at Mrs. Hutton's. Mr. Corkey, Ottawa, spent a pleasant visit in the city and at his cousin's, Mrs. Corkey, Barriefield, and thinks Kingston is a very beautiful and cool city. Mrs. Nelson, visiting her mother, Mrs. Dowler, is returning home.

To Cure Womanly Ills.

Very often ailments which in themselves are not important, though neglected develop into chronic troubles. In such cases opiates, alcohol and narcotics must be avoided.

Probably nothing offers such permanent relief as Ferrozone, of which Mrs. S. Mead, of Fraserville, says: "I feel it my duty to let you know how valuable is Ferrozone. For some time previous to the change of life I suffered more than I could tell. I had such pains and disorders I feared I would die. Neighbors told me Ferrozone was the only remedy. It put a stop to my pain and sickness, had a direct action upon my troubles that gave relief from the start. I now enjoy perfect health and rest. No womanly medicine can possibly be better than Ferrozone."

In women of all ages Ferrozone creates a feeling of youth and spirit that's surprising. 50c. per box, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.
