ITCHING PAINFUL SORES ON HANDS

Suffered for a Long Time Without Relief—Had Three Doctors and Derived No Benefit—One Doctor Was Afraid to Touch Them—Soreness Disappeared and Hands Now Smooth After Application of

CUTICURA SOAP AND CUTICURA OINTMENT

"For a long time I suffered with sores on the hands which were itching, painful and disagreeable. I had three doctors and derived no benefit from any of them. One doctor said he was afraid to touch my hands, so you must know how bad they were; another said I never could be cured; and the third said the sores were caused by the dipping of my hands in water in the dye-house where I work. I saw in the paper about the wonderful cures of the Cuticura Remedies and procured some of the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. In three days after the application of the Cuticura Ointment my hands began to peel and were better. The soreness disappeared, and they are now smooth and clean, and I am still working in the dye-house."

WILL NOT CURE IT HOSPITALS FIND TRYPSIN TREATMENT WORTHLESS.

Cancer Hospital Has Discontinued Its Use, the Experts Having Failed to Secure Any Beneficial Results From It—Discussion in New York.

London, Aug. 15.—The discussion that has arisen in New York touching the value of the trypsin treatment for cancer prompted me to make enquiries in London hospitals as to the results that had, in fact, been obtained in this city. The replies to my enquiries may be summed up in the statement that experiments with trypsin here have not demonstrated that it is a cure for cancer, and that useful in treatment for the relief of cancer patients. The London cancer hospital has discontinued the use of trypsin, its experts having failed to secure any beneficial results from it, and having heard nothing from the experts of other institutions that runs counter to their experience and conclusions. In some hospitals trypsin experimentation is still proceeding, but apparently without the expectation that it will result otherwise than the experiments at the cancer hospital have resulted.

THEEN AND NOW.

Amazed at the Changed Conditions.

Amazement is the word which best describes the feelings of Andrew McConnell, brother of William McConnell, reeve of Front of Leeds and Lansdowne, has been visiting relatives in this vicinity during the past few months. He was born and brought up on a farm just west of Lansdowne village, but left home when a boy. He learned the shoemaking trade with Nassau's Action, Gananoque, and for a few months was clerk in D. F. Britton's store, here. Then he struck out, going to Perth, Peterboro, Rochester, and finally to New York, where for many years he has been, and is now a prosperous retail boot and shoe merchant. When he left Lansdowne, the country was just emerging from its primitive condition. The dwellings were mostly log or small frame buildings of various styles, and the farms, rail fences, bad roads, the landscape bounded by woods and the fields dotted with stumps. Educational advantages were limited, money scarce and a general feeling of untidy families lived by themselves, doing all their work by hand. He has never till this year revisited his old home since he left here, over thirty years ago, but the changes which he has observed in the country have amazed him. He expected to find but little change in the country homes, so when he came he was amazed at the different conditions of the families he visited. The old unsanitary and inconvenient dwellings are replaced by modern structures, equipped and furnished with the latest New York, and have been opened and the old ones repaired. The farmers are now in touch with outside associations, they are educated and well read, and most of them have travelled extensively. In dress and manners and conversation they cannot be distinguished from city dwellers; their sons and daughters are being educated at the high schools and colleges, and given every accomplishment. The same work is now done by machinery, avoiding the old time drudgery, and giving leisure for social enjoyment and intellectual improvement.

COOL CURED CHEESE

UNQUALIFIED SUCCESS OF THE EXPERIMENT.

Testimony from Expert Cheese-makers of the Value of the Lessons Learned—Valuable Hints in Cheese-making. Woodstock Sentinel-Review. A lot of useful information was gleaned by the dairy instructors of Western Ontario at a meeting at the government cheese curing station. Addresses were given by Dairy Commissioner J. A. Kuddick and Chief Inspector Barr of Western Ontario, and the sub-instructors saw and tested cheese undergoing the curing process, which was compared with those cured under the ordinary old style process.

Mr. Kuddick said that the series of experiments conducted at the local station during the five years in which it has been in operation have been eminently satisfactory. The object of the station has been fulfilled and the government will close it this year. Its lessons have been well taught in Oxford and surrounding counties, the cheese factories of this county having taken to the curing process very readily and installed the process in many places where it was working out to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. If the dairy commission, under whose supervision the experimental stations were erected and conducted, were going to do the same thing again he would make no changes in the system except in the insulation of the curing rooms. In this respect the local station was a waste of money, as the curing process is now being raised at the station, have been overcome. Orders were now coming from the old country in which paraffine cheese were specified. Asked whether it would be better to paraffine the cheese at the factory or the warehouse, he advised that it be done at the warehouse, for it is not necessary to paraffine cheese for immediate consumption. The warehouse man would know for what purpose the cheese would be required, and could govern himself accordingly in the matter of the paraffine treatment. By this method the cheese is immersed for about three or four seconds in a tank heated to a temperature of 240 degrees. The waxen skin dries very rapidly and prevents shrinkage and mold to a very large extent.

The cool curing method is thoroughly disinfectant about once a year by being well scrubbed with water containing a very small percentage of bichloride of mercury. The curing process, rapid transit and cool curing and the commissioner ascribed the great progress made by Canada in the old country cheese markets and the present high price of the product. The consumption of cheese is increasing even at the higher prices. The experimental plants which had been erected to try cool curing had cost a lot of money, but the farmers of Canada have been repaid a thousand fold for the outlay, said Mr. Kuddick and the good which has been done will continue to accrue as long as there is the manufacture of cheese and its shipment to the old land.

In the United States cheese was being cured at 40 degrees, and this method has its ardent advocates. The dairy commission of Canada has preferred a temperature of about sixty degrees as the flavor is better and after all that is what sells the cheese. Clean cheese of poor flavor will not sell on the foreign market, and the impression that it will must be dispelled in this country. Mr. Bell, the well-known Tavistock cheese man, stated that the experience of his factory with the cool curing process had been most profitable and satisfactory. The weather did not worry his cheesemaker any longer.

Chief Instructor Barr also told of the benefits which had accrued to the factories which had adopted the cool-curing process. He drew an imaginary line through Woodstock and said some very pointed things about the superiority of the factories north of Woodstock, and their methods. He said that the factories in the north were cleaner, and the quality of the cheese uniformly better. Asked about the construction of the curing rooms, Mr. Kuddick said that his report, which was on the press and would be issued in a few days, would give complete plans for the erection of plants. He said when questioned that the walls should be of twoply matched lumber lined with damp-proof paper, then a hot filling of shavings and another wall similar to that already described. This would give satisfactory insulation. The test floors are of a cement foundation, a couple of feet of cinders, a layer of hollow brick and a surface of cement. His report will tell fully of matters pertaining to ventilation, refrigeration, paraffining, etc., etc.

Arden News Budget.

Arden, Aug. 14.—The weather continues very dry, and farmers are busy harvesting grain and hay. On Sunday afternoon a parade of the Orange-men and "Prentice Boys took place from the lodge room to St. Paul's Anglican church, when Rev. Mr. Fen-ton preached an eloquent sermon, from the text, "I came not to bring peace, but a sword." The discourse was historical, with rare mention by a crowded congregation. Yesterday, the anniversary of the closing of the gates Derry, was commemorated by the meeting of the lodges, and a public dinner was prepared in a large tent. The proceeds, which amounted to over one hundred dollars, was for the benefit of the English church building fund. The Messrs. Ostrom, from Montreal, are camping on the Osborne farm, on the border of Great Clear Lake. The village was full of visitors from Tamworth and surrounding localities.
