Offended With The King.
 Edward VII has offended the Syracuse people very much because he declined them a favour they had no occasion to solicit. Some sort of summer carnival is under way, and in connection with it there is to be a representation or caricature of court life. A committee wanted a picture of the king in full dress, and the secretary was directed to write to his majesty and ask for it.
 Lord Knollys, the king's secretary, acknowledged the receipt of the letter and regretted that the request could not be granted. That was the only answer that could be given. Fancy the king, a man of good taste and sense, catering to the vulgar spirit of the age, and putting himself on a level with those whose vanity finds expression on the labels of cigar and soap boxes.
 The carnival committee console themselves with the reflection that they can get the picture they desire without reference to the king, his grace and condensation. Doubtless. For their purpose any old thing will do.
 The assumption is probably correct that the king's secretary disposed of the business himself. The head of the British nation is not concerning himself very much about the summer carnival at Syracuse, and the frolics or follies of those who participate therein.

Tupper And Carnegie.
 Carnegie is writing to the Nineteenth Century about the uselessness of England's precautions against Russia in India. One would think that the old iron-master was an authority on the subject, which he is not. Besides, he will excuse the British people if they are somewhat sceptical of his seriousness.
 When Mr. Carnegie was in Canada some time ago he said many things that were complimentary of this and mother country. Returning to Skibo Castle he let go some ideas which Sir Charles Tupper challenged, and there has since been a burning controversy between them, with honors on the side of the ex-high commissioner. Sir Charles Tupper has resurrected the Forum of March, 1905, in which Mr. Carnegie wrote of Canada's future. He frowned down the patience the United States was showing Canada, because of the allegiance it had for a cause of the foreign power which detested the republican idea. Mr. Carnegie's plan was to tax Canada's goods to the highest "in the hope that it would cause her to realize that the nations on the continent are expected to be American, and finally one nation so far as the English-speaking portion is concerned."
 That extract recalls the varying emotions of the man. Scotch in origin and American in all that makes for nationality and citizenship. Mr. Carnegie has not written once disparagingly of Canada and her political relations, but several times. He is writing more than he can remember and justify. He should give Canada and her loyalty a rest. Tupper certainly is too much for him.

Expensive Figureheads.
 The Toronto World scathes the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, and with good reason. The need of the institution was really not demonstrated when it was created. The dominion had a railway commission, and it was doing a great work in adjusting differences between the railway companies and the people. Why should the province not have something of the kind? It could adjust difficulties between the street railway companies and the people and regulate the radials and other enterprises under municipal control. It would open up the way for the purpose of conferring favours upon its friends? Strange to say the Ontario railway board, composed of a lawyer, a railway conductor and a grocer, met, organized, and then adjourned for the legal vacation! The man who gets $6,000 a year as chairman, and his colleagues, drawing $4,000 each, constituted themselves a sort of high court of justice, and adopted a code of rules, one of which prevents them from doing anything during the long vacation of July and August, and the Christmas vacation of two weeks. The World wants to know what right these three common, every-day commissioners have to assume the airs and prerogatives of judges. Granting that they have some ground for looking large they must be aware that emergent business must be attended to, and that the legal vacation is no excuse for their neglect of duty.
 The demand has been made upon them that they assert the meaning and effect of the law so far as the two cent per mile rate on the Metropolitan railway is concerned. This law took effect on July 15th and the railway company, in defiance of it, is collecting the old and illegal rate. The attention of the attorney-general is called to the fact; He is superior to the railway board, and perhaps he will see his way clear to call it down, and order that its rules can only be admitted and enforced when they have been approved by the government. Besides the commissioners should really make some bluff at the earning of their salaries.

A Word Of Warning.
 The provincial subsidy question has been considerably magnified by the delivance of Hon. Mr. Brodeur, the minister of marine. Mr. Brodeur made reference to the subject in an address in his constituency. In effect he warned his countrymen to be less indistent upon larger provincial grants lest the effort should weaken the provincial position. It is inferred that the premier and his colleagues may have discussed the subject and that the advice or opinion which Mr. Brodeur offered reflected the mind of his leader. That is only an inference. There is nothing to quote in justification of it.
 It is recalled that the demand for a revision of the provincial subsidy originated some years ago and with the Quebec premier. He suggested that the basis of the subsidy should be changed, as provincial conditions had changed since confederation. The other premiers were approached, but they did not commit themselves. The issue remained open. Mr. Gouin, of Quebec, recently endeavored to revive it, and it has been hinted that his lead might be followed by the premiers of Ontario and Manitoba, now under conservative rule. Mr. Gouin, however, is not a political fool. He will not do any gibbering for the benefit of the tory party.
 The word in season from Mr. Brodeur will be remembered. It is the more important because it is endorsed by Hon. Mr. Tarte, in La Patrie, who claims that the provinces have really no need of larger subsidies. Their finances would be the easier and surer if men were more prudent in the administration of their affairs, if they had not indirectly engaged the credit of the province in a number of enterprises which might have been executed without that aid.
 As a passing expression of public opinion the thoughts of Messrs. Brodeur and Tarte will stand consideration.

Editorial Notes.
 On dit that Mr. Fielding will run for an Ontario constituency. Believe it? Where did it originate? In the Mail. Enough. Next.
 The hot weather and the bye-election in East Elgin have produced their results. The St. Thomas Times has been sued for libel.
 Gas at 80c per thousand feet. That is the offer the Consumers' company has made to the city of Toronto. Could the cost be less under municipal management?
 The politicians of New York state appear to be in revolt against the bosses. Every candidate for office seems to consider it necessary to repudiate the machine.
 Enemies of the provincial right? Who? The men who want an increase in the provincial subsidies. By-the-way was Mr. Whitney, of Ontario, not nibbling at this subject?
 Oddfellowship has not, and cannot, be compromised by any liquor scandal or infraction of the license law. This must be apparent to anyone who knows the law of the order.
 The provincial secretary is in no hurry about re-organizing the provincial board of health. No pressing necessity for it. No? The health of the people is perhaps of secondary importance to the politicians.
 What is the matter with the local license inspectors that the government has to send in detectives to peach upon the license holders? Is this the better administration the people were promised by the new government?
 The government must not suppose that the labour party has overlooked or forgotten about the convict labour and public contracts? The government broke its promise with the labour party. There will have to be a reckoning.

TO PLAN REVOLUTION.
 A Venezuelan Leader Comes to United States.

The Ottawa Journal refers to the hundreds of men who are still liberals though they are beginning to wonder why. It doesn't pay to be a liberal, eh? The conservatives claim the plums whether they are for or against the government. Liberals may wonder, but it is the fact all the same.
 The Belleville Intelligencer is distressed because the liberals desire to be represented in the military service. Many conservatives spend their money on it, says our contemporary. And it might have added most of them get good money out of it.
 The Ottawa Citizen weeps because the election court judges did not condescend with the man whom Mr. Fielding defeated. Perhaps it is not too late to do this yet. The man whom the people would not have is to be commiserated with in his trouble.

GANOQUE NEWS.
 Poultry Trespass Case Goes to the Police Court.
 Ganoque, Aug. 25.—The steamer Missisquoi brought the Lansdowne Sabbath school picnic up to the government reserve and pavilion on Garden Island, yesterday. There was quite a large crowd. A number also came to Ganoque and visited with friends.
 On the return trip in the afternoon at 1:30 quite a number of Ganoqueans took to the ramble among the islands in launch street. Mrs. Dixon, of Thomas Shipman, of Lansdowne, on complaint of his cousin, W. H. Shipman, who lives on the adjoining farm, for allowing his poultry to trespass on the complainant's property. The case will come up before Police Magistrate Headship on Tuesday next.

 The annual picnic of Grace Methodist Sabbath school will be held next Friday, August 26, probably at the government reserve, on Garden Island. The steamer Missisquoi has been engaged for the occasion.

Mr. Farmer leaves shortly for Vermilion, Alberta, where he has secured a position as teacher. George H. Walker, who has been spending a couple of weeks with Mr. and Mrs. Reid, Charles street, left yesterday for Chicago.

A VERY GRAVE OFFENCE
 A Trade Mark Which is Infringed by Many Dealers.
 From Montreal Gazette, Aug. 15, 1906.
 The despatch from London, England, telling of the tailor who was sent to jail by a police magistrate for misrepresenting some tweed and infringing the trade mark act, brings home the gravity of the offence. In this case it was found out that the tailor was advertising suits made to order from Harris tweed. He did not have a yard of Harris tweed in his store.
 In Canada some dealers are lax in their morals in this respect. The Slater shoe, which is the shirring mark in the commercial world, is perhaps the favorite choice of the infringers. The Slater shoe company, receive letters nearly every day from people who say they bought Slater shoes from dealers who never had a Slater shoe in their store. The deceived customer wants a new pair of Slater shoes for these worthless imitations. One can conceive their indignation at the deception practised upon them. All sorts of substitutes are practised.
 Some dealers surely do not appreciate the gravity of the offence. The real Slater shoe has the Slater trade mark plainly marked upon each pair. The good nature of the company is taxed to its limit when some of these letters are received from the victims of substitutes and imitations.
