Anarchy Going Wild.
The anarchists of New York are being encouraged to show their colours and to the extent of raising them above the national colours. They are allowed, also, to say what they please.
The disadvantage of this was exhibited in Chicago some years ago when the Haymarket tragedy occurred. It will never be forgotten. There was a wanton sacrifice of life which shocked the nation. Some of the leaders in the awful carnage were punished. They were executed and so put out of the way. But the nation felt that it was to blame because it gave some men license to do wrong in the name of liberty.
Now there is a new exhibition of the distemper which afflicts the people and those composing the foreign element in the great republic. According to one journal, "the theory is that by not representing this foul spirit it explodes harmlessly in the air." The answer is that "this propagation of the spirit of anarchy unchecked may yet result in a condition as terrible as it is in Russia and some other countries to-day."

It is a timely warning and it had better be remembered. Home lessons are more effectual than any that can be found over seas.
The Fielding Vindication.
The news from Nova Scotia, and to the effect that conservatives were leading in the movement to have Mr. Fielding returned for Queen's and Shelburne by acclamation, is surprising. It is the more so in the face of statements that a hackneyed press has been sending out to the effect that Mr. Fielding is a vicious politician, and public life would be greatly improved by his retirement from it. That is the idea locally expressed, and by one who does not know the minister of finance and cold bloodedly proceeds to traduce him.
It seems that there is a difference of opinion among the conservatives of Nova Scotia with regard to Mr. Fielding. There is an element which finds his mission in persecution. The Shelburne and Queen's election was not a fearfully corrupt one as the conservative press asserted. There was nothing about it that there is not about the average election. The liberal candidate was not personally impure, and he did not desire any one to influence public feeling in an improper way. There was no occasion for it. The tide was running in his favour. That was shown by his return by over four hundred majority, though absent through most of the campaign from the constituency. The province was liberal, and is liberal still. The recent provincial elections demonstrated that fact.

"What we have we'll hold," said Mr. Borden in a recent interview in Toronto. He had no reference to Nova Scotia, where the party has been losing ground as a result of his bitter partisanship. The assaults of a faction on Mr. Fielding will not avail it anything. It was gratified by the unseating of the minister, but he will have his vindication, and in it the better class of conservatives will share. Such is the latest announcement.
Ottawa And Its Ambitions.
What are the Ottawa people aiming at? The press, regardless of political cast, has discussed the financial condition of the capital, and has created the impression that nothing has been gained by the location of the seat of government within the municipality. One paper has gone into a long argument, buttressed by figures, to prove that the city had been a decided loser in revenue by the presence of the Government and its buildings. This loss, in exempted property, in water rates written off, etc., is estimated at $330,000 annually, while the federal government's grant to the public improvements, under the direction of its own commission, is only $60,000. The outsider who reads this endeavours to comprehend what Ottawa would be without the government, its buildings and army of officials, and the result is not flattering to the ambitions of its people.
But a new idea is taking form. It has been outlined by the Ottawa Free Press, in editorial articles and correspondence. The proposal is to form an Ottawa federal district, its care and government to be like unto that of the district of Columbia, the glory of which is the city of Washington. The origin of the latter is well known to readers of American history. The plan of it was to have a given territory, to the cultivation and improvement of which the national government would contribute as circumstances required. The desire was to have a city beautiful without local reservation, Washington, under the direction of a council, subject to the mutations following annual elections, could not possibly be what it is to-day. The president appoints three commissioners of special skill, as engineers, directors of public works and financiers, and it is their duty to manage things so that the best results will be attained. The city being the political Mecca of the nation is made to reflect in its thoroughfares, its utilities, its parks and public resorts, the highest intelligence. Congress legislates for its welfare, and takes no narrow or contracted view as to its wants.

Ottawa longs to be a second Washington, and its papers are being advised that the proposal is possible, and that what is the outcome of Bytown of long ago, "may indeed become the city beautiful of the Dominion of Canada," and "surround itself with a plot of land a few miles square wherein the authority of the dominion government would be supreme." An educational campaign has been entered upon, and it will be interesting to note what the end of it will be. There is more than one side to the question. The disfranchisement of the residents, (all excepting those having votes elsewhere), the acquisition of the land, the extinction of municipal government and the assumption by the national government of the debt of the city—these and other considerations promise to develop into problems which cannot be disposed of lightly and in a few breezy newspaper articles.

Editorial Notes.
Interest at the rate of 192 per cent. How is that for high? It is the toll of a Toronto usurer.
Is it not about time the Ontario power commission and the Ontario railway commission did something? So far they are very expensive and useless luxuries.
The new spelling suits some people. They have been forming words phonetically all along and without any thought of being reformers of the Roosevelt brand.
According to accounts there will be a full bill of fare for the next session of the commons, beginning with November. All the ministers are getting down to hard work.

What a pity it is that all the Canadian immigration agents did not have the choice of a change of occupation. Some men do not succeed when they are too long in one place and at one job.
Ontario is suffering from the exodus of young farmers to the North-West. Over 15,000 are engaged in the harvest. A good many will return to Ontario, but the bulk of them will settle in the west, and Ontario needs their service.
The Toronto News regards Mr. Fielding as a great party man, but says his disappearance from public life would be a loss to the country. By the way is there a conservative in sight who has a better record and who could take his place as finance minister?

The Rochester polo ponies, the same which were in Kingston on Saturday, are attracting great attention in Toronto. Some one suggested that the eleven were worth $6,000, and a trainer said that one was worth considerably more than that. This makes polo a luxury.
It is announced that Mr. Preston had the choice of his old place as commissioner of emigration or the new office of trade commissioner in the east. He took the latter and he acted wisely. After the troubles of the last year his usefulness in England would be limited.
The Christian Guardian is without an editor for the time being, and the general conference will select the man. Editors are generally born, not made. Every man has not within him the instinct for news. The average journalist knows this, but he is not very conspicuous in Methodist conferences.

Every instinct of delicacy, as well as health considerations, demand that absolute cleanliness prevail about a soda fountain. Such conditions are enforced here. Wade's ice cream soda is always drawn in washed and polished glasses. It is a pure and perfect drink perfectly served. Wade's drug store.
King Of The Island.
The sixty inhabitants of Bardsey, an island off the coast of Carnarvon, have elected an old man—John Williams—as their chief and all disputes between them are settled by him. One of the laws of the island is that all the members of the clan intermarry. In the event of a young man falling in love with a damsel on the mainland, and a marriage resulting, he is banished from Bardsey.

SCANDAL RENDS CHICAGO.
Inspector Accused of Plotting Big Diamond Robberies.
Chicago, Aug. 30.—Mayor Dunne declared yesterday on returning from vacation in Michigan, that he has been informed there are charges against police officials, but declared he was leaving the matter entirely to Chief of Police Collins.
Inspector P. J. Lavin stands accused of having plotted the robbery of the Hagaman jewelry store, 5454 Westworth avenue, August 30th, 1901, and of being the man who developed in police circles which presages a wide-spread inquiry and resulting scandal. It is said that another robbery of a jewelry store was planned after the trial. Attorney A. D. Gash, whom the inspector retained to represent his interests, promised to investigate this robbery with a view to throwing additional discredit on the long affidavit of P. P. Mahoney, Lavin's ex-convict accuser.

Andrew Carnegie is famous for the excellent advice that he gives to poor young men.
"In considerable fear, said a New York millionaire, "I once consulted Mr. Carnegie about a new venture. The business looked as if it ought to be profitable. There seemed to be a public need of it. Still, there was some risk involved, and I was afraid."
"But Mr. Carnegie laughed at my fears."
"If it is a good thing, plunge in," he said. "Fear is old womanish. Fear is what keeps untold millions from making fortunes. When Benjamin Franklin thought of starting a paper in Philadelphia, his mother, greatly alarmed, tried to dissuade him. She pointed out that there were already two newspapers in America."

HEALTHY AND HAPPY
Living on Twelve Cents Per Day.
Washington, Aug. 30.—Augustus Riley, a clerk in the war department, seventy-four years old, declares that he spends less than twelve cents a day for his living.
"My average expense every day for five years past has been less than twelve cents a day," said Mr. Riley. "and I have had plenty to eat. The system requires only so much. I sleep like a baby and at leisure I go for a several miles' stroll through the parks. I never get hungry; most people feel that way when their imagination runs away with them. I live on $4.11 a month, and I have an itemized statement to prove it. My favorite dishes are apples, eggs, and rice. I avoid meats and indigestible foods. They tear the vital organs up and put them out of use."
Riley saves 95 per cent. of his salary. He is a man of strong personality and is an excellent specimen of manhood. He is not a miser, and he declares he abhors the life of a recluse. He says he lives well, and he is the envy of the clerks who squander all their earnings and are heavily in debt. He never takes a drink and abhors coffee.
"I never took a drink in my life and I have never used tobacco in any form," he says. "It is deadening to live a life of economy and thrift, and there is no pleasure in spending all one's earnings in extravagant living. As a quiet matter of fact, poverty forced a quiet life upon me. After being swindled out of several thousand dollars in my early life I decided to retrieve my losses and to save some money. Poverty brings good results at hard times. It did me good and started me on the right road."
"How do I live on so little? Why, that's simple. My restricted diet, which I have a good salary, is simply a matter of choice. It is the healthiest and happiest way to live."
