W. K. ROUTLEY DEAD

PASSED AWAY SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Born in England Seventy-Five Years Ago—Lived in Kingston Since 1841—Was an Odd-fellow and a Workman.

William Kent Routley, a resident of Kingston since 1841, and one of its most prosperous and respected citizens, passed peacefully away on Saturday. He was born in Tiverton, Devonshire, England, in 1811, and came to Kingston later to Canada, settling in this city and living on Sydenham street though in different houses, through all the intervening years.

For a time he was associated in business with the late S. P. White and then striking out on his own account and with continued success. Some years after he had embarked in the big fire occurred on Princess street, and his store and stock disappeared in the great conflagration. He at once rebuilt, and resumed his calling, and continued it for another thirty years.

Mr. Routley was a man of quiet demeanor. He was interested in any good cause, and work, and encouraged it as he found occasion, and his confidence, geniality and cheerfulness which was characteristic of him. He was very honorable in all his dealings, and went into retirement, through failing health, with the regard of his neighbors.

In 1851, he married, and became the head of a large family. His wife, six sons and four daughters survive him. The sons are: John, Arthur and Alfred, at home; Charles, of Peterboro; Henry, of Toronto, and Edward, of New York. Of the daughters, Mrs. Ross and Miss Martha, are at home; Mrs. Bell resides in Newark, and Mrs. Wright, at Auburn, N.Y. All of the sons and daughters were with him when he died, except three, and these had seen him recently during extended visits. Mr. Routley left two sisters in the city, Mrs. George Wilson and Mrs. W. J. Mahood.

In 1901 Mr. and Mrs. Routley celebrated their golden wedding and on the 22nd of September they would have been married fifty-five years. Mr. Routley was a life-long Baptist, a member of the A.O.U.W. and of the I.O.O.F., and from Cataract lodge, No. 10, received some years ago his veterans' jewel, which is highly prized. He became an Odd-fellow when the order was weak in Kingston, but he was devoted to the lodge and kept it up with it until the last. The funeral took place this afternoon.

FUNERAL THIS AFTERNOON.

Early on Saturday evening the death occurred at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Calvia Lewis, Victoria street. Dr. Gibson's medicine was used, but advanced in years and had been ill for some time with general debility. The funeral took place at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Cataract cemetery. Rev. J. O. Crisp, St. John's, Portsmouth, officiating.

CHURCH AND EDUCATION.

Rev. Dr. Macgillivray Speaks of the Relationship.

At Chalmers church last evening, in a sermon based on the text "Blessed are they that sow in tears," the Rev. Dr. Macgillivray referred to the close relationship of the church to education. The church, he pointed out, had from the first century been foremost in educating the people. The early missionaries went out with the evangel in one hand and the implement of agriculture in the other. Christ taught the multitudes in the temple at Jerusalem, and hence the spirit of teaching the people had ever since been a part of the work of the church. There was ever a close relationship between the church, the university and the common school. It was but natural that the church to-day should express itself on educational matters, though sometimes it did so unwisely, but it must be remembered that the church is manned by men of the highest caliber, and it is to be expected that the church to-day will be the greatest benefactor of education. Those closely connected with it give largely to education, and one had only to look at Queen's university, established and maintained by the church, for an instance close at hand.

A PLACE OF DANGER.

A Railing Should Be Erected Along the Breakwater.

The sad drowning of last week brings again to the attention of the civic authorities the necessity of affording protection to life at the King street breakwater. Even in daylight when one falls into the water the chances of being saved are not promising. If a railing is not placed along the esplanade, then ropes or chains should be attached to the front of it, so that persons who fall in could have something to grasp. What the parks committee should do, however, is to arrange for the construction of a railing so as to prevent accidents. The breakwater is a place of danger and it should no longer be neglected. The saving of one life would be worth far more than the money expended upon making the esplanade safe at all times for promenading. Before any more plankton or cementing is done, an adequate railing should be erected. A few chains might also be attached close to the water's edge.

OUTLOOK IN RUGBY

FOR 'VARSITY, M'GILL AND QUEEN'S.

It Looks as Though McGill Will Have a Winning Team—Queen's Weak in Back Division—A Coach Needed.

Just who will win the Intercollegiate championship in rugby it is hard to say, and any attempt to pick the topnotchers before the academic year begins may be a little premature. However, at this early date it looks as though the race for the pennant will not be the one-sided affair of last year, when despite the fine matches and stubborn opposition, Varsity won a record. There is one thing about the intercollegiate league and that is the spectators in Canada will be easily captivated this season. It has been stated that ten of the old guard will be missing when the whistle blows for the line-up this fall. This should not be too heavily banked on, however, as at any rate the back division will probably consist of two or three of the old timers and that in itself will make the team dangerous. It should not be forgotten either that Varsity has a number of fairly strong players waiting a chance to break in to senior company.

Looking to the east, McGill is still somewhat of a dark horse. Of the red and white line, it is safe betting it will be as strong as ever. The back division it is said is to be ahead of last fall, and the players from old McGill will do some tall figuring to bring the cup east. It is just about their turn for the silverware, and they can be counted on to fight like game ones.

At Queen's the chances have already been discussed. Here there is always a tendency for the back division to be weak and this season will probably be no exception. However, the line and scrimmage are always exceptionally strong. Queen's always has a team to be proud of, but she lacks a systematic and experienced coach to round the players out. This may be overcome when the boys return next month. Another drawback to the tri-color is the late opening of college. It will not be long how, however, before the fight is on and surmises no longer necessary.

A. DUPONT, Owner.

Busy In Winnipeg.

George D. Sinclair, Winnipeg, representative of the E. W. Gillett Co., Ltd., Toronto, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Robert Sinclair, 30 Frontenac street. Mr. Sinclair says Winnipeg is going ahead at a very rapid rate, and trade is very good there. The sale of Magic Baking Powder, Gillett's Perfumed Lye and Royal Yeast show a larger per cent. over that of last year.

Mr. Sinclair regrets that owing to scarcity of time, he will not be able to make any calls on his old friends, but hopes on his return to the Limestone City, next September, he will be able to extend his visit, and so renew old acquaintances.

Jammed In A Door.

Recently little Cecil Martin, the four-year-old son of Lewis Martin, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, Princess street, was the victim of a very painful accident. As the little lad was coming out of the hotel, the heavy front door slammed, catching the second finger on his left hand, just above the joint. The physician in attendance found that it had been nearly severed, but expects to save it.

The Opera House Staff.

The following are those who will be in charge of the Grand Opera House this coming season: D. P. Branigan, manager; J. Walker, treasurer; P. Hunter, grand floor ticket taker; Allen Reid, gallery ticket taker; Nelson Woodrow, head usher; Foster Donnelly, stage manager; "Doc" Lewers, master of properties; P. Clark, flyman; E. Hartwick, electrician; E. H. Myer, leader of orchestra. Twenty-eight are employed including stage hands ushers and orchestra.

"Dolly Varden," To-Night.

The appearance of Lillian Spencer to-night at the Grand for the first time as a star, in the charming comic opera success, "Dolly Varden," is being heralded as an important event, not only on account of the splendid reputation this attraction has made so far this season, and is making in other cities. From excerpts it is to be expected that local music lovers, and patrons of the best class of attraction, may look for a veritable treat in this presentation.
