Come To Our Fair.

The exhibit of agricultural implements at the Toronto fair is said to be very small and incomplete. Why is it? Possibly the manufacturers are too busy filling orders to spend time on an exhibition.—Brockville Record-tion. Some years ago the fairs were the centres of attraction for the me chinery men. They asked for large paces, in machinery halls, and lenty of motive power, and a de of firms would put on exhibition some f their finest products. The merit of ach article was carefully elaborated by skilled and artful salesmen. This began the merging process. The busiess being in the hands of two or three big companies or syndicates, who monopolized the market, the competition at fairs ceased. There was no occasion to magnify the virtues of to the terms of the manufacturers They are no doubt busy filling orders, but without the monopoly of business which is enjoyed by certain firms, act ng in concert and agreement, there could be the advertising and the etition as of yore.

The government intimated through Mr Whitney that there would be no parture from these conditions. They were submitted arbitrarily. There might be some change, but it would not be sought by the government. It will be recalled that the commis sion made a secret deal with the Murphy syndicate, and that there was such a protest against it, raised the conservatives as well as the ral press, that the government eded the lease and called for new tenders. The Mail reports that change from a graduated to a flat rate has been against the tenderers and some of the original company have retired. Why?

The inference is that the change of conditions has been a mistake. Permps it is, but the moving consideration is the ramour that the Cobalt business is not panning out as some expected, that the right of way is not sought as it was, that even the seals and strengthens the Kid- Gillies limit has been disappointing the government prospectors.
