A GOOD ADVANCE.

Sir Edouard Girouard has been promoted to the position of assistant quartermaster-general of the British

Sir Edouard is a graduate of Royal Military College, who first secured distinction in railway building in the Soudan. His new post is one of great importance. It was formerly held procured from the British government by Col. R. Auld, C.B., and Sir Ian Hamilton was chief. The position is worth $4,000 a year, but this is not half what Sir Edouard received as a member of the Egyptian administration. He is said to have the confidence of Gen. Kitchener, and he is steadily his profession, He is a native of Montreal, and only thirty-seven years old. Some time ago he was adversely criticized for the commercial management of African railways, but his military career has been one of growing bril-
