GREAT CHARITIES

ARE THE MISSIONS IN OUR BIG CITIES.

A Worker Tells of the San Francisco Missions—Why So Many Men Are Homeless—Fault Not Always Theirs.

Joseph Johnson, Pictou, Ont., was engaged in mission work in San Francisco, before the earthquake there, and is now on the relief committee at Berkeley, Cal., for the distribution of food, etc., to the unfortunate victims of the earthquake, many of whom (five thousand in Berkeley, Cal. alone) are now homeless and destitute. He is a few weeks ago was wealthy, and who now have not where to lay their heads, dependent on the food they eat upon charity, as was attested by Mr. Johnson's recent letters that appeared in the Pictou papers.

Mr. Johnson said, when in Pictou about a year ago, he received a letter there, "It would make your heart ache to see those poor lost fellows about seventy-five per cent. of whom were originally from comfortable homes and had been circumvented by not only luxury and refined influences, but also had been, many of them, highly educated, some being graduates of our colleges and universities, and nearly all of them had been successful in business and trade." We are accustomed to regard the beggar and criminal classes of the cities as lost men and women who were bred to crime through a long line of criminal ancestors. But the mission work in the great cities is bringing to light some very startling facts. Here are men and women massed together by the thousands, San Francisco alone, had a floating population of homeless men only, often thousands of the population. And this number was not a fluctuating but a permanent average. That this is a very low average for a large city is attested by the fact that in the Jerry Mission, down in Water Street, New York, in the year 1901, forty-six thousand (46,000) people attended mission services. "The largest part of whom were homeless men and women, and many of them were men and women who had lost their homes, and who were being cared for by the mission, who were themselves a lost and outcast man at one time, though a direct descendant of the famous divines, Jonathan Edwards, and whose grandfather and uncle were both ministers of the gospel," says of New York what Mr. Johnson asserted of San Francisco, viz., that most of these lost men and women were from homes of comfort. "Ninety-nine out of a hundred come here because they are absolutely dying. They have not a cent nor a friend on earth, nor could they get a cent unless they steal it, and their clothing is scarcely fit for a rag man."

That is, in the city of New York alone almost 46,000 people in 1901, five years ago, passed through that mission alone, who had come from such men and women as you have seen in the habit of associating with, of calling on, or regarding as your honored friends, of meeting at your clubs of doing business with, of reading, and these men and women were so wretched, so miserable, so outcast, so ragged, so lost that they hadn't a friend or a cent on earth unless they stole it. Forty-six thousand (46,000) people in one city alone! Multiply your forty-six thousand by all the other large cities on this continent and estimate your total. Is it not time the world wakened up?

Think of it, mother, the little girl whose golden hair you are brushing, may with her children help to swell that total before she dies. The bright boy whose career you are watching, so proud of, and about whose future you see visions and dream dreams, he too, does it seem impossible? So it has seemed to other mothers and other fathers, yet those very sons have been among those who have huddled the streets of a great city all night without a place to lay their heads, who could not even get shelter and standing room in some low saloon without the nickel for a glass of beer, which they must steal to obtain, and against whom every respectable door and window was closed. Of these Mr. Hatley feelingly says:

"While the Christian people of New York go to their comfortable beds in the long winter evenings, and spend the night in sweet, refreshing sleep, thousands of men, yes, and women too, are walking, walking, walking, all night long, in many cases these, too, have once had good homes and loved ones. Thousands try hard to make the nickel that will get the drink and make them welcome in the back room of some Rialto hotel, or to give them the liberty to stand in the rear of some dive; but if they cannot get it they must walk, walk, walk, with no underclothing, with thin clothes, and their feet on the ground, many, in their perambulations, a pass by the very places they once owned, or where they had at one time carried on a successful business. Is it any wonder they come down to the door, and mission, and even go forward for prayers, in order to secure a place to sleep in, or a good, square meal."

"We had the opportunity, when Mr. Johnson was home a year ago, as we said before, of learning something of the work being done in the mission. The new men's home, that he was constructed with in San Francisco. He told us well of the work being done in similar missions, in other large cities in the United States by earnest workers, men and women, who, though small in numbers are great in power. They have the power that comes by entire consecration to God, and to the needs of their lost and helpless outcast brothers and sisters, who have gone down, some under overwhelming temptation; some through craving for strong drink, and some from being thrown out of work through the invention of new machinery, or for other economic reasons. Unable to get work in their own towns they have gone to large cities, only to find themselves penniless, homeless, and friendless, seeking cheap vermin-infested lodging houses for shelter, with tramps as companions, they soon look like tramps themselves, and find their difficulty in getting work increased tenfold, for nobody wants to employ a tramp. Then comes a period of desperation, of begging, of stealing perhaps—who among the graduates of our colleges and universities, and nearly all of them had been successful in business and trade? We are accustomed to regard the beggar and criminal classes of the cities as lost men and women who were bred to crime through a long line of criminal ancestors. But the mission work in the great cities is bringing to light some very startling facts. Here are men and women massed together by the thousands, San Francisco alone, had a floating population of homeless men only, often thousands of the population. And this number was not a fluctuating but a permanent average. That this is a very low average for a large city is attested by the fact that in the Jerry Mission, down in Water Street, New York, in the year 1901, forty-six thousand (46,000) people attended mission services. "The largest part of whom were homeless men and women, and many of them were men and women who had lost their homes, and who were being cared for by the mission, who were themselves a lost and outcast man at one time, though a direct descendant of the famous divines, Jonathan Edwards, and whose grandfather and uncle were both ministers of the gospel," says of New York what Mr. Johnson asserted of San Francisco, viz., that most of these lost men and women were from homes of comfort. "Ninety-nine out of a hundred come here because they are absolutely dying. They have not a cent nor a friend on earth, nor could they get a cent unless they steal it, and their clothing is scarcely fit for a rag man."

Every six months there was also sent into them a general report of all the work of the missions of all the meals and beds furnished, of the moral and spiritual reforms, incomes from earnings of the inmates of the homes, also a report of all moneys paid out in connection with these homes, and a report of all the moneys received. On this report was based the percentage of the receipts of the Associated Charities for the incoming six months, which money is placed in the bank by this society to be drawn out by the president of each mission as required; with the privilege of over-drawing the allowance in some very special cases.

What is Going on About the Harbor.

Craig's wharf, Steamers Alexandria up; Stranger, from Smith's Falls; Swift's wharf: Steamers Hamilton down; Rideau Queen, from Smith's Falls; Richardson's: The schooners Pilot, from Bay ports, and Maggie Lee, from Howe Island, with oats, have finished unloading and cleared for river ports. M. T. Co.: The steamer Westmont and six others, from Hamilton and Ungava, from Port William, with 225,000 bushels of wheat; the tug Emerson cleared for Montreal with four grain barges.

Construction has begun on the largest freight boat ever designed for the great lakes. The new boat will be named W. M. Mills, and will be some feet longer than the E. V. Townsend at present the longest boat on the lakes. The general dimensions of the new steamer are: Length over all, 605 feet, keel, 585 feet, beam, sixty feet, depth, thirty-two feet. The diameter of her cylinders will be 22, 37, and sixty-five inches, with a forty-two inch stroke. She will have two Scotch boilers, each fifteen feet and four inches in diameter and eleven feet and six inches long. They will be allowed a working pressure of 200 pounds.

THE CIVIC COMMITTEES

Will Resume Their Regular Work Next Week.

Next week, beginning Monday, the regular meeting of the civic committees will be resumed. There have been special meetings of them on and since the city council adjourned on July 9th, for three months' vacation. These have been held by the light committee in regard to the plant extensions. The board of works has also had a few sessions to deal with business requiring immediate attention. There isn't much to come before the committees next week. Tenders for fuel will be opened by the fire and light and city property committees. The latter has not yet reported upon the city buildings' renovation scheme. Some day it may. The important business before the city council on October 5th, will be the resignation of City Clerk Shannon's resignation, and the appointing of his successor.

New Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor makes the hair grow because it is a hair-food. Feed the hair-bulbs, and the hair grows. That's nature's way, and that is all there is to it. Strong and healthy hair stays in, keeps soft and smooth, and grows thick and heavy. Then old nannies with Ayer's Hair Vigor. A little of it often does great things. There's genuine comfort in a hand, some head of hair.

THE TOWNSHIP FAIR

WAS A LIVELY EVENT AT THE DRIVING PARK.

The Attendance Was Large and the Interest Keen—The Races Were Exciting—A Good Programme Was Put On.

The Township of Kingston Agricultural Society held its annual exhibition, at Cataract Driving Park, on Thursday. To use the old hackneyed phraseology telling of the success of the gathering, scarcely proper or sufficient in this instance. The fair had been heralded, for some time past, as the coming event of the district, and now that it is over, one can look back and truly say that the boasts of the management have been that was prophesied, and that, and even that it would be a fair to witness a larger number of attendants or better than any other township fair than that of Thursday. Good weather alone was wanting to make the matter a success, and the fair, in fact, was a success. The receipts of the fair, as they stood at the close of the day, were $1,100. The fair was a success, and the receipts of the fair, as they stood at the close of the day, were $1,100.
