CONVENTION IS OVER

R. W. CLARKE, MILLBROOK, IS THE NEW PRESIDENT.

Quite Fitting That He Should Be Chosen in Kingston, His Mother's Home—The Addresses of Last Evening Were Fine.

The Officers Elected. Following is a list of the officers elected for the ensuing year: President—R. W. Clarke, Millbrook.

A very lengthy, but interesting paper, was given by William Hamilton, chairman of the executive committee, and international representative of the Ontario Sunday School Association.

Perhaps the most interesting part of the afternoon session was the conference on "House to House Visitation," conducted by Thomas Yellowless, secretary of Sunday school extension.

The speaker stated that Kingston had decided upon holding a house to house visitation, the main object of which was to ascertain what church the people attended, or if they attended any.

"There is little difficulty in the work where it is understood," said the speaker, "but I would not advise you to go into it until you thoroughly understand what you are about."

Mr. Yellowless stated that a house to house visitation would be made in Kingston in the near future.

Thursday night's session opened with the usual song service and a devo-tionary service conducted by Archbishop Macdonald.

which has open seats," said the speaker in continuing, "I am somewhat old-fashioned and I do not care for these seats. I would rather see the old pews in which the fathers, mothers and children sit together and where they have room to squeeze in a friend."

The speaker contended that all the money required for the carrying on of the Sunday school should be furnished by the church.

"The superintendent, officers and teachers of a Sunday school should be total abstainers and in favor of prohibition of the liquor traffic."

The speaker, in his opening remarks, stated that he had noticed that the keynote of the convention was teaching.

A great deal of time had been taken up on the question of teaching of children.

The Bible he said, was translated into several languages.

ENTRANCE CORRIDORS OF CITY BUILDINGS

Require An Application of Paint

At last the City Engineer is to Report to the City Property Committee.

At its meeting next week, the city property committee is to receive an estimate from the city engineer upon the cost of painting the entrance corridors and staircases of the city buildings.

At a comparatively small cost these corridors can be made fit for inspection.

For several years past, they have been fit only for the blind.

A village hall in many a rural locality has a more presentable entrance.

Kingston's city buildings are grand without, but within, the exception of the treasury department, a lover of beauty would weep as he gazed upon the awful sight.

For several years, the property committees have put off the necessary improvements, awaiting the time when the whole buildings would be renovated.

As these renovations are further deferred, it is time the painters and decorators were set to work to make the entrances presentable.

The outer doors will be soap worn through and the weather if a paint brush is not rubbed against them.

He made a Famous Ride in Mantou, Cal. A visitor to the city on Thursday was L. L. Loeb, the young man who in the year 1902, made the famous ride in Mantou, Cal., and thereby saved many lives.

It will be remembered that there was a cloudburst. Loeb was a cow puncher, and he warned the people of a flood, and as a result they were able to flee and when the time came, all the newspapers at the time made glowing references to the work of Loeb, who rode, so it is stated, a distance of seventeen miles in one hour and three-quarters.

The age to the extent of $650,000. At the time Loeb suffered a severe fall, where by he lost the use of his limbs, and although he has been undergoing treatment ever since, he has not yet recovered. It is very hard for him to get about. He is now on his way to Montreal, where he will undergo treatment. His home is in Chicago, and he has been meeting his expenses by selling soap in the various places he visits.

Loeb is twenty-five years of age. He has in his possession a testimonial from Jacob Sipp, chief of police of Hamilton, Ohio, which tells of his heroic work. Loeb came to Kingston from Toronto.
