THE RECEPTION

GIVEN THE NEW RECTOR AND HIS WIFE HERBY.

St. George's Hall Most Effectively Decorated—The Welcome Came From the Diocese as Well as the Congregation. Many flags and banners, graceful loopings of scarlet and white, numbers of lanterns, evergreens and palms, rugs and wicker chairs made St. George's parish hall into a very home-like room for the reception to Dean and Mrs. Farthing, on Thursday night, Major White, M. S. Sutherland, J. S. Turner and A. C. Dunbar, are receiving much credit for their work. Battered in the lower hall directed people to the cloak rooms and emphasized the fact of the cathedral being the garrison church.

Just within the hall doors stood the receiving party, Canon Starr introduced the people as they came to the new rector and Mrs. Farthing. Present were the Lord Bishop of Ontario and Mrs. Lennox Mills, and the Chancellor, Mrs. R. J. Carson and Miss Spangenberg, joint conveners of the reception committee were everywhere seeing that all went well. To the right a refreshment table staked with scarlet and white curtains, and bright with much silver, was presided over by Mrs. W. D. Gordon, Mrs. R. W. Garrett, Mrs. W. B. Dalton and Mrs. H. Tandy. A bevy of young girls and a large staff of young men passed cake and coffee. An orchestra was on the platform and played softly throughout the evening.

Canon Starr, in extending the hearty welcome of the cathedral congregation to the new dean and Mrs. Farthing, said he felt all concerned were to be congratulated. From all sides came reports of Dean Farthing's ability and success as preacher and organizer, and the verdict of Huron diocese was, that in his company, and most efficient clergyman. His election as professor of the general synod proved the esteem in which he was held by his parishioners. Canon Starr said the new dean's lot "had fallen on a far ground and his was a goodly heritage."

"You may find Kingston a little conservative," he said. "You may discover it has no summer hotel, and perhaps lacks a bit in social hustle, but in spite of that you will find that for loyalty, churchmanship and sincerity of friendship, Kingston is hard to beat." Canon Starr spoke of the history and struggles of St. George's from its foundation in 1783 to the present time, of its magnificent edifices, dignified services and cherished traditions. He said that he hoped it might long continue to accomplish work for Him, whose message of love flashed from the cross-crowned dome.

In concluding Canon Starr said it seemed remarkable that the three prime features of the cathedral came from Woodstock. The bishop was born there, the organ was built there, and the new dean came from there. He believed they were not only Woodstock but good-stock and would prove such stock as would bear much fruit to the Canadian church.

Canon Muckleton, an old cathedral boy, brought greetings to the new dean from the bishop and diocese of Ottawa, and congratulations to the congregation on his appointment. The dean had been the possession of the diocese of Ottawa, as well as of Ontario, in the old days before the division, and he spoke feelingly of the grief his sudden call had been to the clergy in the diocese.

Elder J. B. Pense, seeing that the bishop had handed the "word" of mutual and corporal possession" of the incumbency, and the wardens had presented the keys of the church doors, and the strong woman, containing the retiring floating deity, had left to him only the sentimental grapes. But these were tendered in great sincerity, for Dean Farthing's name had been received with one unbroken chord of harmony and welcome. They pledged the quiet but constant unanimity with which they had followed, and respected his predecessor, and they pledged to make St. George's a still greater factor in the church and community by its exalted services and broad spirit.

In the unavoidable absence of the senior archdeacon, words of cordial greeting on behalf of the city clergy were spoken by Archdeacon Macpherson. Twenty-one years had passed since they had met in this place to welcome Rev. Buxton Smith. Under his gracious leadership, as rector and dean unbroken, either had succeeded among the clerical staff of the city, and he was persuaded that the same happy relations would be continued under the new dean, who had brought to him of Christian workers cordially welcomed, and to whom he hoped many fruitful years would be given.

Dean Farthing then rose to thank the congregation for the hearty welcome given himself and his wife. He said also that his reception from the clergy had proved that Ontario harbored none of the diocesan jealousy often found. He hoped that the ties between himself and his congregation would strengthen as they worked together. He had carried with him all his people's memories, very loving at this time, had often spoken in warm praise of the man who now fills his office.

The new dean and rector has come to a parish that "at unity in itself." Under Canon Starr's untiring priestly care, since he has had sole charge of the parish it has prospered in every way. No thread of the work has been dropped, communicants have been numerous, congregations large, the sick faithfully visited, and all the activities in the church kept moving. The congregation, which has expressed its gratitude privately and individually, to Canon Starr, would like to do so publicly. The ardour of the de-work left to him by the late dean, no one knows but himself, but he has not shrunk from one jot of it.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Forshee, Allistonville, return thanks to their friends, for kindness and sympathy over the loss of their son, also to the lodge of Oddfellows to which he belonged.

Merely Stated The Fact.

A smart lawyer had been billyragging the witness in a laundry case. Finally he asked: "How long have you been getting your washing done at this place?" "Ever since your mother died," answered the witness. "What do you mean, sir?" asked the lawyer, frowning up. "Just what I say, sir," calmly replied the witness. "Do you mean to insinuate that my mother ever did your washing? You—you—"

Stop The Practice.

A citizen asked a Whig representative, this morning, if juveniles were allowed to frequent the police court as spectators. He brought the practice should be stopped and in illustration of his reason told of a conversation he had heard between a number of boys. The first said he had been "pinched for cribbing," and given a few days and the other youth boastfully remarked that he had served a year in Toronto for the same offence. The language of those boys was, in itself, criminal and the citizen thought that the police court had a bad influence on juveniles and that they should be kept away from it until they came of age. These boys had been seen in the police court by the citizen in question.

GONE DOWN TO ROOT

ABOUT 275 SUPPORTERS WENT WITH QUEEN'S.

The Home Team Expects to Give McGill a Race For The Winning Score—R.M.C. Will Give a Good Account. About 275 supporters, accompanied the three football teams who left here at one o'clock, for Montreal, on Queen's annual excursion. Queen's will line up as follows: Macdonnell, full; Cooke, Williams, Campbell, halves; Feeg, quarter; Hale, Gibson, Donovau, scrummers; Irwin, Beova, inside; Baker, Fraser, middle wings; Arthur and Crawford, outside wings. Though the team was defeated by a small margin here, last Saturday, the boys hope to remove the hoodoo that seems to be following them to-morrow, and though Captain Kennedy is put of the game, the team that lines up to-morrow will be stronger than last Saturday.

The R. M. C. Team.

The R. M. C. team who plays McGill II will line up as follows: Donnelly, full; Billiard, Gibson, McKenna, halves; Carson, quarter; Scott, Humphrey, Corley, scrummers; Hutton, Brown, inside wings; Warren (Captain), Rhodes, middle wings; Moffatt and Hammond, outside wings. Cadets trimmed the McGill intercollegiate here, last Saturday, and though McGill has strengthened her line, the Cadets generally play best away from home. So far they have not lost a game this season, and when Cadets start the season will generally win out.

Queen's association football team play a return game with McGill at 9.30 to-morrow morning. McGill was defeated here, last Saturday, by one point, and an interesting game is expected. K. C. I. And Brockville. The Collingiate team has at last agreed to meet the representatives of the K. C. I. in Brockville on Saturday afternoon. Brockville was defeated here some time ago by fifteen points. They have been practising since and hope to defeat the Kingstonians in to-morrow's game. The K. C. I. will line up as follows: Nicholson, fullback; Elliot, Hunter, Hafner, halves; Dick, quarter; Calvin, snap; Mundell, Grimshaw, outside wings; Havlett, Reid, middle wings; Dyle and Metcalfe, inside wings.

That Gannaque Protest.

Three years ago Kingston Lions had the same kind of trouble with Gannaque. They had had this fall. It seems funny that a man will run a baseball team, invite a team to play against his men, and four years later swear that the men who played against his team were professionals. This is the case of the Gannaque men who are running the football team in the factory town this fall. We could give their names to the public, but are too modest, as it would make Kingston appear at the same low level as Gannaque. A man who cannot afford to lose his money should not bet on anything that is not sure. Yesterday the Gannaque Journal states that the protest against Laird is one of old-standing for playing professional baseball, and that against the other players, for being in a game without a permit. This is too thin to go with the O.R.F.U., and at to night's meeting in Toronto the only satisfaction Gannaque is likely to get will be to notify a matter of about $50 which will very likely cause the team to disband, as its backers are too close listed to run a amateur team, little less a football association.
