PROF. WORKMAN AT QUEEN'S COLLEGE.

The Exercise of Faith Needed For Right Action in the Life of Business Men.

At Convocation Hall, yesterday afernoon, those present had the plensure of listening to a thoughtful and clever address from Frof. Workman of Montreal, who spoke on the subject, religious faith, "As speing Him

The words are both unique and significant. The nature of faith as suggested by the text, is the first consideration. Faith is an assuring conviction of things we do not see. But in the previous verse faith is presented in its subjective aspect as a mental problem. Faith may appropriately be called a sixth sense-man may be said to have an inner and an outer eve. Faith is the faculty of spiritual discernment. It is that power in man which allows him to see the invisible. Man must be required of two things: (1) He must have a spiritual self or faculty; (2), that faculty is susceptible to outside influences. It matters not how a man may describe his feeling. The faculty which discerns is faithreligious faith. Faith is that power in us which begets certitude. But while faith considered in its essence is a faculty, it is also an activity. As the former it impresses us of truth and reality; as the latter it compels us to and 25c. per pair. live up to it. Hence there is the third asnect of faith the practical one, Faith is the fidelity to one's convictions. To have faith in the practical s ase is to act according to the truths we hold. It is not what we believe, but how we behave; that proves us men and women. This is the most practical espect of faith, and the emphasized in the text. The second roint, its functions. Faith has three-fold function. First it prehending faculty. Through it we ap prehent God. God has only been found from within. There only through ages has He been found. The second function of faith is the energizing faculty It offes strength to those in weakness help to those in temptation Wh n overwhelmed by intellectual difficulty, among the doubt which sur rounds our religious beliefs, we are Keep the cold out of your woors and Propriete reace. This was the experi-

Finally, the third function of faith is to analy and mit into action our convictions. This is the applying function. We are not to believe only to into a conviction of God. Faith is a principle of action. In conclusion the speaker referred to the practical effect of thines in making rs do what is right according to our be'i fe in the feith of our views, and pointed out that there has never in ed, successfull, as referee and um- ed from his holidays spent at Bob's history of our country been so much need for this characteristic.
