BUY PRESENTS NOW

WILL PAY TO SHOP EARLY IN BEST SENSE.

Store Employees Will Call You Blessed if You Show Them Consideration—Your Advantage Anyway—Some Suggestions as to Suitable Gifts.

Begin your Christmas shopping, the merchants are hesitating about bringing out their displays because the public generally does not wake up to the importance of making selections early.

Show them that you are ready to begin buying. Away with the unwritten law that nothing must be purchased until after December 15th.

The merchants know that late shopping is going to be bad for them. They know that it means longer and harder hours for their employees as well as for themselves.

They know that it will mean hard work to get these presents delivered. They know also, all too well, that the shopping is unsatisfactory shopping, and that gifts will come back after the holidays because buyers did not take time to make deliberate selections.

Begin now to make purchases. The merchants, the clerks and the parcel deliverers will rise up and call you blessed.

It is sometimes argued that Christmas displays lose their fresh look after a few days out on the counters. In that case a reserve stock can be kept for the last few days.

There are several lines of Christmas buyings which can be done much better now and really all who have any consideration in their make up will always do so.

One very common gift is an engraved nameplate with a hundred cards. Also extra cards are ordered from old plates for use in three or four days before Christmas before ordering. All the dealers in stationery say they are seriously hampered every year by late orders.

Even if they are able to fill the orders they cannot do so without full justice. Order your cards early. Presents in gold or silver which are to be engraved should be ordered now.

They are bothered with a late Christmas rush which it is usually impossible to take care of. You may give your present and have it engraved afterwards, but the result is never so satisfactory. The engravers are entitled to your consideration.

You may make books your Christmas staple. You can't select them with too much care. It takes a good deal of time to select a dozen or more books, and if done now a great deal of time is saved.

BEAUTIFUL ZEPHRA

SCORES ANOTHER BIG SUCCESS AT THE GRAND.

Was Put on in Aid of the Hotel Dieu and Pleased Everyone Present—Kingston Proud of Her Talent.

Beautiful Zephra scored another big success at the Grand last night, when put on in aid of the Hotel Dieu. The audience was not as large as any one of the other performances, but it was a most appreciative one, and when the curtain dropped for the last time, many favorable comments were made.

One cannot see too much of Zephra. It has made a name for itself in Kingston, and will be long remembered by all who had the pleasure of attending. The audience last night was composed of a goodly number who had witnessed the play last week. Not in a long time have the theatregoers of Kingston been favored with such a production that has been so pleasing to everyone.

The story of Zephra is an interesting one, and it was given ample justice by the different members of the cast. Kingston has every reason to be proud of her talent. The opportunities for fine work in it are many, and all of them are taken advantage of in a manner that is most pleasing. Mrs. Aida Teleman showed herself to be well capable of taking the role of Zephra, Queen of Norway, and as King Decius, the King of Norway, William Mansford showed marked ability. As Neyer, the king's daughter, Miss May Hinchley was all that could be desired, and her songs "Tell Me Cupid," and "Farewell Until 'The Merry-Go-Round'" were her most pleasing.

The other members of the cast gave good support and well earned the unstinted applause that was given. Miss Frances Keating takes an interesting part in the role of Flora, a friend of Neyer, and handled the part well. Much praise is also due the other principals, G. H. Gillespie, as Juna, Prince of Myrland, T. V. Daly, as Sir Scritt, captain of the guard, Zeta DeWolfe, as Fritz, the fairy godmother, William McFodrigue, as Sir Alexis, minister of state, and J. A. Sweetman, a knight.

One of the most pleasing features in this production was the Japanese Karana, put on by ten young ladies. Miss B. Lieberman's singing in this was excellent, and she was warmly applauded. Miss Norma Hughes came in for high honors in her singing of "Miss Commodore."

Baby Minnie was, to use the words of all the ladies present, "too cute for anything." In the part of Cupid, Baby Minnie was the recipient of a box of candy given by an admirer. Miss Hinchley received a fine bouquet of flowers.

Never Before. At this season have we sold so many furs for Christmas presents, and never before have we received so many compliments on our noble styles and superb values in fine furs, you may select a fur to suit your wish and by making a small payment have it laid aside until wanted. See our big values in scarfs and mufflers. Campbell Bros., the store that saves you money on fine furs.

Saturday Market. There was a large offering of beef at to-day's market. There was more beef offered than anything else, and the result was a price of $5 and $6 per cent. Pork was very scarce, and $9 and $10 a cwt. was asked for what was offered. Ducks were plentiful at $1 a pair, and there was a fair supply of chickens at 65c. and 75c. Turkeys were very scarce, and some sold as high as $1.30.

A Kingstonian's Misfortune. Councillor Boyd told the Gananogue council that he had been severely injured by a doctor riding a bicycle on the sidewalk. He had brought this more forcibly before him, a friend of his, in Kingston, had been rendered a cripple for life by being struck by one of the wheels of a bicycle. He had been in the hospital and would never recover.

Change of Business. The Massey Harris company have appointed Messrs. R. J. Spoor and Dufferin Cosgrove, under the firm name of Spoor & Cosgrove, their agents in Kingston. In addition to the Wolfe Island field, with which the name of Mr. Spoor has been so long associated, the new firm will shortly assume control of the local business at the old stand, 132 Clarence street, where one of the partners will always be on hand to welcome prospective customers. The Wolfe Island business will still be looked zealously after, and the farming community of this district, will find their interests well guarded by the new Kingston representatives. J. F. Williams, who has been travelling salesman for the Massey Harris company, has connected himself with this new firm. Mr. Spoor will be found each day at the office ready to confer with his many friends in both districts. Under the new telephone system introduced on Wolfe Island the farmers of that municipality will be readily communicated with, by Spoor & Cosgrove, whose prompt attention will be given.

This has been an exceedingly quiet week in police court circles. Court was only held on two days, and there were five cases in all. Bibby's 50c. neckwear is elegant.
