Couldn't See Why Earrings Were Not For Keeps

New York, Dec. 27.—Mrs. Berger, of 30 Lewis street, had Minnie Probst, of 5 East One Hundred and Sixteenth street, in the Jefferson market police court yesterday, charging her with the larceny of a pair of earrings, which he valued at $300.

Early in September, he told the court, his engagement to Miss Probst had been announced at a reception and party at the girl's home. He said he gave her the earrings as a conditional gift. They were to be her own property after their marriage. Afterward she refused to marry him or give back the earrings.

Miss Probst had something to say. "We had a betrothal party," she said, "and he gave me the earrings as a present. We were engaged to be married on January 27th. Right in the middle of the party, Len, Freedman, who lives at 233 Fifth street, rushed in and said that Sam had promised to marry her in December. He could not deny it and the party broke up. Of course I wouldn't marry him after that. The earrings were mine then."

Attorney Harry Kemper for Berger attempted to explain that the man could not have made a present of the jewelry, as he got it on credit, and it was still unpaid for. Magistrate Steinert dismissed the case, saying it was a matter for a civil court.

VICTIM OF MIS-SHOT

JAMES CAMBOY WAS KILLED AT MOUNTAIN GROVE.

A Grandson Was Using a Rifle at Target Practice When the Very Sad Accident Happened—Deceased Was an Old Veteran.

Mountain Grove, Dec. 21.—Much regret attends the accidental death of James Camboy, in our village. He was a victim of a bullet from the rifle of his grandson, while target shooting at the home of the old gentleman, on the 21st inst. The bullet entered the left eye and passed through the head. The deceased, aged seventy-three years, was one of the first settlers in the township of Olden, having entered on his lands in 1856, when the land was in a state of nature. Suffering many hardships for the making of roads and from the ravages of wolves and bears and his small flock, he yet persevered and became one of the most successful farmers in the township. He was mourned by a loving husband and father, wife, four sons and three daughters, to whom the earnest sympathy of the community at large is extended. The funeral will be held in the family home, at the Zealand grave yard, showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

A BIG FUND.

Toronto, Dec. 27.—The discovery of great supplies of oil of the best quality is causing excitement on the island of Newfoundland, and hopes are being expressed that the Government will take steps to prevent them falling into the hands of the Standard Oil Company, which controls the rest of the Canadian market.

PREDICTED DEATH.

Monk Told Dr. Lapponi of His Decease.

Rome, Dec. 27.—Prof. Lapponi, of the University of Padua, a believer in the occult sciences, shortly before his death had an odd experience. He was called to visit an inmate of a monastery called a brother infirmarian, and said gravely: "The doctor says he is going to cure me, but the truth is I shall die two days hence. Your brother will be dead within a month, and before three months have flown the doctor will have joined as both in another world."

The prophetic patient collapsed in forty-eight hours, while a few weeks later the friar nurse was buried in the Camp of St. Lapponi, who was deeply impressed at the prediction, had fallen ill with a malady which specialists declared to be cancer of the stomach, and to which he ultimately succumbed.

DENY THE STATEMENT.

That Important Documents Were Taken Away.

Rome, Dec. 27.—The Vatican maintains that despite France's declared intention to ignore the pope's protest to the powers regarding the violation of the neutrality in Paris, M. Pichon, French minister of foreign affairs, verbally explained the matter to several disinterested in Paris who have telegraphed his statement to their respective governments. The Vatican emphatically denies that important papers were removed from the Vatican before the French government seized the place. The pope has created Mr. Montanini, formerly secretary of the papal legation in Paris, who was expelled from France, a pro-thronary apostolic of the first rank. It is understood this is preliminary to higher honors.

Gift of Hospital Site.

Jameson, N.Y., Dec. 27.—O. E. Jones, a prominent citizen who is finally ill, gave to the city of Jameson a Christmas gift to-day in the form of a deed to twenty-seven acres of land near the centre of the city to be used as a site for a non-sectarian hospital. The property is valued at $50,000.

From 8:30 to 10 o'clock Christmas morning two messengers with a horse and sleigh were kept busy delivering the Christmas candy from Gilman's and Cross Drug Store. It says to be the highest days candy.

LANDMARK RESTORED.

An Hotel That Was Frequented in Early Days.

New York, Dec. 27.—The work of restoring Frances Tavern, the oldest landmark in the city, is nearly completed, and visitors can now see Washington's long room in all its ancient glory. Though Asa Bordgarner will no longer make the place live with his spirit of legal lore and wit, the aspect of the place has undergone little change. The plans for the renovation of the tavern were prepared by the Sons of the Revolution, and the work carried out by William M. Hershorn, the well-known architect, at a cost of $50,000. The tavern will now become the headquarters of the Sons of the Revolution, and it resembles as closely as possible Frances' old building. The main entrance has been removed to the south side of the Continental army, December 4th, 1783. Like so many other very old buildings, the tavern has been largely rebuilt in its present form. Portions of the old building is now devoted to a museum of revolutionary relics, and the Sons of the Revolution have provided themselves with a suitable and attractive home, and at the same time have preserved a building that deserves to stand while the republic shall endure.

HEIR REVENGE

Murder Of Merchant By Girl Clerk.

A LOVE TRAGEDY

ITS CULMINATION IN A HAMBURG STORE.

Shoots Him Dead in His Office, Fires at Another Girl, Then Kills Herself—'This is My Revenge,' She Said.

Hamburg, Dec. 27.—Hence was the motive of a desperate crime committed by a girl in the office of Herr Reinmann Oetgen, a young merchant, in the Meuerstrasse, on Thursday night.

Neighbors had seen the girl, who was of unusual beauty, waiting for several days in succession in the street, outside the office. They had seen, too, that the merchant avoided her as much as possible. It was soon known that she was a former clerk of Herr Oetgen, who had at one time declared himself in love with her.

She was noticed on Thursday night, walking irresolutely to and fro in the street. Suddenly she turned and entered the office with a firm step. She opened the door of Oetgen's room, and in an assumed voice called him. He was dictating a letter to a girl typist.

She rose and went to the door, and instantly received two bullets from a revolver, and fell dead. The murderer, crying, "This is my revenge," fired a third shot at the typist, and missed. She fled to the street, and fell headless, she pulled the trigger, and fell lifeless across the body of her victim.

When they get the vessel into a graving dock they will appreciate my reasons for asking underwriters to guarantee $105,000 before we would contract to float that vessel."

DEATHS IN STORM.

The Blizard Very Destructive in Britain.

London, Dec. 27.—The blizzard which commenced on Christmas night continues throughout Great Britain. The country districts, in most of the northern parts of the country, are snowbound. A number of deaths have been reported of pedestrians who were overtaken by snowstorms in the Scottish hills. Steamer traffic across the channel and Irish Sea is greatly impeded.

HE TOOK HIS LIFE

A DETECTIVE CONFESSES TO MURDER OF WOMAN.

Man Assigned to Unravel Mystery Showed Superior Hysteria Crime Was Committed—Then Killed Himself.

Rome, Dec. 27.—The detective insisted emphatically over a man's love life, and incidentally the Italian police force lost one of its most promising young detectives.

A few months ago the body of a young peasant girl, Domenica Vincetti, was found terribly mutilated near the cottage in which she lived with her parents, in the village of Viggiano.

The case was given to Giovanni Canturi, a young detective who had already distinguished himself by unravelling several intricate crimes, and he devoted himself to it. Yesterday he entered the police office at Viggiano and informed his superiors that he had found the murderer.

He proceeded to reconstruct the crime, and explained how the murderer had met the girl behind a hut in the field and demanded that she marry him. She refused, and ran away and the man pursued her and struck her on the head with a stick.

Canturi then described how the man buried the blood-stained stick, and how he had found it. He also produced a blood-stained coat, which he said the murderer had worn. He pointed out finger marks on the stick, and then pressing his fingers on some wax pointed out that the prints were identical with those on the instrument with which the girl was killed. He put on the coat, which fitted him perfectly, and then declared: "I killed Domenica Vincetti because she refused to marry me."

Then, before his astonished superiors could interfere, he drew his revolver and shot himself.
