A Happy and Prosperous New Year

"Every New Year has its blessings, May all of them be yours; Every New Year has its sorrows, Still, the sorrows have their cures; Yet we hope the contributi on Of the New Year to your lot, May consist of only blessings, And no sorrows form a blot."

A T the stroke of twelve to-night, Old Father Time will give into your care an infant New Year-1907. The destiny of the sprightly youngster is not already shaped—that lies to a great extent in your own hands.

What will you make of the year 1907? Judging from the year now on the threshold of departure, 1907 will enter most auspiciously. He can look back at his predecessor's reign and say, "Well has thou served thy Nineteen-six has brought to us a most prosperous year. And that signifies the prosperity of those about us. We take this opportunity of thanking you sincerely for the patronage accorded us. We thank you for the generosity with which you have overlooked the minor short-comings of this institution. It is managed by humans, and humans cannot help but err. Yet we are ever striving for perfection; perfection in the many details which will help to make this store an ideal institution.

We extend to you the greetings of our organization, and say unaffectedly, that we hope the New Year, 1907, may be the most joyful year you have ever lived, and that its prosperity will be chronicled as unequalled, up to the present, in your life's history.

We wish you, A Very Happy and Prosperous New
