The Frontenaes were defeated at Belleville, on Friday night, in a fast exhibition of bockey. The ice was in fine condition for the contest, both teams playing the game of their lives. There was only one score-made in the first half, Belleville getting one past Lamb, after several ineffectual efforts. The heavy Belleville defence is accountable for Frontenae's defeat, they used their bodies and sticks to good purpose putting Reginald Crawford to sleep, and cutting up the other forwards. A Third Bereavement.

The death of Margaret McCauley, wife of Thomas Howard, of Portsmouth, has brought grief to a family already severely bereaved. The illness of Mrs. Howard was from pneumonia, and lasted a week only. The loss is a felt one, because of deceased's many estimable qualities. She had lived all of her fifty years in Portsmouth, and had gathered friend-ahips and associations of the closest kind. Troubles come not singly, but in companies. A year ago Sister Mary Redmond, of one of the devoted orders in Kingston, was taken to rest; in September Robert McAuley died in Portsmouth. They were sister and brother to the lady now called A Third Bereavement.
