The People Pay The Shot. The provincial government is handing out the money it has collected from the railway companies and license holders.

Our contemporary contrasts the experience of this government with that of its predecessors. The liberal policy, it is said, was to take from the people all it could.

While it is collected from the railway companies and the license holders it is the contribution of the people all the same, and they are simply getting back, in some measure, their own in diminished form.

There may be some merit in making the railway companies pay for the franchise they enjoy. But the Whitney government is not doing as well as the liberal government proposed.

It is taxing the great corporations, but not as some people think they should be taxed. As for the higher license fees, are they what the people demanded?

Where The Farmers Stand.

A remarkable experience is that testified by the Weekly Sun, which professes, and rightly, to reflect the mind and feeling of the farmers. In the Commons, some days ago, Messrs. Bennett, Henderson and Maclean asserted somewhat boldly that the agricultural element in Canada, the men who tilled the soil and extracted therefrom its riches, were protectionists in their political proclivities.

The Sun questioned the assertion and took steps to collect data upon the subject. It communicated with a number of farmers in East Simcoe and Halton—the constituencies represented by Messrs. Bennett and Henderson—requesting replies to a question as to the accuracy of the statements made in the house.

A similar course could not well be pursued in the case of Mr. Maclean, because that gentleman's constituency is almost as completely urban as is the one represented by Mr. Oiler of West Toronto. But letters similar to those written to Halton East Simcoe farmers were sent to farmers in Mr. Maclean's old constituency of East York. The names of the farmers written to were selected at random. The Sun did not know the political leanings of one in ten of those communicated with.

"The answers received," says the Sun, "speak for themselves. Only three out of twenty farmers written to sustain the position taken by the dainties there. But this is not all. Mr. Barr, who had also declared in the house that farmers desired protection, has been kept busy during a considerable part of the time that has since elapsed in presenting petitions from his own constituents asking for a lowering of the tariff. Evidently the vocal organs of the publishing doctor got ahead of his feet, and to see a Montreal witness declare he was talking through his hat. The whole incident should form a final and exclusive negative answer to the final question, 'Are farmers in favor of protection by tariff?'

The end of the incident in the Commons may not be yet. The discussion of the tariff is not really over, and it may be in order for Messrs. Bennett, Henderson and Maclean, in view of the new light they have received, to revise their opinions publicly expressed, and to put themselves on record more accurately in accord with their constituents.

The Cure For Crime.

The report of the patrol officer is very interesting. It deals with the attempt of his department to protect the man, who, having fallen, leaving the trail of the criminal, and it is hard to recover lost ground. The people, especially the employers of labour, mistrust the convict. They realize that he has paid the penalty of his offence, but they are just persuaded that he has reformed, that his nature has been purged of the evil that tempted him down, that opportunity permitting, he will not repeat his offence.

Mr. Ambrose, in his somewhat severe opinion, because it will not so soon upon society because it will not so soon upon the convict. He writes: "Let us not go any farther as possible, from the thought that men are born sinners, or have an unchangeable nature, and that some are born to the world's estate of the bloodshed which they cannot decline. The criminal is not born, he is something made, and the modern improvement, namely, which is to be made, is to make a man a better man, and to make him a better man by with a view to the fact, it is not responsible for."

A Cough Medicine

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine. Good for every cough, hard cough, desperate cough. If your doctor endorses it for your case, take it. If not, don't take it. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is a regular cough medicine, a strong medicine, a doctor's medicine.

PREHISTORIC REMAINS IN MEXICO.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Leopoldo Batres, who has been making excavations, in Mexico, announces that on one of the small artificial hills to the south east of the Pyramid of the Sun, he has made some interesting discoveries in the spot known as the Street of the Dead. Here he found a number of rooms which are apparently part of an ancient temple, below which there was a large apartment, access to which was gained by a massive stairway. He also found the skeleton of a man, which he believes to be one of the ancient Toltec king, for the skeleton there was the skeleton of a tiger, both being painted in red, the royal color. In addition to these were found a quantity of shells, conchoidal beads, jade and obsidian idols, knives, snakes and polished stones, and masks representing heroes who lived three thousand years ago. The findings are arousing great interest in archaeological circles.

BRITISH NAVY MISSING.

Ottawa Citizen. The empire's navy is a big affair and many things happen which the boundaries of the Seven Seas when no war is in sight. The Jamaica disaster was one of these things. But some are the Pacific squadron, the West India squadron and the North Atlantic squadron. In the good old days the British cruisers, if not actually in Kingston harbor, would be heading for there, "full speed ahead," in swiftness. Now there is a British cruiser within that sphere of influence, the indefatigable, but she does not appear to have turned up. Instead comes an American squadron, prompt and efficient—its admiral anxious that it should do everything that a British squadron should have been on hand to do for British subjects. Perhaps the admiral was a little officious, but he is to be excused. It is many a day since foreign ships had the chance to do the work of the British navy for British subjects. We can sympathize with Admiral Davis' patriotic station.

OTTAWA CITIZEN.

In the St. Clair tunnel seven men employed in installing the electrical equipment were found by a train crew almost asphyxiated by coal gas. The worst storm of the season has passed over parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, and the loss of stock will be exceedingly heavy.

NEWBURGH TEACHER APPOINTED PUBLIC SCHOOL INSPECTOR.

Of Lennox and Addington—Death in Montreal of Mrs. McKim, Formerly Miss Coultas Burdette.

Newburgh, Jan. 24.—The news was received, in the village, on Wednesday evening, that D. A. Nesbit, B.A., the general principal of the Newburgh high school, had been appointed inspector of public schools for the county of Lennox and Addington. Every one in the village is greatly pleased at the appointment, and while deeply regretting that the new appointment will necessitate Mr. Nesbit's retirement from the high school staff, are glad that one who has worked so faithfully for all good works of the village, has resolved the inspectorship. The new inspector was born in Bruce county, where he received his early education. For thirteen years he taught successfully in the public schools, Waterloo, Ontario, in the meantime fitting himself for high school teaching. In 1892 he received his degree of B.A., at Queen's University, Kingston, and in 1902 took his master's degree at the same institution. Formerly he taught in the high school at Carleton Place. In 1893 he was appointed principal of the high school here, succeeding H. L. Wilson, and after some years of work here, the famous Newburgh academy stands to-day, as a result of Mr. Nesbit's faithful labors, one of the leading high schools of the province. There have been many changes in that time. But there are men and women to be found all over Canada, graduates of this academy, who look back with pleasant memories of the man who was always so ready to help the students, and to whom they owe so much. Kind and courteous in his manner, fond of a joke at any stage of a lesson, firm in his discipline, yet always accommodating, Mr. Nesbit devoted himself to the students and the wearers of the "blue and pink," wherever they are, will be glad to learn that he has received the new appointment. His departure is a great loss to the school, and it stands to his credit to-day, that during his principality here not one student has been expelled, though there have been times when a very tactful man in charge, serious results might have followed. But he always arranged matters satisfactorily with the students and teachers, and affairs went back to their normal evening. Mr. Nesbit is a prominent Methodist, and has been a great worker in the church. He will be greatly missed in the village, and he will be missed, but they have the best wishes of a host of friends in their new home.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

Mowat As A Trainer. Toronto News. It is said that Mayor Mowat, of Kingston, is likely to be selected as liberal leader in the legislature. They do say that if he accepted he would have Mr. Whitney cutting out of his hand within three months.

COMPETITION BEGUN.

Ottawa Citizen. The building of a branch of the Canadian Pacific into the Cobalt country from Mattawa will do much towards putting Ottawa again in touch with the trade of the Temiskaming region, which is lost when the government road was built from North Bay.

SOME RAILROAD COMPARISONS.

Commentary. Kideaway's claims that the entire government railroad systems of Europe have been conducted twelve consecutive months without the loss of a single passenger's life, both in the government-owned railroads of Switzerland only three people were killed during 1906, and of these three two were trespassers and one was a child. The same year 10,000 people were killed on the privately-owned railroads of the United States. In 1906 American railroads killed more people than were killed on either side in any one battle of the civil war. There is food for thought in the above simple statement of facts.

POLITICS GONE MAD.

Hamilton Times. The dismissal of Sheriff Gillipie, of Prince Edward county, for alleged offensive remarks, places the premier in a very bad light again, and shows that he has no scruples about violating his solemn pledges. He is publicly pleading himself in all such cases to grant full amnesty. Now he absolutely refuses it, saying he is only to a request for a chance to defend himself. He, however, asked for an investigation and was informed that, as the letter to his intimacies a decision had been reached when it was written, and he was merely given an opportunity to resign. There spoke the thorough politician.

A BLOOMING AWA.

Toronto News. If the governor's action is fairly stated in the despatches, he will receive only commendation from the mass of the British people both in the United Kingdom and Canada. Admiral Davis may have swaggared, he may have set large bounds to his right of interference, but he was not offensive in his exercise of authority, but he was there from humane motives, and for humane purposes, and the governor should have been careful not to give the British people the impression which so generally obtains in other nations that the Englishman is arrogant, supercilious and bad-mannered, and so secure in his own superiority that he is offended even by the kindly notice of his neighbors.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

The Production of "At the World's Mercy." There was a good audience at the Grand opera house last evening. The piece presented was a melodrama, "At the World's Mercy." A typical east side, New York scene, in which love and hatred, comedy and pathos, were cleverly blended in the story, and the different characters so well drawn as to present almost a living reality. Eleanor Franklin, Josie Barrows, Alice Meredith and little Helen Shesley, by their clever interpretation of their different roles, were the centre of attraction, and held the interest of the audience to the end. They were well assisted by Forest Stanley, Edwin Fox, Tom Sam Van and William Shesley. The scenery was appropriate and presented a vivid description of the events as they occurred in the different acts. The audience were well pleased with the performance and applauded generously.

TROUBLE WITH WYOMING INDIANS.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 25.—Citizens of Lander and district are about to petition government not to remove the soldiers from Fort Washkie, owing to the present differences between the Shoshone and Arapahoe Indians. Quite recently George Terry, a half breed Shoshone, son of the famous Mormon Bishop Terry of Utah, was mysteriously murdered. Terry was a squaw man and lived on the reservation for twenty-five years. Baras have also been burned and horses killed. The Shoshone and Arapahoes are sworn enemies and as they are liable to fight at any time the citizens are claiming protection. As it stands at present it is the presence of the soldiers that prevents an outbreak.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

When a physician tells a woman, suffering from female trouble, that an operation is necessary it is, of course, frightful news. The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations! It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only recourse, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations. Mrs. Robert Glenn of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes: "Dear Mrs. Pinkham—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add to the many which you have in its favor. I have suffered untold agonies from a serious female trouble for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but I was unwilling to do this. I tried your Vegetable Compound, and I am only too glad to say that it has done for me."

Serious feminine troubles are steadily on the increase among women—and before submitting to an operation every woman should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been curing the worst forms of female complaints, all functional troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement, weakness, irregularity, indigestion and nervous prostration. Any woman who could read the many grateful letters on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office would be convinced of the efficiency of her advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.
